Keystone Show moves ahead one month

BY SHEILA MILLER

HARRISBURG — In an all-out effort for improvement, the Keystone International Livestock Exposition committee has announced their show will be held at a new time this Fall.

KILE has been booked into the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex for October 2-11, 1980. This date is one full month earlier than the date of the show for the past several years.

What prompted this move, according to a show spokesman, was the need to coordinate the Eastern livestock shows in order to provide a better show circuit for exhibitors travelling from the Midwest and South.

The new date of KILE follows directly behind the Eastern National Livestock Exposition at Timonium Maryland, scheduled for September 27-October 1. The Atlantic Rural, Virginia's major show, is also held during the latter part of September.

It is hoped, said the spokesman, that exhibitors from Indiana and Ohio will follow the circuit and show at KILE.

It was pointed out in previous years, when there was a month between the major livestock shows in the East, many exhibitors went back home and didn't bother making the long trip back for KILE.

The Pa. Polled Hereford Association told its members the announcement of a new KILE date was good news for exhibitors. "This will make a first class circuit of Delaware State Fair, New York State Fair, Maryland State Fair, Eastern States Expo, Virginia State Fair, Eastern National, Keystone, and then on to Louisville."

Pat Holloway, secretary of the Pa. Angus Association, commented that she feels the change of dates will help keep exhibitors for the show. She said with this type of cooperative scheduling, the animals won't take as much work to get ready and keep ready for the shows.

The change of dates will help to eliminate another major problem that occurred at KILE for the past several years. According to James Glass, of the Pa. Livestock Association, the earlier date will get the Keystone show away from the congestion at the Farm Show Complex after the annual Standardbred sale.

"The Standardbred sale is

Adams Co. cattlemen fear bite of anaplasmosis

BY SHEILA MILLER

GETTYSBURG — Many cattlemen in Adams County are deeply concerned about a disease called anaplasmosis.

Although the disease has been around for many years, it has not been an identified problem in Pennsylvania until recently.

Dr. William Carr, a veterinarian in the Emmitsburg area of Maryland, said he has diagnosed and treated between 10 and 15 cattle afflicted with the disease since last September. These cases have not been confined to just one farm, but involve several farms in the Gettysburg area, he said. There has been one positive case already this year, he added.

The Maryland veterinarian said he has been using the drug, tetracycline, in the treatment. He pointed out, however, that in all of the published material on this "drug of choice to kill the anaplasmosis organism", there has been no research to back up what's been printed.

Tetracycline, he stated, is an antibiotic. The manner in which it is used in the treatment of anaplasmosis varies with each veterinarian. He noted the drug can be used on any animal except those scheduled to be slaughtered in the near future.

Carr pointed out that anaplasmosis may have been affecting cattle in the Gettysburg area for a number of years. But, he said, it hasn't been until recently that it has been confirmed by testing.

"Annaplasmosis isn't endemic to the area because Across Pennsylvania with Secretary Bergland

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

ALONG U.S. 15 — Folding his lanky frame into the back seat of a compact car, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland removed his dark pin-striped suit coat and settled back to relax.

Out stomping over the farmland of rural Pennsylvania for the Carter-Mondale re-election campaign, Bergland had faced television cameras, fielded press questions on a grassy lawn, rapped with a crowd of several dozen farmers, toured Wayne Beshore's York County dairy farm, milked a 26,000 pound registered Holstein and met with representatives of the state's farm organizations.

And it was barely past lunch.

Ahead lay a couple of hundred miles through the state's central mountain valleys, another farm gathering at Columbia County's Pen-Col farm and evening meetings at State College.

A nap might have been in order. Except that there I sat in the other corner of the compact Chevy, armed with a tape recorder, steno pad and loaded ballpoint.

Lancaster Farming had been granted the travel time from Camp Hill to Selinsgrove for some in-depth questioning of the nation's head of farm policy. Let's see - we'll start off with an easy one.

What are the long range policies and goals of this administration?

Doing away with the patchwork, came the Secretary's prompt reply. Like a crazy quilt, farm programs have been pieced together for years. Price supports, credit aid and availability, rural development assistance, conservation and farm taxing structures, for instance, are all due for intense scrutiny, aimed at the long-run preservation of the basic family farm in a viable rural community.

The delicate relationship between the labels of "small farms" and "large farms" lays at the heart of some of the Secretary's concerns.

He defined small farms as mostly those part-time ones,

New ag fair proposed for southeast Penna.

BY CURT HARLER

BENSALEM — Plans for a new state agricultural fair are being discussed within the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Site for the fair would be the Keystone Race Track located in the Philadelphia suburb of Bensalem.

The state fair would not be a duplicate of the Allentown Fair, according to State Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, but would include livestock, a petting zoo, and some midway amusements.

Tentative plans for the new state fair put dates for the event sometime in September or October. The Department is seeking further farmer imput.

State fair dates would not conflict with either the rescheduled Keystone International Livestock Esposition or the Dairy Expo.

Hallowell said he did not anticipate the state fair's conflicting with Middletown Grange Fair, the traditional Bucks County ag event, usually held earlier in the summer.

12 herds still quarantined in outbreak of pseudorabies

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — Twelve swine herds still remain under quarantine in the pseudorabies investigation being conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

These 12 herds include four in which the pseudorabies virus has been diagnosed and eight others which have been considered coming into contact with the infected herds, according to Dr. John Cable, Chief of the Swine Health Division, Bureau of Animal Industry, PDA.

All of the herds are located in the three-county area of Lancaster, Lebanon and Dauphin.

The four infected herds include two in Lancaster County and one each in Lebanon and Dauphin counties.

"The highest number of herds under quarantine was 15," Dr. Cable said.

"Three of the herds have been released from quarantine following the receipt of lab results. We've gone back six months in our investigation to include people who have bought replacement stock from one of the infected herds.

"These herds are being placed under precautionary

Nearly 100 area dairymen — all Pennfield customers — were honored recently for achieving high herd production, high increases and high record cows last year. Of vital importance to their success is the way they continue to balance their home grown forage with nutrients that boost milk yields dramatically and enhance butterfat test results. This, of course, is exactly what the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service can achieve for you. And here's how it works: 1. We collect samples of your forage. 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forages. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content. The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both, of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the printout will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows' nutritional requirements.

Try the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. For better milk yields. For better profits. There's no cost or obligation. Just phone us today at Pennfield Feeds. Local calls: Lancaster 299-2561, Red Lion 244-4511. In 717 and 215 areas dial toll-free 800-732-0467. Pennfield Feeds, Rohrerstown Road, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Hy-Line® Variety W-36—The Recyclable Layer

If recycling is an important part of your operation, then you need the Hy-Line brand layer. She comes back quickly from the molt with strong peaks and the same outstanding features you noticed in the beginning. Superior shell strength. Uniform egg size. Efficient feed conversion. And the tough shells that help you put more eggs in the carton. Ask your Hy-Line representative about recycling and he'll show you how your Hy-Line W-36 layers can help you strike the profit balance again... and again... and again.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

APRIL 28-MAY 4,1980

Anticipation of precipitation.

Dig dandelion greens now Hitler committed suicide April 30, 1945 . Full moon April 30 Average length of days for the week, 14 hours, 7 minutes Ostriches are mating now Stan Musial hit five home runs May 2, 1954 Adhesive postage stamps invented this week in 1840 A man is no greater than his dream

Ask the Old Farmer: What is the "youngest" antique sold these days and how young can one be? And I mean aside from automobiles which, as I understand, can be officially "antique" at age 30 A S, Baltimore

You don't talk about 'young" antiques If they are less than a century in age, they are "period pieces ' If over, it depends on what country you are in Nothing is antique in Scandinavia if it is less than 500 years old

Home Hints: To remove grease spots from carpeting, brush in baking soda leave overnight and then vacuum

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Sunny and mild to start, then rainy and cool, end of week is clear and hot

Greater New York-New Jersey: Cloudy, cool, and heavy rains at week's beginning, rainy and cool mid-week, clearing and warm by weekend

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Cold, with heavy rains continuing all week, weekend is clear and pleasant

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Very cool, with rains heavy north throughout the week

Thursday, April 24
Report supplied by USDA

Midweek prices on slaughter steers were 25-50 cents higher and heifers mostly 50 cents higher. Cows were 1.00-2.00 lower and bulls mostly steady.

Four day receipts 12,300, last week 11,700, a year ago 13,400.

Trading on fed steers and heifers followed a rather stable course and for the third consecutive week, closing prices were higher than at the close of the previous period. Marketings were little changed from the previous week, and were well distributed over the trading period. One buyer was still out of operation, but there was a rather good demand for cattle to be slaughtered at points outside the immediate Omaha area. Yield Grade was often a greater price-determining factor than quality grade. Reflection of the narrow differential between Choice and Good carcasses. The overall finish of the steer and heifer supply was fairly attractive. A rather liberal percentage Choice and several loads Choice and Prime. Slaughter steers made up approximately 42 pct and heifers 32 pct. Cows comprised 12 pct. and feeders 12 pct.

STEERS: Load Choice and Prime predominately 3 1314 lbs. 65.50. Load Choice and Prime 3-4 1260 lbs. 64.50. Lancaster Farming says...

We need a national bargaining law

Any farmer who grows apples or peaches for processing, mushrooms, radishes, snap beans, tomatoes, peppers, plums, beets and a host of other crops should sit right down and write a letter to his federal legislator asking him to support HR 3535.

Hog men, sheep breeders and other farmers, too, should be supportive of the measure. They may need it some day.

The bill is the National Agricultural Bargaining Act of 1979, a bill which would give farmers some muscle in the marketplace.

HR 3535 has a mob of co-sponsors, about 35 in all, including Pennsylvanians Austin Murphy, John Murtha, and Donald Ritter.

A bargaining bill would give farmers the leverage they need to get a fair price plus some margin of profit for what they produce.

When dozens of farmers are selling to a single outlet there is little choice for bargaining of any kind. The farmer has to take what's offered or grow some other crop. Often, that's not a viable alternative.

On the other hand, most corn or soybean growers have a choice of mills where they can sell their grain. While their choice may be somewhat limited, there still is the opportunity to hang up the phone if the price isn't right and go elsewhere to sell.

HR 3535 would set up standards by which associations of farmers would be accredited for bargaining. The bill will incorporate elements of the Ag Fair Practices Act.

It would oblige prosessors to recognize accredited associations, meet with them, and negotiate in good faith over price and other fundamentals.

It's easy to appreciate the need for farmer bargaining power for vegetable and fruit markets. But, with the trend toward thinner markets for lambs and hogs, the day may not be too far down the road when one or two outlets may control all of purchases of a commodity.

The only way to meet a giant, monolithic buyer is with a giant, monolithic seller: the ag bargaining association.

Most resistance to the law by packers and processors revolves around the Capper-Volstead Act of 1922. With that, opponents say, there is no further need for farm bargaining power.

But Capper-Volstead has one major deficiency. While it allows farmers to organize, and exempts them from certain anti-trust provisions, it does not force anybody to recognize farmer bargaining organizatios or to negotiate with them.

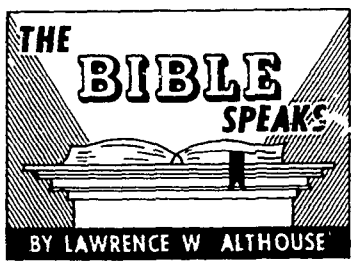
The Ag Fair Practices Act of 1967, while prohibiting discrimination against farmers who join bargaining associations, does not compel processors to recognize them.

The National Farmers Union, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Grange, and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives all support such legislation.

With that endorsement, and the legions of legislators behind it it would seem HR 3535 would be a shoe-in.

Not so. Similar bills failed to become law in 1967, 1972, and 1976. National Farmers Organization thinks it can bargain without such a law. Packers and processors are fighting the bill tooth and nail. After all, it's tough on a bully when the little kids grow up and get strong themselves.

It'll be better for producers of all crops to have the legal means to become price makers rather than price takers.



WALKING IN THE DARK

Lesson for April 27, 1980

Background Scripture:
1 John 1 and 2, 3:19 through 4:6
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 43

The other day when I was on the campus of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, I saw a man preaching in front of the student union building. A few students had already stopped to hear him and the group was beginning to swell with students on their way to the next class. I joined the crowd to hear what he was saying.

I had to admire the man's courage and conviction: it wasn't an easy task he had taken upon himself. But I couldn't admire what he was saying, for although he had never been on the campus before and knew nothing about these students he attacked them viciously for the sins he imagined they committed. He assumed they were addicted to drugs, alcohol and illicit sex and he condemned them without knowing whether his assumptions were just.

The Darkness Of Hate

Some of the students scoffed and jeered at him, but most listened quietly, a few challenging his unfair assumptions. One young man was particularly upset with the preacher's allegations. At last he broke in and called to the preacher: "I've heard only judgment and condemnation from you, not one word about the love of God. You're not talking about the God I worship in Jesus Christ!" Instead of replying, the preacher began to thumb through his Bible and, finding a proof-text he read it aloud, the purpose of it obviously to ignore the student's question. One girl standing in front of me shook her head and said to no one in particular: "It's people like you who give Christianity a 'blackeye'," and she walked away.

As I joined the crowd that began to drift away, I couldn't help but think of those words from 1 John: "He who says he is in the light and hates his brother is in the darkness still" (2:9). To judge and condemn people you don't know is hardly an act of love. The preacher had intended to share the "light" of the Gospel, but what he presented to them was, not light, but darkness.

The Light Of Love

The writer of John draws a very sharp line: you cannot despise your brother and still walk in the light. As I drove home that same afternoon, I asked myself: "Am I walking in the light or am I walking in darkness? Am I free of hate for all brothers? In fact, can I regard all people as my brothers and sisters?"

And as I asked myself these questions, I thought about my belligerant feelings toward some USA-based Iranian students about whom I had read in our morning paper. Like most Americans, I was caught up in the growing hostility over the American hostages in Iran. All of it perfectly understandable and certainly justified - yet, according to John, I cannot continue to feel that way and walk in the light of Jesus Christ.

TO GIVE CORN PLANTERS A CHANCE

Too many corn growers are in a big hurry when it comes time to plant corn. Corn planting time is here and many acres will be planted in the next few weeks. All planters that are in good condition should do a good job; that is, if the farmer gives it a chance. Too much speed is often the cause of poor planting distances. The operating instructions should give the suggested speed for all machines; we urge corn growers to respect these instructions.

Why not make a trial run on the lane, or some other place, to be sure the planter is dropping the corn kernels as desired. It pays to take time to make the proper adjustments, and to get the correct planting distances. Once the crop is in the ground and up, it is difficult to change the planting distances—or too costly to plant the field over again.

TO INCORPORATE MANURE

By this time most barns and manure storage facilities are being emptied on our fields. This livestock or poultry waste is an important source of fertilizer, if properly stored and handled. We urge farmers to mix the manure with the topsoil soon after application. This can be disced into the soil, plowed down, or injected in the soil as it is spread on the fields. The important thing is to get the manure out of the barns and into the topsoil.

Some farmers may get into such a hurry to plant corn they do not take the time to haul the manure out of storage; this is a mistake and does not go with good manure management. In addition, manure that is spread on the fields will be much less noticed in the community, if mixed with the topsoil immediately.

TO BE CAREFUL WITH WEED KILLERS

How often have you heard of a farmer, or gardener, that applied a weed killer to his crop instead of an insecticide or fungicide? This happens too many times during the year. We urge all folks to be sure they are applying the correct material. Weed killers should be stored separately from other spray materials. I'm aware of a person that had a fertilizer and a weed killer stored together in the same colored bag. In his haste, he applied the weed killer instead of the fertilizer. Needless to say, it is hard on the desired plants. The same thing could happen with any type of pesticide that is stored close to feed or other supplies. Be sure of the identification of all materials. Keep materials in their original containers, or have them well identified. These mistakes are serious and may be fatal to a person, to animals, or to your crops.

TO USE LIME WHEN NEEDED

There are so many reasons why the lime needs of a soil should be satisfied that it would take several pages to list them. After a soil has been tested the suggested amount of lime should be worked into the soil. This will allow better use of the commercial fertilizer, in the first place, and give larger yields. Another major reason to use lime, is to get the chemical weed killers to do their job. Most of the herbicides will not do a good job of controlling weeds if the soil is sour. Since many crops are produced now without hand or mechanical cultivation, the pH of the soil is more important when it comes to killing weeds with chemicals. Weed killers used on crops being grown on sour soils will not give good results. Attention to lime needs should be given before the crop is planted.

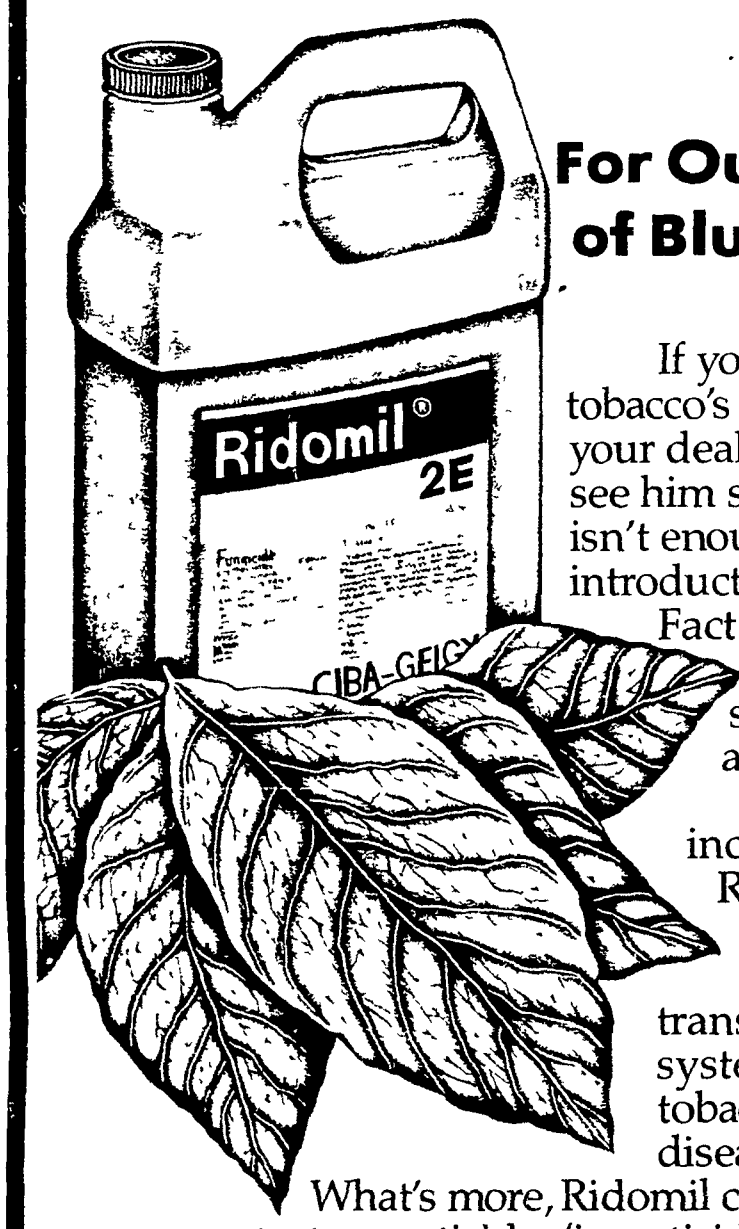
New Ridomil



For Outstanding Control of Blue Mold in Tobacco

If you need effective control of tobacco's two worst diseases, then ask your dealer about new Ridomil.® But see him soon. Because there simply isn't enough Ridomil available this introductory season.

Fact is, Ridomil gives you excellent control of black shank in flue-cured tobacco and blue mold in all tobacco.

Just one preplant incorporated treatment of Ridomil before bed formation and transplanting destroys fungi in your soil. After transplanting, Ridomil works systemically inside your tobacco to protect against disease attack all season long.

What's more, Ridomil can be tank-mixed with contact nematicides/insecticides to give you the control and application flexibility you need.

So this season, put new Ridomil into your tobacco. And keep black shank and blue mold fungus out.

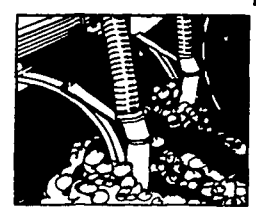
Switch fertilizer tanks
to a Calumet vacuum tank with soil injector

Liquid hog manure can save thousands of dollars in commercial fertilizer costs. So it makes sense to preserve that value with good management.

That's why Calumet recommends pairing our vacuum tank with a 2 or 4-shank Calumet soil injector. Soil plow down retains about four times the nitrogen lost with surface spreading, plus reduces odor and runoff.



Stop in to see the full line of Calumet vacuum tanks — in capacities from 1180 to 4500 gallons and choice of two vacuum pumps. And ask about the benefits of using a Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector.

Farm fuel supply should meet demand

BY CURT HARLER

HARRISBURG — Farmers in Pennsylvania who have on-farm storage should be able to obtain sufficient gasoline, propane and butane this year to meet all of their farming needs.

But there is no guarantee for any farmer of receiving more than his base period allotment. And there is little provision made to assure adequate supplies of diesel fuel.

There is no diesel base period, no diesel allocation, although no shortage of diesel is anticiapted by the government this year.

The provision giving farmers 100 percent of current fuel requirements was abolished because some farmers took all they could get, rather than all they needed.

Despite hardship in past years, both the U.S. Department of Energy and the Pennsylvania Governor's Energy Council said they foresee no energy shortage either at gas stations or on-farm.

And both DOE and the Commonwealth have ways for farmers to get extra fuel should they run short.

This month Pennsylvania has 102 percent of base fuel allocation. Use, in general, is down. Stockpiles are high, the government agencies said at a meeting held Wednesday by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The meeting was to assess the farm fuel situation and to determine how any isolated shortage of fuel could be made up.

Farm fuel allocation depends on the "base period allotment" which is the amount of fuel a farmer used between November 1977 and October 1978. For several years the base period was use in 1972 but the DOE changed the base period last March.

Assurance of base period fuel supplies applies to farmers, food transporters, and food processors. They also may be able to get an allocation for a new storage tank, an allocation not ordinarily made.

The assurance does not apply to veterinarians, AI technicians, and other farm-related servicemen who have purchased fuel at gas stations. They will have to continue to purchase at gas stations.

Neither the state nor the DOE will allow such servicemen to install a tank and

Among the participants in a farm fuel conference Wednesday in Harrisburg were Louise Thompson, U.S. Department of Energy; Cynthia McClain, Governor's Energy Council; Dan Cook, Department of Agriculture; Chester Heim, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture; Fred Wertz, research assistant for PDA; and Richard Pennay, ASCS director.

Transmissions That Get The Job Done

The Allison HT 740 and HT 754 offered in Steiger Panther PTA Series tractors from 295-350 Horsepower, offer these unique features for performance and profitability.

- Provides eight or ten ideal field and transport speeds when combined with Steiger's two-speed power divider.
- Converter and automatic lock-up positions in each of the forward ranges. Converter permits tractor to start off with implement in the ground Lock-up provides maximum efficiency in engine operating range.
- Fully automatic upshifting and downshifting in all forward ranges under full throttle and full load, as drawbar requirements dictate.
- Driveline repairs are significantly reduced.
- No downtime due to mechanical clutch replacement and repair.
- Ease of operation reduces fatigue and improves driver efficiency and comfort.
- Smooth transmission of power extends driveline life by reducing harmful shock loading.

get a new allotment, although they may install a tank and get it filled by someone with a surplus supply of gasoline.

Because of the current fuel situation, such a move by anyone who has no on-farm storage, may be a good short-term move.

Four suppliers, Ashland, Getty, Mobil, and Marathon are at 100 percent of requirements. Ashland has surplus, so purchasers may be able to pick up extra fuel from an Ashland supplier if they need it.

"Farmers will be given top priority for fuel as long as their forms are properly filled out and properly documented," said Cynthia L. McClain, associate director for fuel allocation and emergency preparedness for the State.

She said this year farmers probably will get everything they ask for.

Farmers who need fuel have a choice of numbers to call. The first would be McClain's office in Harrisburg. The number is 717/783-1650. People there can supply both information and forms required to get more fuel.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture can be reached at 717/787-1788. There, Fred Wertz, research assistant, can supply similar information, although it is probable farmers will be referred to the above number, too.

Extra fuel allocations are made on a month-by-month basis. To get extra fuel a farmer has to complete a one page application which is accompanied by two pages of instructions.

Farmers qualify under Group 6 provisions for "end users" of fuel.

Louise Thompson, U.S. DOE representative, pointed out that the state plays the largest role in allocating fuel to farmers.

According to government regulations, the state "Allocation Request Form" must be the farmer's first request.

If a farmer purchased fuel during the base period from a supplier who refuses to supply fuel equal to a farmer's base period use, the DOE has legal power to force that supplier to make the fuel available.

But a farmer who changes suppliers, perhaps for a better price, will lose all DOE protection and rights to his original allocation.

In short, the open market was taken away for farmers who wish federal fuel protection.

Several special cases also were covered at the meeting.

A farmer who takes over a farm that has an allocation also takes over that farm's allocation for fuel. If the farm has no allocation for fuel the farmer can get an allocation through the state office.

Farmers who take on more rented ground can apply for a larger allotment for as long as they farm the ground. If they give up the rented parcel, they also give up the fuel allotment.

There is no fuel entitlement for any farmer who does not have on-farm storage. The state may be able to make fuel available to a farmer through a local gas station.

But federal DOE regulations prohibit assignment to retail sales outlets.

In the case of farmers whose supplier has gone out of business, the state will assign the fuel allotment to another supplier.

Timber, nursery, Christmas tree and similar operations are not given farm priority. But they may be able to get some aid from the state.

Allocations are not necessarily distributed on a monthly basis. A supplier can aggrigate the allocation and distribute it as the buyer needs, as far as the allocation will go.

A farmer who purchased fuel from more than one outlet during the base period will continue to have a split allocation. McClain pointed out the allocation is to the distributor and not for the end user.

Confirmation of farm need will be made with help from ASCS, according to State ASCS Director Richard Pennay.

Pennay said local ASCS offices also can help farmers fill out the required Allocation Request Form.

DOE, the Governor's Energy Council, the Department of Agriculture, and ASCS all emphasized the need for a farmer to anticipate any shortage rather than wait until the last minute and run dry.

They said it takes time to get the paperwork and take care of the physical movement of fuel.

They encouraged farmers to apply for extra fuel as soon as they see a problem coming.

Ordinarily, a farmer's paperwork will be processed and fuel made available rapidly—within seven to ten days of the request.

That can be a long time if those 10 days are good planting or haymaking days so anticipation of problems will pay off.

Also, because the state goes on a monthly basis, and it may take as long as 10 days to get an allocation, farmers should file for extra fuel before the 15th day of any month.

Earlier application will mean earlier processing of the papers for that month.

So that a farmer does not have to re-apply every month for a small quantity of fuel, the Governor's Energy Council may arrange for delivery of more fuel than requested to help tide a farmer over for a longer period.

Planting intentions show more corn, tobacco

HARRISBURG — Commonwealth farmers intend to devote more acreage to corn and tobacco in 1980 and less to barley, sorghum and hay, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Based on April 1 intentions, acreages and percentage changes from 1979 are: corn planted, 1,670,000 acres, up two percent; tobacco for harvest, 13,500 acres, up four percent; barley for harvest, 120,000 acres, down four percent; sorghum, 14,000 acres, down 22 percent; hay for harvest, 1,940,000 acres, down one percent; oats, 360,000 acres, unchanged; and soybeans planted, 85,000 acres, unchanged.

United States corn plantings are expected to total 82.0 million acres, three percent more than in 1979.

Feed grain acreage (corn, sorghum, oats and barley) is expected to total 120 million acres, up two percent from 1979. Food grain acreage (wheat, rice and rye) intentions at 85.3 million acres are up ten percent from last year.

Tot mesmerized by rhetoric

Listening to the campaign stomping was all in a day's work for nine-month-old Tyler Dehoff, who snuggled down into a milk case to ponder all those policies and promises. Tyler's parents are Sandy and Jack DeHoff, Dallastown area dairy farmers. Jack is the president of the York County Farmers' Association.

Philly farmers need tailgate marketers

PHILADELPHIA — Local growers looking for farmer-to-consumer marketing opportunities are invited to join the Philadelphia Tailgate Market Coalition for their 1980 entries of open-air markets scheduled June through December.

The Tailgate Markets, initiated by the Archdiocese of Philadelphia Nutritional Development Services in 1977, provide farmer-controlled outlets for local farm products. Growers who have previously participated in the markets report profits 33 percent to 45 percent higher than the farm wholesale price normally received. Likewise, city consumers find that prices are an average of 29 percent less than the local supermarket price.

The Tailgate Market Coalition is headed by a newly-formed Executive Committee of farmers who have assumed responsibility for the management of the Philadelphia markets.

The first of the four weekly markets scheduled thus far, will open on Friday, June 6 at St. Cecilia churchyard, Rhawn St. Other locations include: St. Francis de Sales churchyard, Farragut St.; Our Lady of Calvary schoolyard, Knights Rd.; and Immaculate Conception churchyard, Chelten Avenue. A fifth market location is currently under consideration.

Farmers with quality produce, eggs, poultry, meat products, honey or other farm products may register for as many of the locations as they wish. There is a limit to the number of farmers assigned to each location, however, and interested producers are advised to register early.

Market registration forms and additional information may be obtained from the Phila. Tailgate Market Coalition, c/o John Shenk, 144 Church Rd., Lititz, Penna. 17543, or by calling 215-587-3767.

Mifflinburg Area FFA wins parliamentary procedure contest

MIFFLINBURG — Eleven Mifflinburg FFA members will advance to regional parliamentary procedure and public speaking contests after capturing top honors in the five-county area competition held recently.

Senior Brian Chuck and freshman Alexandra Purnell placed first and second, respectively, in the conservation public speaking contest. In the general agriculture public speaking category, junior Dawn Fogel placed second, and senior Michael Miller placed fourth. Freshman Tammy Haines earned a fourth place in extemporaneous public speaking.

Mifflinburg Area's eight-member team took the top award in parliamentary procedure competition. Team members are Greg Shuck, president; Todd Zimmerman, vice president; Naomi Houdeshell, secretary; Ralph Shrawder, treasurer; Andy Wagner, chaplain; Todd Ruhl, sentinel; Ron Delcamp, student advisor; and Ken Beiler, reporter.

First and second place winners advance to regional competition May 1 in Montoursville. Regional winners become eligible for the state contests, to be held at Penn State in June.

KILE

always held the first week in November, right before KILE," he said, "and there were problems moving livestock in for KILE because of the overlap in moving horses out."

But the change in dates does have some draw backs.Halloway pointed out, it's a bad time to hold KILE because it will fall at a time when farmers are filling silos.

Sharing her sentiments, but from a slightly different perspective, was Rodger Bankert, president of the Pa. Duroc and Chester White Associations. He said he personally would rather have the show in November because farmers will be picking corn in October.

Bankert also noted that having the show a month earlier will create problems for hogmen in getting the weight on their animals. He recalled that the May gilts he showed at previous Expo's were 40 pounds smaller than the April gilts—and now, he said, the show is a whole month earlier.

"You can't go into your May pigs for a show prospect," Bankert stated, "and expect to reach the 190 pound weight limit. They just won't have the size. You're going to need April pigs.

"If the KILE committee would have told us back in November about the change of date, we could have bred our sows right after last year's Expo, and would have been finished breeding in December. As it stands now, some breeders were still breeding their sows in February."

Mrs. Clyde Brubaker, a Lancaster County Hampshire sheep breeder, commented that people will need to gear their hogs, sheep, steers, and lambs with the earlier date in mind.

"A lamb can gain a lot of weight in one month's time. No matter what the age of the lamb, the ration will have to be increased at just the right time to be ready."

As far as the affects the new date will have on the show schedule of sheep producers, Brubaker said she felt the only conflicts would be in schedules of local fairs, like Manheim.

But, concerning the bred ewe sale scheduled for October 4, she said the buyers will have to know that the ewes they're buying were with the ram one month less. This will mean a change in the wording of the terms of the sale regarding breeding, she added.

The breeding swine sale that has been tentatively planned for KILE will be an added incentive for many exhibitors to bring hogs to the show.

Leon Arnold, a swine producer in Lebanon County, stated he doesn't show breeding stock where he has to bring them along home—it has to be a show, sale combination.

Arnold said he thought there may be more of a market for boar hogs at the newly scheduled October KILE than there would have been if the show date was not changed and the sale held. "You don't want much traffic of new pigs in Winter," he said.

Bankert also felt the sale of breeding swine would be a good idea. "You can get pigs home in October and have them bred in November without disease problems in your breeding gilts. If you buy an open gilt at KILE and bring her to the Keystone Classic,(held in late February at the Farm Show), as a bred gilt, it will be a good business venture," he said.

Lowell Wilson, secretary of the Pa. Cattlemen's Association, said the association feels it is a good idea for the change of Keystone's date. But, he added, it will mean some cattle breeders will have a more difficult time getting their cattle ready on time.

"It was essential for KILE to have an earlier date so that the show will continue to grow," he concluded.

The Twenty-Fourth Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition will have four horse shows: Appaloosa, Friday, October 3; Paint, Saturday, October 4; Quarter Horse, Sunday, October 5; and Arabian, Monday, October 6.

The National 4-H Horse Judging Contest is scheduled for Saturday, October 4, with the National Horse Bowl on the same day. The Northeast Regional Intercollegiate Horse Judging Contest will take place on Saturday, also.

The Intercollegiate, 4-H, and FFA Livestock Judging Contest will be held on Friday, October 3. And on Monday, October 6, the Keystone Livestock and Meats Judging Contest will take place.

Feeder pig and feeder calf sales are scheduled for Friday, October 3, with the bred ewe sale to be held on Saturday, October 4.

The Premium List and entry cards will be mailed around July 1, 1980. The entry deadline is August 31.

Broilers chick placement up

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending April 12 were 2,281,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were eight percent above the corresponding week a year earlier and four percent above the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above the previous week.

Placements in the 21 key poultry producing states were 81,896,000, one percent above the previous week but one percent below the same week a year ago. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under Federal Inspection during the week ending April 2 totaled 1,697,000, with an average liveweight of 4.04 pounds.

Philadelphia FFA presents awards

PHILADELPHIA — At a recent awards banquet, the Philadelphia Chapter Future Farmers of America named Monica Hough as this year's Star Chapter Farmer.

The Chapter's Star Agribusinessman was actually a young woman, Nancy Sciandra.

Two Philadelphia FFA freshman received the Star Greenhand Award. They were Kim Gunther and Sherritta Ridgely.

A special award was presented by the Chapter to John Carpenter. He was recognized as the outstanding FFA member of the year.

A recent Keystone Farmer Degree recipient, Carpenter served as this year's Chapter Chaplain. He was a winner at Penn State in land judging competition, and was named the outstanding senior in agriculture resources.

Foundation awards were presented to: Dennis Dougherty; Vincent Erthal; David Hecht; Jamal Hampton; Dennis Dougherty; Karen Takakjy; Tina Richards; Chris Palmer; Mark Travis; Aaron Weilerstein; and Andy Riseman.

Honary Chapter Farmer Degrees were awarded to: Dolores C. Phifer; Frank Darcey; Glen Yohn; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones; James Robertson; Dean Hodges; Arthur Poley; Wilma Mintz; Stanley Tropiano, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meigs; and James Rowe.

Ed Hall, Chapter Advisor, remarked he was grateful to both Darcey and Yohn for their help throughout the year.

He thanked Darcey for his advice on Polled Hereford cattle, and for permitting the FFA members to visit his operation near Gettysburg.

Yohn, a swine herdman at Norristown State, taught the FFA members swine management, including ear notching and castration.

Kathy Jones; Robert Marchesani; Peter Smith; Lynne Westfield; Jim McAndrew; Cheryl Corxton; Stephen Barth; Darryl Wilson; Anthony Alberici; Isaac Pointer; Paul Luccia; Byron Rhode; Antoinette Lyles; Patricia Wells; Rosemary McCloskey; John Hall; Deanne Hadfield; Paul Winski; Chris Sciandra; Sherritta Ridgely; Roxanne Godlewski; Cynthia Moss; David Takakjy; Susan Soilder; Kim Gunther; June Wild; Darren Babnew; Lori Doman; Michelle Evans; Connie Scannella; Hope Niblick; Tracey Kidd; Nancy Martin; Lisa Russell; Belinda Gilbert; Lucas Rotman, Rebecca Rollins; Janet Smith; Gail Minnick; Allen Downing; Stephen Jones; Karen Dickerson; Floyd Scotteen; Tina Jones; Cheryl Dennis; Ira Zinner; Stanley Slivinski; and David Bolden.

Philadelphia Honorary Chapter Farmer Degrees were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Yohn, left, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Darcey.

Stoltzfus to head Twin Valley FFA

ELVERSON — Donald Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Stoltzfus, R1 Morgantown, has been chosen as president of the Twin Valley FFA Chapter for the 1980-81 school year.

Scott Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stoltzfus, R2 Elverson, has been chosen as 1st vice-president. Second vice-president is Brett Strough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strough, Mohnton.

Chapter Secretary will be Sue Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ford, Honey Brook, while Jeff Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wolfe, Honey Brook was chosen as Chapter Treasurer. Reporter for 1980-81 will be Diane Stoltzfus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Houck, R2 Elverson, and Nelson Beam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Beam, R2 Elverson, was elected chapter sentinel.

Chosen as Chaplain was John Parnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Parnick, Honey Brook. Wade Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bernard, R2 Elverson, was elected chapter historian.

Roger Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Stoltzfus, was selected as junior advisor.

Newly elected officers will be installed in May but will work jointly with outgoing officers until the end of this school year.

Brief answers to short questions

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Case of the Missing Ford Tractor

Never thought I'd be in the tractor repair business. My experience with tractor mechanics was usually from the go-get-this standpoint.

Whenever a tractor broke down on my parent's farm, I was always designated the invaluable assistant who ran to the cellar or pump shed for the tools and parts. Most times, the search that ensued took so much time that Dad came for the part himself. And, frustratingly, he always seemed to know just where to look for it.

Well, this week, a question from one of our readers poses a problem that several mechanics and he have been unable to solve. He writes:

I have an 8N Ford tractor that's been giving me trouble. I had different mechanics look at it but can't pin-point the cause.

When I am using it, mowing hay, it will run for an hour then suddenly stop. And, it won't start until it cools off about a half hour.

Sometimes when going up a grade, it will sputter and I have to keep pulling out the choke to keep it running. At times this makes it backfire.

One mechanic told me I needed a new ignition switch. So, I replaced it and it still didn't help.

Roland G. Kamoda
R1 Monongahela

I admit, this question had my mind swimming in strange waters. First off, we always ran red tractors.

Secondly, mechanical mysteries at home were always solved (or attempted to be solved) by Sherlock Dad, with side-kick me acting the part of puzzled Dr. Watson.

Relying on the experts for our first clue, I contacted Leonard Schott, the shop foreman at Lancaster Ford Tractor.

After listening politely to the plot, he said he felt it was the case of a bad coil in the ignition.

I raised the question that if it was the ignition—well, the switch had already been replaced.

Chuckling sympathetically, the shop foreman slowly explained that just replacing the ignition switch did nothing for the coil. He said that the coils sometimes break down if they're heated.

A faulty coil in the ignition, he added, would explain the mysterious backfiring.

Not allowing himself just one solution to the puzzle, Schott said that if the coil was investigated and found to be innocent . . . it could be the case of a faulty gas system.

So, there are two new leads to your Ford tractor mystery, Mr. Kamoda. Good luck—and if you need any more advice, contact Leonard Schott at 717/569-7063.

Where can I get Lazy Wife?

Not wasting his 15 cent stamp, Mr. Kamoda went on to ask where he could buy Lazy Wife pole beans.

He kept asking me questions I just couldn't answer easily.

I didn't have the Lazy Wife address at my finger tips. So I decided to let them do the walking in the yellow pages and made a few telephone calls.

Sheila: "Do you have Lazy Wife pole beans?"

Store manager: (long pause) "No."

Sheila: "Do you know where I can get them?"

Store manager: (curtly) "No."

Sheila: "Thanks anyway."

I struck out several times. And then, in a flash, I remembered having read about these same pole beans in the Pennsylvania Farmer magazine.

Grabbing the telephone, I quickly called Sally Morgan, an associate editor, and told her my problem.

Sheila: "Sally, I've got a reader who wants the address of where he can buy Lazy Wife pole beans."

Sally: (groan, mixed with chuckles) "We have people asking about those beans all the time. Hold on a minute."

Sally calls to one of her colleagues, Suzanne Halas, and asks her for the address.

Sally: "Here's the address where he can write. It's Maurice and Eva Hobbs, R2 Box 182, Emmitsburg, MD. 21727."

Sheila: "Thanks a lot, Sally."

Sally: "Sure . . . 'bye."

Cumberland Valley FFA installs honorary members

MECHANICSBURG — Two new honorary members were installed in the Cumberland Valley Chapter of the FFA Tuesday during the 26th annual banquet.

Edward Nolan, assistant principal of the Cumberland Valley High School and Tracy Gleim, local farmer and 1979 American Farmer degree recipient were honored by the group.

In addition to his honorary membership, Gleim was presented a House of Representatives Citation by Representative Harold F. Mowery, Jr.

1980 Keystone Farmers, Sam Coover and Randy Yost received congratulations from Daryl Beiler, North Central Regional Vice-President of the Pennsylvania FFA.

Star Chapter Farmer selected was Sam Coover. Randy Yost was selected the Star Chapter Agribusinessman.

Star Greenhand honors went to Mark Gutshall, Kim Brackbill and Larry Swartz.

Sam Coover was presented both the Chapter Leadership Award and the Chapter Scholarship Award.

During the ceremonies with approximately 200 people in attendance, foundation awards were presented to:

Sam Coover, dairy production; Steve Saphore, livestock production; Gary Crain, crop production; Tom Basehore, poultry production; Mark Gotshall, soil and water management; Rod Enck, fish and wildlife management; Rich Brown, agricultural electrification; Brad Wolf, forest management; Sam Coover, outdoor recreation; Gary Crain, agricultural mechanics; Steve Saphore, ornamental horticulture; Rick Krader, home improvement; Bob Mentzer, agricultural sales and service; Randy Yost, production; Steve Saphore, placement in agricultural sheep production and beef production; Kim Brackbill, swine production; Larry Swartz, fruit and vegetable production; and Randy Yost, extemporaneous public speaking.

Honorary members installed recently in the Cumberland Valley High School FFA were Edward Nolan, right, assistant principal at the school and Tracy Gleim, left, 1979 American Farmer recipient.

Sam Coover, left, was awarded the Star Chapter Farmer award as well as the Chapter Leadership Award and the Chapter Scholarship Award. Randy Yost, right, was honored as the Star Chapter Agribusinessman.

PA Beef Cookoff to be held

HARRISBURG — That original beef recipe you dreamed up could put a jingle in your pocket and win you fame if you enter the fifth annual Pennsylvania Beef Cook-Off Contest.

The Cook-Off, which will be held June 16 at John Wanamaker's Department Store in the Harrisburg East Mall, is open to all Pennsylvania residents 18 years or older. A minimum of six recipes will be selected for preparation in the final competition on June 16. A top prize of $100 and eligibility for the National Cook-Off this August in Scottsdale, Arizona, will be at stake.

According to the Agriculture Secretary, Penrose Hallowell, "Any beef dish using chuck, round, rump or fresh brisket cuts of beef in any form may be entered. The dish must contain a minimum of two pounds of beef and not more than five pounds of beef. The beef dishes will be judged on originality, taste and ease of preparation."

Complete details for entering the 1980 Pennsylvania Beef Cook-Off can be obtained from Mary Wilson, 862 Webster Drive, State College, PA 16801. Entries must be mailed by May 15. Recipes should be entered in triplicate with a brief biography of the entrant included.

The Cook-Off, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Beef Council and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Maryland delegates attend National 4-H Conference

President Jimmy Carter addressed 925 delegates and alumni friends of the 50th annual 4-H conference on the White House Lawn. The group visited the White House as part of its program for the annual conference. The President told the group that 4-H'ers help build unity in America's youth. Maryland 4-H'ers from Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Montgomery and Somerset counties were part of the delegation.

VVND birds destroyed

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Approximately 1,600 birds in a wholesale aviary in Alexandria, Va., the original source of the current outbreak of exotic Newcastle disease, VVND, have been destroyed by federal and state veterinarians.

In addition to efforts to eradicate the disease, a combined state-federal task force is continuing a search for all birds sold by the Virginia wholesaler. One of the birds was traced to a pet store in Camp Hill, Pa. A precautionary alert among poultrymen concerning VVND is being continued by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture.

Dairy committee supports HB1287, talks product promotion

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania State Grange Dairy Committee Wednesday reaffirmed its support of the proposed milk security fund.

"The Grange is a strong supporter of HB 1287 and hopes to see it passed as soon as possible," said State Grange Master Charles E. Wismer, Jr.

The committee expressed hope the bill could be through both houses of the state legislature and on the Governor's desk by June, the traditional dairy month.

While milk security was the top item on the committee's agenda, dairy promotion was number two, and occupied most of the time spent at the Harrisburg meeting.

The sentiment of the committee was strongly in support of milk promotion. But questions were raised about methods of promotion, legality of certain promotion methods, and what areas to promote.

Current Pennsylvania law does not allow producers to ask out of any promotion program. The law requires such programs be mandatory.

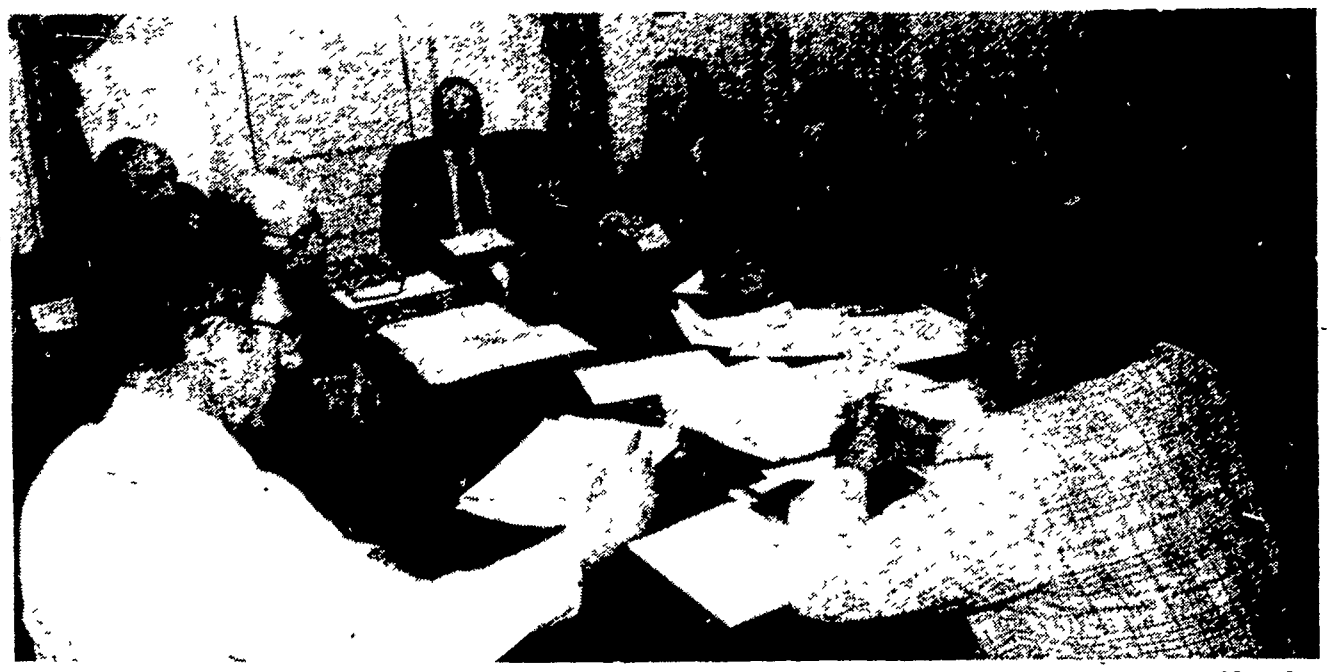
In addition, the current law does not allow producers to promote specific brand names. All check-off funds must be spent to promote the product in general, not a specific brand.

One reason why the Grangers are eager to see the milk security fund acted upon is that it will bring the subject of milk promotion to the forefront in both the Department of Agriculture and on Capitol Hill.

What members of the committee also noted was any change in the dairy promotion funding also will necessitate changes in other product promotion campaigns including potatoes, cherries, and apples, as well as milk.

Of course, a change in the law is not out of the question.

One organization which currently is using producer funds to support brand advertising is Lehigh Valley Farms. On hand to explain the system was Lehigh Valley Director of Marketing Vernon H. Hydorn.



Members of the State Grange Dairy Committee meeting Wednesday in Harrisburg included, from left, Feryl Treichler, Berks County, Dairy Committee Chairman; Harold Ely, Susquehanna County; Horace Prange, Chester County; Max Dewing, Bradford County; Fenton Murphy, NEDCO; Milford Kinsman, Bradford County; James Sherman, Erie County; and State Master Charles E. Wismer, Jr.

Lehigh has asked its Federal Order 4 producers to divert their seven cents contribution to their own advertising program rather than have the money go to the American Dairy Association's general dairy ads.

Hydorn showed the Grangers the advertisements and played the radio spots which Lehigh is using. The program basically was the one shown at Lehigh producer meetings.

The question of brand advertising versus general product advertising is likely to be contested within the Grange. Tioga Grange, Bradford County, said it was against brand advertising, but for ADA's program.

The Bradford Pomona Grange adopted the resolution, too.

A statewide dairy promotion program generally is favored by the organizations the Grangers surveyed. NEDCO, Milk Marketing Inc., Inter-State, Dairylea, Lehigh, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, the Grange and some other farm groups support the idea.

Eastern Co-op said it opposes the statewide dairy promotion package although it would support a positive letter with a voluntary ask-out.

Grange members also heard the question of hearings on the Community Nutrition Program on reconstituted milk should be

Starter fertilizers can cut corn stand

NORRISTOWN — For the past few years numerous reduced corn plant population problems have occurred throughout Pennsylvania. Investigations have fairly well confirmed that starter fertilizers were involved in creating some of the problems, reports Montgomery County Agent, Joseph H. Way.

Starter fertilizers on corn are always beneficial when planting low fertility fields. They also result in improved seedling vigor and early plant growth when soil temperatures are in the 50 to 60 degree range. On a high fertility field with warm soil temperature, no starter fertilizer crop growth response would be expected, explains Way.

A nutrient ratio such as 1-3-1 is a good starter fertilizer. It contains a high percentage of phosphate. One hundred to two hundred pounds of starter fertilizer is all that is needed to stimulate the early growth.

Germination and seedling injury is associated with the total amount of nitrogen and potash applied in the starter fertilizer application and with the proximity of its placement relative to the seed.

Keeping the total combined amount of nitrogen plus potash at not more than 45 to 50 pounds per acre and at least one inch away from the seed should avoid injury.

The use of urea and/or diammonium phosphate in the make-up of starter fertilizers has increased the potential seedling injury from the starter fertilizers. It would be advisable to determine if a given starter contained either of the above products before determining the rate of application.

This becomes more important if application rates reach and exceed the 45-pound level of nitrogen plus potash, or if placement is closer than one inch to the seed, he said.

In a Penn State greenhouse experiment this winter, urea and diammonium phosphate placed one inch deeper and one inch to the side of seed caused severe root injury. In fact, with a urea rate providing 45 pounds of actual nitrogen, all seedling root growth was eliminated on the fertilizer band side.

Additional research is needed to fully establish safe starter fertilizer rates using the urea and/or diammonium phosphate materials. In the meantime, adhering to the 45-pound maximum rate and keeping the placement two inches to the side of the seed when using products containing urea and/or diammonium phosphate will be safe, says Way.

decided within a week or two.

Pennsylvania Senator Richard Schweiker has sided with farmers in asking that there be no CNI hearing, Grangers were told. Several U.S. congressmen from Pennsylvania also have asked that there be no hearing.

Much discussion centered around the cholesterol question and the need for dairy farmers to tell their side of the story—probably through advertising.

Also raised was the question of whether Grangers would want to advocate only vaccinated animals be eligible for the brucellosis indemnity program. Pennsylvania now pays to have dairy cattle vaccinated.

Supporters noted such a resolution would force nobody to vaccinate cows, but would make it economically worthwhile to do so.

The Committee also said it would look into possible revision of the Minnesota-Wisconsin milk pricing formula.

The M-W formula, Washington County Grangers told the committee, is out of date, and does not reflect the current economic situation. The Washington County group asked the state committee to look into alternative pricing ideas.—CH

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In reference to an article about Beechdale Farm on page A15 of 4-19-80 issue, I would like to point out a gross error in your facts.

In reporting about the bull sold by Beechdale, I quote: "This bull calf was the top yearling weight bull in the Maryland bull test out of all the breeds entered." I am enclosing the final test report & have marked Dr. Conrads December bull which clearly shows that this bull was not the "top yearling weight" bull; as a matter of fact, 15 other bulls out of the total 27 bulls had heavier 365 day weights and that includes the non-exotic breeds.

We appreciate publicity on the Md. Bull Test, but we would prefer that the facts be correct.

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Lancaster County Conservation District, I wish to thank each and everyone of you who were involved in printing our news during our 6th Annual Tree Seedling Sale from January through March 12, 1980.

Our tree seedling sale was a great success and we sold 53,000 tree seedlings to County residents. Without the help of our local news media, and communications, I am sure that this would not have been possible.

We are already receiving telephone calls from people who want to be put on our mailing list for next year's tree seedling sale.

Again, thank you for your support of this annual project.

Bergland interview with operators who take other jobs to supplement their income. That group of 1.7 million provides about a tenth of the nation's food supply.

USDA plans to offer assistance to them through programs of rural development, production diversification, FmHA lending policies, water and sewerage systems, and aid to industries desiring to locate in rural areas.

Large farms are the ones that Bergland warns are in the most trouble right now, with credit problems. They're the group that produces half the food supply. But they're also the group, according to the Secretary, that perhaps least needs the aid of government programs, while collecting almost half of the support pricing assistance.

But, is it fair to those full-time farmers trying to make a total living from agriculture for the government to give so much aid to smaller ones subsidizing their production costs with an off-farm job?

Well, that's not completely fair, either, allows the Secretary; and the administration will examine and carefully weigh the needs of all groups. "We'll have to identify those programs that are fair, and those that are unfair," he reflects.

As Bergland told farmers at various stops throughout the day, there simply are no easy answers. In fact, earlier during his visit to the Beshore operation, one farmer admiringly commented that it "really took guts for him to come out here, with the way farmers feel about inflation and the interest rates."

"When I took this job, against the recommendation of my dad," the Secretary grins, "he warned me that 'no matter how hot the hen, it still takes 21 days to hatch the egg.' There will be no quick solutions to the complex problems of agriculture."

Standing on the firing line facing a cluster of frustrated farmers doesn't seem to fluster the articulate and business-like USDA boss, who knows his answers and pulls statistics from memory to back them up. He leaves you feeling that he really does care about farm families, and what's happening to them.

Born and raised a farmer in Roseau County, Minnesota, near the Canadian border, Bergland still owns his 600-acre grain operation there. His great-grandparents immigrated to America from south Norway. As a boy, he helped milk the family's eight cows, by hand, and separate the cream for sale to the small creamery nearby. When the area's creameries started to fold, the family parted with the dairy animals.

At the age of 21, he started farming "with nothing but a wife and a rented farm." In 1970, on his second try, he won his seat in Congress, defeating the Republican incumbent of several years.

The Berglands have six chidren ("I've got three in college at once," he noted), with one operating the family farm along with a farm machinery business.

Bergland's philosophy about credit probably traces back to that modest start in Roseau County's grain country. He strongly advises young farmers to "start carefully," citing the example of one neighbor back home who "started first class and is now in trouble."

"Finance what you must have and buy what you want only when you can afford it. Borrow carefully."

Questions on the grain embargo against Russia were usually some of the first tossed to the Secretary in meetings with farmers and the press. Just what had the embargo done to grain prices, and what about recent news reports that Argentina is selling to the Soviets at above market prices?

"Grain sales are booming. Sales have increased to Mexico, China, Japan, Australia, Canada, Eastern Europe and France," was his assurance, although he acknowledged that it's definitely a time for sellers to hold and buyers to stock up due to the prices.

"The left hand in Argentina doesn't know what the right is doing, and reports from there are conflicting. If they are selling to the Russians, then they're doing so at the expense of their regular customers, like the Italians, Japanese and Spanish. If they abandon those regular customers, we'll get'em.

"I've already been in contact with some of those customers and made a proposition to them. We're telling the Argentinians, 'You can have the Russians'.

"We know that milk production is down five percent in Russia in the past several months and there's a heavy culling of livestock with no expansions as was planned. Pork and poultry output is being curtailed; we guess meat production will be down five to ten percent. It's a major economic problem for them."

Reports of third party sales of grain and technology to the Soviets are largely unfounded, Bergland added. "The Commerce Department has very good control and I cannot imagine any leakage of anything important. And we've never sold them anything military since the war. When a ship leaves, we know where it's going; we have very good cooperation from the grain companies on this."

What about those grain companies? We hear conflicting reports, but how much of the grain reserves are they controlling, I wondered?

"Grain dealers aren't holding enough grain to wad a shotgun," was his graphic description. "Farmers are holding it. Dealers can't afford the cost of the inventory of large amounts of grain."

Restructuring of the farm taxing system is one area on which Bergland plans to concentrate. Estate taxes, the "sell the farm to pay the tax" syndrome, will continue to get administrative attention in those long range ag policy plans.

Another tax category Bergland expects to use the scissors on is in the investment credit laws.

Investment credit, he says, is another of those subsidies that favors the large over the small operator. Business capital, for instance, has used it to build huge hog set-ups, dragging down not only pork prices, but other meats, too.

The current situation, with prices below the cost of production, worries him.

But the worst thing that could happen, he warns, would be the wholesale abandonment of beef, pork and poultry production, inevitably leading to shortages.

"I'm recommending a cutback — cool it. Already sow and gilt numbers are coming down and egg hatching is down." However, prices aren't expected to rally much before midsummer.

"What river is that?" questioned the Secretary, eyeing the broad Susquehanna as it flowed under the blue sky and brilliant sunshine, lapping at trees just yards to the East of Route 11-15 where we were traveling.

"Is is good for fishing?"

Fishing is a pasttime of the Secretary, who admits that the hectic Washington pressures can sometimes get a big wearing. When that happens, he tries to find time to relax out on the waters of the Chesapeake Bay. A lover of the water, abundant in his home state of Minnesota, Bergland recalled the river that flowed just a short distance from his boyhood home. Occasionally, Bob Bergland, the national administrator, gets a mite homesick for the life of Bob Bergland, the farmer, especially in the Spring planting season, since "there's something about growing things that's good for the soul."

Bergland had told listeners earlier that he'd come to Pennsylvania to talk to dairy farmers on their industry problems. While dairymen are nervous over the Community Nutrition Institute's proposal to allow the reconstitution of milk powder for fluid sales, the Secretary said he hasn't had a chance to study in detail the 8000 comments that have poured into USDA on the proposal.

That proposal would still involve the use of dairy products, he said, since it would be based on non-fat powders. Most of the milk production being dried comes from New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and California, and is used in the South.

Bergland suggested that allowing the reconstitution might lead to greater demand in this part of the country, but lower the fluid milk demands in the South.

"Some dairy leaders in the Northeast say that all sounds fine, but that isn't the way it'll work. They also fear it would lead to adulteration. I can only unequivocably state that we have no intention of wrecking programs that would lead to reduce milk production, high prices, or a product the consumer wouldn't want."

Protein pricing of milk is another possibility the Agriculture Department is considering. Since California is pioneering in this program of milk payments, Bergland says he'll wait a while and watch their program to see how it works, before considering any major pricing changes in that direction.

That milk pricing might be part of what the Secretary sees as a change in the food policies of the government, now beginning to revert from a reactive type to one based on the needs of people.

"Once, if there was a surplus of a particular commodity, we'd find ways to get rid of it, such as the rice surpluses used in the Food for Peace program. Now we're more concerned with helping the consumer stretch his dollar further, based on good nutrition We're better off not drinking whiskey, not getting fat, and eating a balanced diet," he points out. "Eventually, that philosophy will help farmers."

Included in the changing food policy are some alterations in the school lunch program, especially in the area of defining exactly what's considered a "junk food". Local schools are being encouraged to be more innovative in their feeding programs, with the specific aim of cutting down on massive waste.

Research is also being done on more nutritious snack-type foods, like a tasty raisin-cereal blend that Bergland is impressed with.

Energy costs are closing in on farmers from all directions. Wouldn't the development of a viable grain alcohol program help reduce the fuel shortage, boost grain prices and cut back on meat and milk production due to higher feed costs?

"The problems in grain alcohol production are economic," he insists, reluctant to make any predictions on how that industry will develop. Ideally, a bushel of corn has the potential to yield two pounds of vegetable oil, feed for six chickens, four pounds of 60 percent protein supplement for the baking industry and two and one-half gallons of alcohol.

"Only large scale plants have the technology to extract all that; small mills can't do it", is his reason for skepticism of on-farm still efficiency. Research facilities in Peoria, Illinois, are working at the problem, but much of the over-all research is being done by small private experimenters. Many of the developments in alcohol fuels have come from Germany, which has been working in this field since Hitler ran his war machine the last two years on fuel from a variety of commodities.

As a cooperative member, I was curious about how the Secretary felt about the threats being leveled at cooperatives in the last couple of years.

He said he sees cooperatives as an absolute part of the agriculture system but figures that proprietary enterprises are a valuable safeguard against a "take over" by cooperatives.

"Their business practices should be controlled, not their size," he added. "I'm charged with watching them — and I do. I'm regarded as a friend of cooperatives, but I'm not their patsy."

Cooperatives dealing in the grain industry handle only ten percent of the exporting business, as compared to the 80-percent control of five of the giants of the business.

"We'll see that cooperatives are protected," Bergland promised.

Earlier, at the Beshore press conference, I had asked the Secretary about farmland purchases by foreign investors. He indicated he felt the eight million acres of land involved was not enough to get concerned about and that this nation had traditionally not discriminated against people just because they weren't natives.

"It's not something we want to stop on a federal level. If individual states want to, though, that's fine," is the administration's viewpoint of the situation.

Bergland says most of the foreign land owners are Canadians, with landholders from Great Britian in second place. Then come the Germans, Dutch and French investors, with the only known Arab purchase on land in Georgia. Most of that acreage, he says, is being farmed by American tenants, many of them young farmers using the rented places as a way to get started in the agriculture business.

(Turn to Page A29)

Although the federal watchdogs do keep tabs on land preservation efforts throughout the state, they maintain a hands-off attitude, preferring local jurisdiction over the issue. No federal money is allotted to any project until the "how," "if," and "when" is settled by locals, keeping in mind their area's ag preservation policies. In Bergland's opinion, that system is working just fine.

A green PennDOT sign warns me that the Selinsgrove Exit is just one mile away. That's the end of the line for this reporter.

But we have just a moment for one more subject that Bergland mentions, and one that he obviously takes some pride in. It's USDA's Center for Food and Nutrition, a spanking new research program being carried out in various universities and medical schools across the country. Purpose of the Center is to delve into some little-known areas of human nutrition.

"We know all about taking care of the dairy cow, her nutrient needs for production, but we know really very little about the human body. We do know there's a connection between some of the things we eat and how we feel. The mythology of animal fats is one we'll be looking at - there are too many stories written by too many people who know too little about it."

Citing prison studies as an example, Bergland noted that some incorrigibles, raised as children on substandard diets, showed marked mental changes when they were better fed. "It's too soon yet to make any sort of claims, but the possibilities are fantastic," he concluded.

Driver J. Fred King, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, pulled the compact into a parking lot along the highway. I told Secretary Bob Bergland just how much I appreciated the time he'd so graciously shared.

Crawling from the back seat, I promptly bumped my head on the roof. So much for exiting with grace and style.

Up ahead at the Wolf's Pen-Col farms at Millville, state police were arriving to direct traffic. A news team helicopter was landing in the pasture to set up its cameras and microphones. The campaign trail would wind for many more hours before a tired Secretary of Agriculture could relax — and maybe finally get the nap he so well deserved.

Lower Dauphin FFA Parliamentary team wins area competition

HUMMELSTOWN — The Parliamentary Procedure Team of the Lower Dauphin Future Farmers of America captured first place in the area Parliamentary Procedure Competition held at Big Springs High School recently.

The team consisted of FFA president Bill Capp, R1 Hershey; vice-president Tammy Yost, R1 Hershey; secretary Debbie Fleck, R2 Elizabethtown; treasurer, Dale Heibrider, R1 Middletown; reporter, Mike Geyer, R1 Middletown; reporter, Duane Herr, R1 Hershey; chaplain, Zantha Weaver, R1 Hershey; and student advisor, Todd James, R5 Elizabethtown. Vicki Kreiser, R2 Grantville, also attended the competition as an alternate.

Craig Cassel of Hummelstown entered the Extemporaneous Public Speaking Contest and took fifth place honors.

On May 8, the Parlimentary Procedure Team will travel to the Regional Competition to be held in Chambersburg.

Fashion revue held

CLEMENTON — The Camden County 4-H Spring Fashion Revue was held recently at the Cherry Hill Mall. Area 4-H'ers modeled garments they constructed as part of their 4-H clothing project.

Beginning sewers work on hand stitches and learn how to operate a sewing machine. As their skills advance, 4-H members learn to use different techniques with other types of fabric.

"It's not unusual for our clothing members, as they advance, to use tailoring techniques with wool," says Sara Crane Drabik, County 4-H Agent.

"Making ones' clothes is creative as well as cost efficient." "And today we're all concerned with cost!"

Representing Camden County in the fashion revue were Kelly Behrens, Laurie Feller, Kelly Galloway, Emily Lines, Jessica Miller, Amy Paulussen, Missy Smith, Tanya Ayres, Ann Curran, Susan Curran, Kim Lennox, Patricia Naudin, Maria Somerset, Rachel Somerset, Beth Brown, Kelly Hunter, Melissa Hyman, Missy Lines, Pam Sweeney, all of Cherry Hill. From Collingswood were Rosemary Beadling, Maryanne Doyle, Tammy Doyle, Cecelia Haney, Kelly O'Conner and Kim O'Conner, Terry Gilson, Lisa Post, and Sandy Trotter. From Stratford were Lisa Owens, and Sandy Scheurenbrand with Yvonne Cross and Janet Kratz representing Bellmawr.

Lancaster seeks Dairy Princess contestants

LANCASTER — Lancaster County's Dairy Princess Promotion Committee is seeking qualified contestants to enter the 1980 Lancaster County Dairy Princess Contest. This year's contest will be held June 21 at the Farm and Home Center. The evening will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner and the program at 7 p.m.

Chairmen for this year's event are Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Stauffer, Weidmansville Road, Ephrata. The Stauffers are being assisted by Co-chairmen Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Brenneman, Mount Joy R1.

To be eligible, contestants must be the daughter of a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager, herdsman or dairy farm owner during this year or must own more than one dairy animal prior to May 1, 1980. Girls must have completed their junior year of high school and not reach their 22nd birthday by December 31, 1980. Contestants must be single, and never married and cannot marry during her reign.

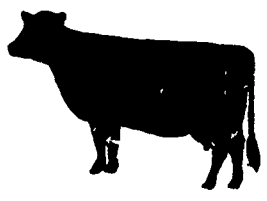
According to Barbara Stauffer, Lancaster County's winner will receive a wardrobe and will participate in the state training seminar in July. She will represent Lancaster County at the Dairy Princess contest in September. All contestants will receive valuable gifts and make lasting friendships.

Contestants will have the opportunity to promote the dairy industry during activities of the contest.

Barbara encouraged all eligible girls to enter and pointed out that high school seniors as well as college students can fulfill their responsibilities to the dairy industry. She stressed the opportunity for personal growth through sessions on poise and make-up.

The county winner will participate in the state Dairy Princess contest, and if selected, will win $300. The first and second runner-up also receive cash prizes. The state title is honorary and requires no interruption of school or regular employment plans.

Interested girls should contact Barbara at 717-733-4843 for applications and further information. Application deadline is May 31.



4-H is 4-U is cover theme for 1980 yearbook

CLEMENTON — "4-H is 4-U", the 1980 Yearbook theme, was chosen from 71 entries at the 4-H Yearbook Cover Design/Photo Contest held recently.

Danielle Carrigan, 13, of Saddle Up 4-H Club, is the creator of the winning theme. "Danille's theme will serve as the cover for our annual yearbook," said Donna MacNeir, 4-H program associate. "The yearbook is distributed at the 4-H Fair in August."

Honorable mention awards were given to 13 entires in the Yearbook Design category. They were: Harold Ewan, Margaret Ann Ewan and Karen Paolello of the Tansboro Trailblazers. Laurie Feller, Emily Lines of Make It & Bake It. Danielle Carrigan, Erica Schmidt of Saddle Up, Joyce Paolello of Cook & Hem Prep, Lisa Owen, Busy Sewers, Michele Stoll, Bad News Bakers, and Missy Lines of Pots & Pins.

Winners in the Photo Division were: Black and White single: 1-Erica Schmidt, Saddle Up; 2-Margaret Ann Ewan, Tansboro Trailblazers; and 3-Carol Paolello, Tansboro Trailblazers. Black and White group: 1-Sandy Trotter - Handy Dandy and 2-Rodney Price, Warwick Hills. Color Group - 1-Erica Schmidt, Saddle Up; 2-Carol Paolello, Tansboro Trailblazers and 3-Joyce Paolello, Tansboro Trailblazers. Color Single: 1-Erica Schmidt, Saddle Up; 2-Sandy Trotter, Handy Dandy; and 3-Carol Paolello, Tansboro Trailblazers.

Camden County 4-H youth learn pet care

CLEMENTON — Boys and girls in Camden County can experience the joys of owning and caring for a small animal through the 4-H pet care project.

Last year in New Jersey more than 23,000 youth participated in an animal care program.

With pets, members are provided with materials that guide them in selecting and caring for their own pets, and with information on the background, habits and activities of cats, dogs, fish, birds, hamsters and many other small animals.

Participants in the project learn to house, feed, handle, groom and give general care to their pets. In spending time with the animals they can develop responsibility, patience, understanding and sensitivity to the needs of living things.

Though day-to-day work with their pets, the young persons learn practical skills such as record-keeping and time-budgeting while they watch the animals grow and develop their own personalities, according to Dagmar Parker, Camden County 4-H Agent.

Over the years, the pet project has been offered through the traditional 4-H club format; recently some urban school systems have incorporated the program into their curricula.

For more information about 4-H pet care projects, call the Camden County 4-H office.

ZERO TURNING RADIUS MOWERS

INTRODUCING.. The Newest Innovation In Grass Mowing "The Energy Saver"

DIXON ZTR®

DIXON ZTR mowers save your time at every turn.

DIXON ZTR mowers save time every place ordinary mowers waste it: trimming corners, around trees, at every turn! That's Mowbility.

Owners tell us that Zero™ Turning Radius saves up to half their mowing time, and sometimes even more. They tell neighbors how easy the mower operates, how they enjoy using it, what a great job it does — and most of all, it leaves them mower time for fun.

But don't take our word for it; try it yourself. A few quick turns to get the feel of its simple hand levers, and before you know it you'll turn yourself into a DIXON owner! Come in for your free test drive at any one of these participating Dealers.

Sue Groff's kitchen invites visitors into its warmth

LAMPETER — The rich dark wainscoting and dark wood of the kitchen cabinets is complemented by the sunny pale yellows in the wallpaper, and together they make the kitchen of Sue and John R. Groff inviting and friendly.

The Groffs who operate a hog operation with 120 sows farrowing 4 times each year, recently completed an extensive remodeling of the kitchen and dining areas. Their kitchen will be part of the Lancaster County Farmers Association Kountry Kitchen Tour.

Sue spent hours stripping layers of old paint and varnish from the now beautiful wainscoting. The wood texture adds charm to the main kitchen.

Warm wood tones throughout the Groff kitchen add a cozy atmosphere. Bottles found in part of the remodeled utility room are displayed on the gallery shelf above the cabinets.

Adjoining the kitchen in what was once an old wash house, the Groff's have located a bright, streamlined laundry and utility room.

And from other doorways in the kitchen, an inviting colonial living room area complete with woodburning stove and a formal dining room with burnished wood furniture are visible.

Above the kitchen cabinets, a neat display of antique bottles and souvenir dishes holds special memories for the family. The bottles were found in the walls of the old wash house when the Groff's remodeled that room.

Tickets for the tour and a luncheon at Historic Strasburg are available on a first-come first-serve basis. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a check with $8.50 to Velma Hershey, Box 94, Kinzers PA 17535. Make the check payable to Lancaster County Farmers Association.

PIG STOMACH

1 average stomach
1 quart parcooked diced potatoes
1 pound fresh sausage (up to 2 pounds may be used)
1 tablespoon onion flakes
salt and pepper to taste
2 slices cubed bread

Mix all ingredients together. Wash and dry the stomach and fill with fat side out. Bake in covered roast pan in a slow oven, 200-250° F., 3-4 hours until tender and the outside is nice and brown. Serves 6.

HAM MEATLOAF

2½ pounds hamloaf (ground pork and ham)
2 pounds hamburger
3 eggs
¼-⅓ cup hot catsup
⅓-½ cup bread crumbs onion to taste enough milk to moisten
salt to taste

Mix and shape into 2 loaves, pour small quantity of catsup diluted in water over the loaves. Bake at 350°F. for 2 hours. Serves 8-10.

The formal dining area extends the warm family feeling of the kitchen. The wood and ironstone accents blend well with the colonial decor downstairs.

TEMIK®
It pays off in better yields.

The proof is in the performance.
Potato growers are proving it.

TEMIK provides superior aphid control, preventing the spreading of potato leafroll virus (which can later show up in costly tuber net necrosis), and protects against Colorado potato beetles, leafhoppers and fleabeetles — even organo-phosphate resistant species. TEMIK aldicarb also protects AGAINST NEMATODES AND SUPPRESSES Verticillium wilt.

So, don't take a chance. Get the best pesticide you can buy. Check with your pesticide supplier, or your neighbor. Then try TEMIK in your field. You'll see why the proof is in the performance.

Anaplasmosis

the hard frosts we have very year," he stated. "The sease is more prominent in e southwest where the ectors, blood-sucking in-ects, aren't killed by the old."

According to a text on ovine medicine, by eterinarians W.J. Gibbons, .J. Catcott, and J.F. mithcors, anaplasmosis as been recognized for ore than half a century as disease of major economic mportance to the cattle ndustry.

They say anaplasmosis is "an infectious and transmissible disease of cattle, characterized by progressive anemia".

Along with blood-sucking insects, like flies, mosquitos, and ticks, carrying the disease and infecting cattle, Dr. Carr pointed out the disease can be mechanically carried by man.

"If you are using dirty instruments when castrating calves or if you use the same needle when giving injections to several cattle, the blood of a positive animal can be carried to a healthy animal," he stated.

Carr also noted the disease can afflict most ruminants—that is deer, goats, and sheep.

One Adams County cattleman who is greatly concerned about what's being done to control the disease in Pennsylvania is Frank Darcey.

Last year, Darcey said, he had several cows that were diagnosed as having anaplasmosis.

Darcey said he knew something was wrong with several of his older cows when he noticed they looked "droopy" and stood along the fence with their heads down. He said the cows lost about 200 pounds and quit milking in a short period of time.

"When the veterinarian got to the farm and took blood samples, instead of being bright red, the cow's blood looked like pink champagne," he said.

In animals over 5 years old, Darcey pointed out, the stress on the cattle generally leads to death if it's not treated immediately.

In calves, he said, the animals appear sick for about a half hour and then they're fine. In two-year-olds, the animals look sick for about a half day, and then recover. But, once afflicted with the disease, these animals remain carriers unless they're treated, he added.

The treatment of anaplasmosis takes a lot of time and money, Darcey recalled. He said he treated his positive cattle with a drug that cost $20 a bottle, and it took a 500 cc bottle to treat each cow.

Unfortunately, the drug, if given to a pregnant cow, will cause an abortion, and Darcey said he lost a calf bred to a top Polled Hereford bull last Fall.

After treatment, the cow will come back into her milk and will be able to nurse her calf at her side, he noted. The administered antibiotic will cure the animal, but it will be susceptible to getting the disease over again.

The treatment of anaplasmosis required a lot of handling and labor, said Darcey. "The shots hurt the cows when we were giving the injections in the leg muscles—we were giving 50 cc's twice a day. So, we switched and started giving them a 100 cc injection directly into the stomach, after the veterinarian advised us it was okay."

Darcey said he had heard of a live virus vaccine, available in the Midwest but not allowed in Maryland and questioned in Pennsylvania, for the prevention of anaplasmosis. He said it involved a two shot series, administered to open cows.

The draw-back to the vaccine, he said, was that the whole herd had to be left unbred until the two shot series was completed. And then, he added, it requires a booster shot every year.

Darcey's concern over anaplasmosis in his area is well founded because he said he knows of several farms where there were positive diagnoses of the disease. One farm, he said, had 98 out of 500 animals tested come back with positive results. This herd is not being treated, he said.

In still another case, Darcey stated, a herd of commercial cattle was entirely positive when tested. Since then, all of these cattle have been shipped out of the area.

"A number of people were trying to blame the death of these cattle on the fact that they were being fed apple pumice—but it was anaplasmosis," Darcey said.

Cattle have not been the sole species plagued with the disease. A veterinary source noted that there have been several mysterious deaths in the southwestern part of Adams County in sheep and goat herds.

After the goats had the specific card test done on their blood, they were diagnosed as positive for anaplasmosis. A microscopic look at the blood turned up red blood cells that had the disease characteristics.

Several sheep have died suspiciously in the past year, too, noted the veterinarian.

It appears that anaplasmosis is a disease that is somewhat confined to Adams County's south western edge. But, said the source, a company that manufactures the vaccine for anaplasmosis from Fort Dodge, Iowa, has cited cases in other areas of the state.

What helps to spread the disease and hinders its control in Adams County, is the resident deer populations. The deer are protected on land owned by the national park in Gettysburg.

After the outbreak of anaplasmosis in the Gettyburg area last year, a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture stated, a special team was sent to run a surveillance of the area to watch for any spread of the disease. Farmers were offered free testing services by PDA, he said.

The first case was identified October 19, 1979 stated Dr. John Dick, a PDA veterinarian in charge of cattle. A total of 38 herds were tested with some reactors showing up in a couple of herds.

The last reported case of the disease was recorded on January 30, 1980.

Dr. Dick stated that as far as PDA was concerned the Farm Bureau supports national bargaining bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A U.S. House Agriculture subcommittee Friday began assessing testimony, presented by a score of witnesses at a field hearing in Sacramento, which gave heavy support to a proposed National Agricultural Bargaining Act, HR 3535.

The legislation, sponsored by Congressman Leon Panetta and others, is designed to provide farmers and their bargaining associations with more "clout" in negotiating with the nation's handlers and buyers of food. Under provisions of the bill, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would act as a mediator in arbitrating bargaining disputes.

Speaking on behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation as well as his own state, California Farm Bureau leader, Henry J. Voss, told the Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Information and Nutrition, that the trend of mergers in the food business makes it "no longer possible for the individual farmer — one on one — to sell to the man who owns the cannery or food processing firm.

"In the 1970's," Voss declared, "the multinational corporations took over the canning fruit industry. For example, Del Monte is owned and controlled by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and Libby's is owned by Nestle. A similar story could be told for most of the 200-plus commodity industries in California."

Robert Krug, president of the Washington State Potato Growers and an active member of Farm Bureau in that state, testified that there are some 300 potato producers he represents who must negotiate now with seven of the nine potato processors available in Washington and two counties of Oregon.

Krug said the existing federal law known as the Agricultural Fair Practices Act set the mood climate for HR 3535 but, in itself, is not sufficient to help growers help themselves because it has no enforcement provisions or machinery for negotiation of binding agreements. The new legislation, he said, would give producers an even break in the bargaining process.

An Ohio Farm Bureau board member and vegetable producer, Ralph Gillmor, submitted testimony for the subcommittee record showing that he was forced to retire from tomato production in his state because the buyers would only purchase two-thirds of the 30-ton-per-acre crop he produced after he headed a state tomato growers association and campaigned in behalf of the Agriculture Fair Practices Act.

He said the processors "have ways of controlling delivery, grading, etc. Sweetheart contracts were and still are very prevalent in our area to keep non-members from joining the growers association."

Others who supported the bill represented California producers of apricots, peaches, pears, walnuts, olives, tomatoes and a number of other vegetable crops.

The subcommittee was urged by William Thomas, executive vice president of the California Food Producers, Inc. (an advocacy arm for bargaining cooperatives) to conduct further field hearings throughout the nation.

Farm Bureau has made a request for similiar hearings to be held in the Northeast, Midwest and South.

Twin Valley parliamentary team wins Berks contest

ELVERSON — Eight members of the Twin Valley FFA Chapter cooperated to win the Berks County FFA Parliamentary Procedure Contest recently.

Conrad Weiser FFA chapter placed second with David Stauffer as president; Ernest Gelsinger, vice-president; Henry Noss, secretary; Sue Gromis, treasurer; Deb Miller, reporter; Kim Bauman, chaplain; Charles Nolt, sentinel, and Kevin Sattazahn as junior advisor.

Kutztown FFA team placed third with Keith Flicker as president; Bruce Latshaw as vice-president; Bill Zollers as secretary, Dean Shoemaker as treasurer; Dan Adams as reporter; Mark Latshaw as sentinel; Richard Savidge as chaplain; and Dean Bruno as junior advisor.

Twin Valley and Conrad Weiser teams are now eligible to participate in the area FFA contest against teams from Lebanon and Schuylkill counties.

Judges for the county contest were Robert Kramer from F.M. Browns in Sinking Springs and Clyde Myers, Associate Berks County Agent.

Quarantine

quarantine until lab testing shows they can be released."

Dr. Cable said there is still no clue as to the original source for the introduction of the disease into Pennsylvania after a six-year absence.

"This is still one of the big puzzles," he said.

Initial symptoms of pseudorabies are sneezing and coughing, followed by high temperature and dullness. As the virus manifests, animals show signs of trembling, incoordination, convulsions and eventually death.

The fatality rate is much higher among baby pigs than in weanlings, which usually recover if they live past the sixth day.

Carried by swine, pseudorabies is very contagious among other animals, such as cattle sheep, birds, dogs, cats and some wild species. It is usually fatal in these other animals in 36 to 48 hours.

It is not contagious to humans and there is no danger in eating pork, according to Dr. Cable.

Protective measures to be taken, Dr. Cable said, include keeping swine and cattle separated, purchasing swine from qualified pseudorabies tested herds only, isolating and testing replacements and new additions before introducing them to the herd and contacting a veterinarian immediately if any unexplained symptoms are seen in a swine herd.

Top regional FFA speakers picked

BY VIVIAN PAUL
Staff Correspondent

SCHNECKSVILLE — Over 100 members of the Future Farmers of America participated Wednesday in the regional parliamentary procedure and public speaking competition at the Lehigh County Community College. The event represents nearly 60 chapters throughout eastern Pennsylvania.

Deborah L. Miller, a student at Conrad Weiser High School in Berks County placed first in the FFA public speaking contest with her presentation, "American Farmer, Take a Bow."

Winner in the extemporaneous category was Howard Griest, Twin Valley School, speaking on "Building Agribusiness by Borrowing."

Barry Geib of Manheim Central took first place in the conservation category with his presentation titled "Water, Water Everywhere, But Not a Drop to Drink."

He listed several advantages to the Keystone Race Track site.

First of all, it would be available free. Track general manager Harry Rossi has offered the Track's 300 acres, all enclosed by fence, to the Department for such an event.

The Keystone Race Track, just outside of Philadelphia, is within 25 miles of about one-third of the state's population and within 50 miles of over half of Pennsylvania's citizens, Hallowell figures.

He said he sees the proposed state fair as a good opportunity to introduce agriculture to a large number of urban people who otherwise may never come into direct contact with farmers, livestock, and farm products.

Timing of the event would make it attractive to Philadelphia schools looking for educational field trips, he said.

James Sumner, director of the Department's Bureau of Markets, said the event could become a showcase for Pennsylvania products at a minimum of expense.

Several funding options are open. The state fair could become an offshoot of the Farm Show. Or, money could be requested from the state fair fund. That alternative would require a three year delay, by law, before money would be available.

Another option would be to go to the legislature for funds.

Hallowell said he is soliciting opinions on the proposed state fair from all farm organizations, breed associations, and interested farmers.

Comments and suggestions can be sent directly to the Secretary of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17120.

Corn reserve opened to 1979 non-participants

WASHINGTON, DC — Corn farmers who did not participate in the 1979 feed grain program will be allowed to place a limited quantity of corn in the farmer-owned grain reserve, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Bergland, who took the action following the April 11 signing of authorizing legislation by President Carter, said he did so to help farmers isolate additional corn stocks from the marketplace and strengthen market prices.

Bergland said this option for previously ineligible corn farmers will be available on a first-come, first serve basis until approximately 295 million bushels (7.5 million metric tons) of previously ineligible corn have been placed in the reserve, or May 15, whichever comes first.

Bergland said farmers who did participate in the 1979 feed grain program and who currently have corn under a regular 9-month price support loan will continue to be eligible to enter their grain into the reserve, regardless of how many bushels of previously ineligible corn go into the reserve.

Farmers who wish to take advantage of this change should contact their local county office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Program non-participants will receive the same reserve loan rate for their corn ($2.10 per bushel) as do program participants, but will not be eligible for the waiver of first-year interest charges. Non-participants will remain ineligible for USDA's regular 9-month price support loans, Bergland said.

USDA has been purchasing corn to help support prices, following the January 4 announcement by the president to suspend grain shipments to the Soviet Union in excess of 8 million metric tons per year. Since that announcement, the department has purchased approximately 59 million bushels (1.5 million tons) of corn and accepted into the farmer-owned grain reserve 197 million bushels (5.0 million tons) of corn.

The total quantity of corn now in the reserve is approximately 812 million bushels (20.6 million tons).

Quilt show planned

BOYERTOWN — The Boyertown Area Historical Society will hold its annual quilt show on Saturday, May 3, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, May 4, 12 Noon to 6 p.m. in the Society building at 43 S. Chestnut St., Boyertown.

The show, which features over 100 quilts, attracts hundreds of visitors. Some come to see the 19th century patchwork and applique examples. Active quilters come to see these and the modern, newly-created designs. For beginners, Society members will be busy stitching and happy to give advice to interested individuals. The quilts, old and new, are on loan from private individuals and, in most cases, have not been seen by the public prior to this show.

As an added attraction, quilts made by Mrs. Jane Blair of Spring Mill, Pa., will be on view. Mrs. Blair, a nationally-known quilter, has created incredible designs utilizing the patchwork method. Her quilts have been featured on the cover and in the pages of a nationally-distributed magazine. Visitors to the Show will be treated to a look at these special quilts.

Also on exhibit will be an unusual quilt made by Society members. It is composed of embroidered patches depicting the outline of a 1920's "flapper" girl. The patches date from the early 19th century and, when given to the Society, were partially completed. Society member, Mary Sands, embroidered those unfinished designs, and Mrs. Rosie Mutter, Quilt Show chairman, combined them into a completed quilt top.

Grasslands FFA chapter from Eastern Lancaster County High School won in the team competition of parliamentary procedure.

"I am extremely impressed with the quality of the speaking and of the manuscripts, and the confidence with which the contestants spoke," said Arnold Hillman, superintendent of the Kutztown Area Schools, a judge in the public speaking competition.

James Shadle, principal of the Blue Mountain Middle School, was a judge in the same competition.

In her presentation, Miller compared the challenge of farming to that of mountain climbing.

"As the mountain climber begins his upward journey, his mind is full of doubt and anxiety," she said.

But above him, urging him along, are three other climbers, Encouragement, Companionship, and Satisfaction. Each one gives of itself to help the climber reach his goal.

"Encouragement is a strong moving character who reminds the climber of what lies at the top of the mountain...Companionship is there to guide the climber and to make him see that he is not alone...Satisfaction waits at the top of the mountain for the climber and shows him just what it is that he has done."

Second and third place awards went to Douglas Hershberger, Solanco High School, Lancaster County with his talk entitled "Cry of the American Farm Boy," and Steve Imes, Oley, with "Food for Fuel."

Second place in the extemporaneous competition was won by James Tretter, Lehigh, with "FFA Tells the Story." Third place went to Bruce Latshaw, Kutztown, with "Our Roots in the Soil."

Judges in the extemporaneous category were Christopher Hering, language arts teacher at Kutztown High School and Herb Wetzel, associate county agent in Berks County.

Second and third place in the conservation competition went to Steve Kearns, Twin Valley, Berks County, speaking on "Integrated Pest Management," and Teresa C. Fink, Lehigh County, with her presentation titled "Will We Always Be Land of Plenty?"

That competition was judged by Marshall Haws, executive assistant of the Chester County Conservation District: Duane Pysher, district conservationist from Berks County: and John Schueller, a field representative from the Pennsylvania Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Nine chapters competed in the parliamentary procedure contest which was held in the adjacent Lehigh County Vo-Tech School.

Northern Lebanon and Annville Cleona chapters placed second and third.

Charles Lebo and Dale Davis of the Pennsylvania Department of Education and Boyd Gartley of Interstate Milk Producers' Cooperative, were judges.

The top three speakers in the individual categories and the top two teams will compete in the state finals at Penn State in June.

Warwick FFA honors Shotzberger and Landis

ROTHSVILLE — Gary Shotzberger and David Landis were named honorary chapter farmers at the annual Warwick FFA parent-member banquet held here in the Fire Hall, Thursday evening.

Shotzberger, a local farm machinery dealer has assisted the chapter numerous times, and Landis, a school board member initiated a swine chain for the club.

Kathy Snavely, Ted Shotzberger and Doug Pfautz were awarded Red Rose degrees during the evening's festivities.

The Lancaster County Bankers Award winner was Doug Snavely. Snavely and Russell Marks were honored as the club's Keystone degree recipients this year.

Marks received the DeKalb Award and was also named as Star Chapter Farmer during the awards presentation.

Two Star Greenhands were selected. They were: Loren Hosler and Dean Allison.

Those students presented proficiency awards and their categories were: Lois Wida, scholarship; Harold Eberly, swine production; Bart Tucker, poultry production; Ted Shotzberger, ag mechanics; Doug Pfautz, livestock production; Doug Snavely, ag placement; Todd Miller, beef production; Jim Metzler, nursery production; Bruce Strohm, forestry; Randy Hertzog, vegetables; Dean Long, home improvement; Cory Strohm, fish and wildlife; Kathy Snavely, horse production; and Daryl Bowman, ornamental horticulture.

USDA identifies chronic problem packer

WASHINGTON, D.C — The Colonial Provision Company, Inc., a Boston, Mass., meat packing plant, has been identified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as a "chronic problem" plant.

Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services, said the firm, located at 1100 Massachussetts Ave., was designated a chronic problem plant after three reviews. The reviews, by compliance officers of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service, showed operating conditions that could lead to adulterated meat product, Foreman said.

Federally-inspected meat and poultry plants are publicly named as chronic problem plants if they consistently operate at minimum standards for safety and labeling. Any plant that is identified as such is notified that inspection may be withdrawn unless satisfactory improvements are made.

"Although plant sanitation deficiencies have been corrected by Colonial," Foreman said, "we are concerned by the apparent failure of the firm to operate an effective and comprehensive plant sanitation program since September 1978, which led to its being identified a chronic problem plant."

Foreman said intensified inspection coverage is being given to the Colonial plant to assure that all products bearing the federal mark of inspection are in compliance with wholesomeness and labeling requirements of the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

The Colonial Provision Company, Inc., is the fourth federally-inspected plant to be identified as a chronic problem plant under procedures first announced in March 1978, Foreman said.

There are some 7000 meat and poultry plants under federal inspection.

"If two consecutive follow-up reviews by FSQS show acceptable conditions, the Colonial plant will be removed from the chronic problem classification and the public notified," Foreman said.

USDA is responsible for ensuring safe, wholesome and properly labeled meat and poultry products under provisions of the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act.

First lady to grace Farm-City festival

MT. JOY — Ginny Thornburgh, wife of Governor Dick Thornburgh, and Cabinet members' wives will participate Wednesday, April 30th at 1:00 p.m., in a "Farm - City Festival" event at the farm of Elvin and Marion Brennenman of R1 Mt. Joy.

The purpose of the meeting is to highlight a statewide program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association to gain understanding between farm and non-farm people. PFA is a general farm organization with more than 22,500 family members in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Nellie Crawford, chairman of the PFA Women's Committee, announced that the 54 county associations affiliated with the state unit will be holding similar meetings throughout the state.

"Agriculture in Pennsylvania is the second largest industry in the state," she said. "Only steel is bigger than agriculture."

Mrs. Crawford explained that agriculture and related business employes more than 11,000 Pennsylvania citizens, and that "it is important that people in the city and those in agriculture understand how they are dependent upon each other."

She also said that other states, affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation, will be holding similar events in all states, except Alaska.

cases of anaplasmosis in the Gettysburg area are closed. He said there will be no formal program for the disease eradication because it is a disease that can be treated with drugs. It's up to the owner to treat it, he added.

Dick stated that the anaplasmosis problem originated from one primary herd in Adams County and that herd had been dispersed. He stated that findings of their surveillance showed few neighboring herds with a high percentage of positives.

With tetracycline treatment it appears that anaplasmosis can be cured in cattle herds afflicted with the disease, but the task ahead seems insurmountable and expensive. Veterinary diagnoses, treatment methods, carriers, and untreated herds are obstacles that need to be hurdled quickly.

As pointed out by Dr. Carr, he has treated close to 15 cases this year already, and the fly season in Pennsylvania has just begun.

The statement of a veterinariany source sums up the anaplasmosis situation at the present time. "We don't really know where we are."

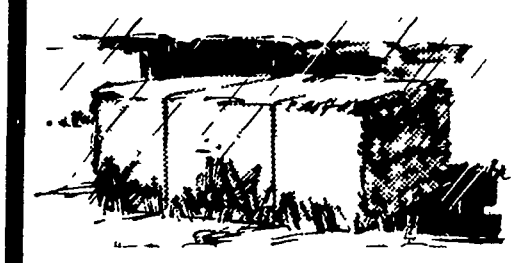
IN THE SPRINGTIME A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY TURNS... ...TO HAYMAKING!

WHICH DO YOU FANCY?

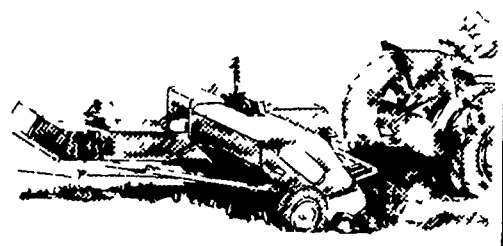
BEAT THE BALES WITH THE BLUES

Compared to the high cost of baled hay, Harvestore processed haylage is like profit out of the Blue.

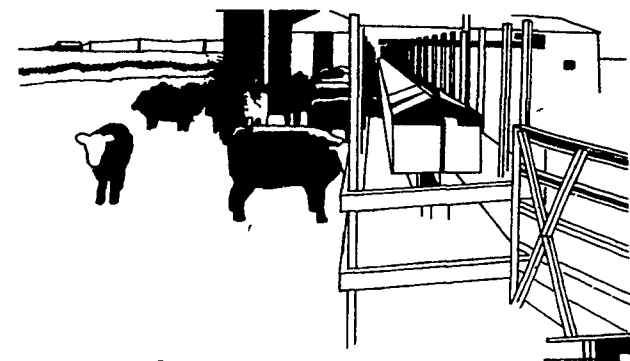


Field losses. If your hay gets wet, you'll lose nutrients. And every time you handle a bale, leaves shatter.

The haybaler. Equipment to bale doesn't come cheap. Plus all the gasoline, twine, repair bills and hard labor haybaling entails.



The crew. Labor is hard to find anytime to manhandle a hay crop from field to feeding.



Make short work of feeding with the Harvestore System.

You've bucked your last hay bale. Harvest crop as medium moisture haylage. Less time in the field means less chance of weather damage. No more haying crews. And storage and handling losses are virtually eliminated. Besides, Harvestore processed haylage is an extremely palatable feed.

Is the Harvestore System expensive? Not compared to baling hay!

Take a closer look at estate tax law

BY SHEILA MILLER

Last week we looked at the basic definition of estate planning as defined by Webster. In this week's third article in the series, we will study how the Federal government defines estate taxes and how their interpretation can affect farm families.

The federal definition of estate tax states "it is a tax imposed upon the transfer of a decedent's property to beneficiaries. Unlike a State inheritance tax that is imposed upon each beneifciary of the estate and is based on the size of the inheritance and the relationship of the beneficiary to the decedent, the federal estate tax is imposed upon the entire estate, which is primarily liable for its payment."

For a quick review, remember the word decedent refers to the deceased and the first federal estate tax was implemented in 1939.

From that time until 1976, the federal rules and regulations saw little change in over thirty-five years.

But, in 1976's Tax Reform Act and the 1978 Revenue Act, U.S. legislators decided it was time to update the estate tax rules and regulations, and as a result, new guidlelines were drawn up.

These rules and regulations were published in a booklet entitled 'A Guide to Federal Estate and Gift Taxation, Publication 448'. It was put together by the Department of Treasury's Internal Revenue Service.

This publication 'clears up' the question of who has to pay the federal inheritance tax, when it must be paid, and the correct procedures for paying.

Before you tackle reading and deciphering the bureaucratic fine print, arm yourself with a magnifying glass and a dictionary.

To save you some eye strain, basically the rules say that anyone who is a citizen or resident of the U.S. and dies leaving an estate worth over $161,500 in 1980, or $175,000 in 1981 and thereafter must, file an estate tax return. This return, Form 706, is required to be submitted to IRS within 9 months from the date of death

Publication 448 provides the necessary tables to figure out how much an estate owes to the government. It also gives payment procedures, and tells how an individual estate can get time extensions for settling the tax obligations.

Publication 448 would be a handy reference guide for anyone planning to devise a method of handling their estate, but it probably will have to be used in consultation with a Certified Public Accountant and/or your attorney. (These publications are for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C. 20402. The stock number is 048-004-01592-7.)

The government publication points out that an extension of time will be granted to pay the estate taxes if there is a hardship case involving farms or other closely held businesses.

If an extension is granted, tax payments can be made over a ten-year period, during which time the government has a lien against the property. Before the property could be sold, the lien would have to be satisfied.

Whether the estate involves a farm or a closely held business, the amount of the taxation is based on a percentage of the total appraised value of the decedent's property. It can range from 18 percent to 70 percent for estates worth up to $10,000 and over $5,000,000 respectively.

Now that you basically see what's happening with the federal estate taxes, take a deep breath and get ready for another tax that will help to knock the wind out of your sails. Meet the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania's inheritance tax.

In an effort not to miss out on the possible avenue for tax dollars, Pennsylvania legislators drew up the state's inheritance laws. Along with the big bite taken out of the estate by Uncle Sam, the Commonwealth tacks on an inheritance tax to the tune of 6 percent for lineal descendents (children, grandchildren) and 15 percent for all others.

The federal government, however, does grant some relief for the estate's heirs in the form of deductions for such things as the decedent's medical and burial costs, charity contributions, debts, attorney and executor fees, appraisal fees and court costs.

Exclusion, deductions, credit, and exemptions—trying to understand what you can legally claim when settling an estate can start your head spinning and make you think that filing your yearly 1040 Income Tax Form was a breeze.

Richard Denison, manager of the legal services for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, recalled the first estate tax exemption was given back in 1942, just three years after the federal tax was implemented. He noted the total amount of the credit was $60,000.

"If you go back even to the 1950's and look at prices," Denison said, "the average farm size was about 90 acres, valued at about $200 an acre. This meant the land was worth about $18,000.

"If you include the value of cattle and equipment, and put a price tag of $40,000 on that, it still totals less than $60,000 for the gross estate

"Today, the size of farms have increased. And with inflation, the value of the land and the farm assets have made estate taxes a real problem.

"Trying to compare the maximum exemption allowed today, at $161,563, to the first exemption of $60,000 back in 1942—there is just no way to make a real comparison. The portion of the estate exempt from taxes hasn't kept up with inflation".

Denison pointed out that PFA had proposed legislation in 1976 when the tax reform law was being made to have the exemption increased to $250,000. This amount, he said, would then have increased each year with the Consumer Price Index. But the 1976 tax reform was passed without incorporating PFA's suggestion.

With today's farms valued with price tags easily reaching and passing the million dollar mark, farmers find themselves with estate headaches that have to be faced if the farms are to go to the next generation. "Because of this dilemna", Denison said, "most farmers are taking a look at estate planning with greater interest."

"Estate planning is putting down on paper where you are financially today. It's getting all assets accumulated together, and looking at what your goals are in life," Denison said.

"You need to ask yourself, 'How am I going to share my economic gains with my family during my lifetime, and how much do I need for my retirement years'. Then it's time to work out the simplest and most efficient way to transfer the estate to your beneficiaries after your death."

He added he feels there are four objectives to estate planning: 1. to look after the surviving spouse in the manner to which they're accustomed to living until the end of their days; 2. to look after any minor or special children; 3. to be fair and equitable to all heirs and see the farm continues in the next generation; and 4. to meet all of the above and keep the taxes at a minimum.

Denison stressed the word equitable does not mean equal. His reasoning behind this statement comes from his analysis of a farm's productivity.

"The farm operation runs on a curve," he said. "Generally, the farm is purchased when the farm couple are in the age range of 20 to 25 years old. In the early years, it's a struggle to get the land and the cows producing to perfection.

"By the time they reach their 40's and on until they're 55 years old, things start running more smoothly. They have unpaid labor with their children, and they have learned from their younger day mistakes.

"After the age of 55, the operation starts falling off. The children have gone off to school or left the farm, and the question keeps coming up 'What's the point of going on with the hard work of farming?'.

"Here's when the next generation should be brought into the farm if they want in. But, unless some of the assets are trasferred over to the son or daughter that returns to the farm, the value of the parents' estate will continue to grow.

"Because most of this growth is due to the son's or daughter's efforts, it would not be fair to that individual to divide up the estate into equal portions with the other children that have left the farm."

An estate that is properly planned can help to get the farming operation into the next generation with the greatest ease, hold down tax costs, and carry out the wishes of the decedent.

According to Denison, the most important tool in estate planning is proper will structure.

We will be taking a closer look at the purpose and effectiveness of the 'Last Will and Testament' in the next issue of Lancaster Farming.

Farmers hit hard by inflation program

UNIVERSITY PARK — There will be more than just belt tightening when the effects of Carter's new inflation fighting program hits farmers, says Penn State Economist Louis Moore

Already faced with predicted losses of 20 to 25 percent in net income due to spiraling production costs, Pennsylvania farmers will face a new round of monetary battles as they compete for high interest loans they need to meet seasonal production costs.

"It used to be that banks would loan money almost automatically to farmers but now banks are much more selective," says Moore. Farmers are going to have to pay 15 to 18 percent for loans they negotiated last year for eight percent.

Moore cites the example of a farmer in 1978 who bought 200 head of feeder cattle and borrowed $70,000 at an interest rate of 7.5 percent. That year his interest cost him $5,250.

This year that same farmer could only afford 150 head of cattle for around $70,000 however, at 15 percent his interest amounts to over $10,000

A typical cow-calf operator could have purchased 60 head of bred heifers for $18,000 in 1976 and borrowed the money at 6.5 percent or $1170 dollars interest.

In 1980, 60 head would cost $48,000 and the interest at 15 percent would be $7200, over six times what it cost four years earlier.

No relief is in sight for the farmer for at least the next few months, since during the last few months consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 17.2 percent.

AAMP asks change in slaughter regulations

ELIZABETHTOWN — American Association of Meat Processors has written to USDA asking for an immediate suspension of the portion of the humane slaughtering regulation that requires water to be provided at all times in holding pens.

The Association said that most industry representatives, veterinarians, and plant operators it talked to also understood that in the proposal for the new regulation water would be required in pens after the animal was held there for 24 hours or more. Feed is also required after 24 hours.

AAMP pointed out that most animals do not drink strange water for at least 24 hours after arrival in the plants and that they are typically not in the pens for more than 8 to 12 hours.

The Association said most pens in small plants are outdoor holding areas and that, if the Department enforces the regulation to require water at all times, most of these small slaughtering plants will have to enclose the pin areas or provide heating systems to prevent the water from freezing in colder months.

Water in this area is normally not necessary and can pose a hazard for animals and plant personnel when it is splashed in cold weather since icing conditions can occur, AAMP said.

The Association called for a stay of enforcement of the water-at-all-times rule pending a review of the situation.

Flea market planned

WILLOW STREET — The Willow Street Vocational Technical School will sponsor a flea market, Saturday, May 3, from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Items to be sold include cutting boards, dog houses, gun cabinets, wheel barrels, "old fashioned" coal buckets and lamps, match buckets, scenic illustrations and fine art pieces, "art" memo pads, "free" permanents, wreaths, dried & silk flower arrangements, and terraniums.

All proceeds will be donated to the Willow Street Fire Company Building Fund.

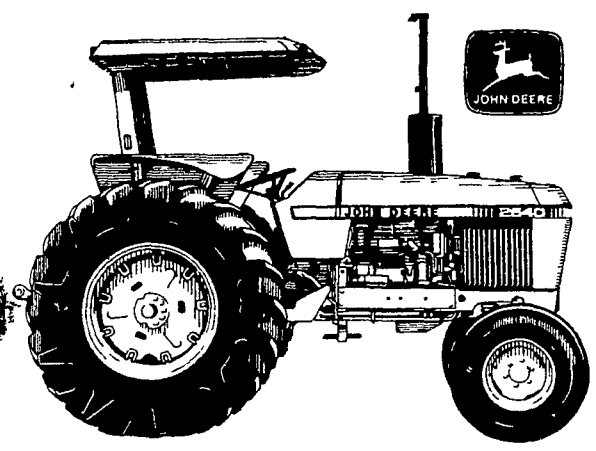
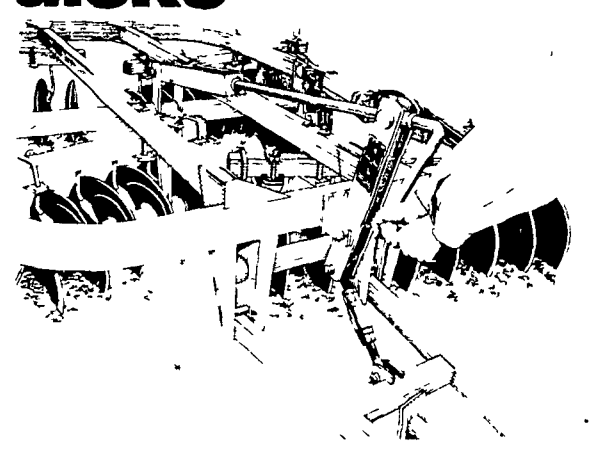
NEW PROFILES OF PERFORMANCE



See a real field and feedlot performer — the John Deere 70-hp 2640

Its hard to find a tractor versatile enough to tackle tough tillage jobs, yet maneuverable enough to take on feedlot chores But that s just the type of performance you'll find in the 70-hp John Deere 2640 Tractor In the field, you get famous lugging ability that combines with a tough 8-speed transmission and Load-and-Depth Control hitch to get the job done on time In the feedlot, the closed-center hydraulic system really shines, providing instant hydraulic response whether you re steering or operating a loader Plus, there are a lot of new performance features like a 20 percent increase in hitch lift capacity, electronic instrument panel and more comfortable adjustable seat For the field or the feedlot, see the John Deere 2640

Simply tough disks



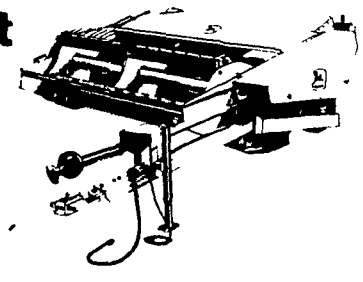
Now level disking is quick and easy...just turn one crank to fine-tune fore/aft leveling adjustments

Leave your wrenches in the tractor New drawn Level-Action™ Disks now have a simple crank adjustment Eliminate a center ridge or valley by rotating this crank A decal by the crank shows even inexperienced help how to make the only adjustment needed in most fields

There are more improvements, too New bearings on 200 and 300 Series Disks have a 2-year replacement warranty Exclusive Dura-Flex™ bearings have 4-lip seals that lock in grease and block out dirt

See us for new John Deere Disks in widths and weights that match your needs

Tackle the toughest haying conditions and come out on top with a 9¼-foot cut 1209



Here s a mower/conditioner that s ideal when your crop and field conditions aren t The 1209 is fearless in the field because it s built strong to handle thick hay stands – yet nimble enough to float over rough terrain Come in and let us show you the features of the 1209 – like adjustable guard angle adjustable roll pressure intermittent-cleat conditioner rolls – that will give you the upper hand this hay season

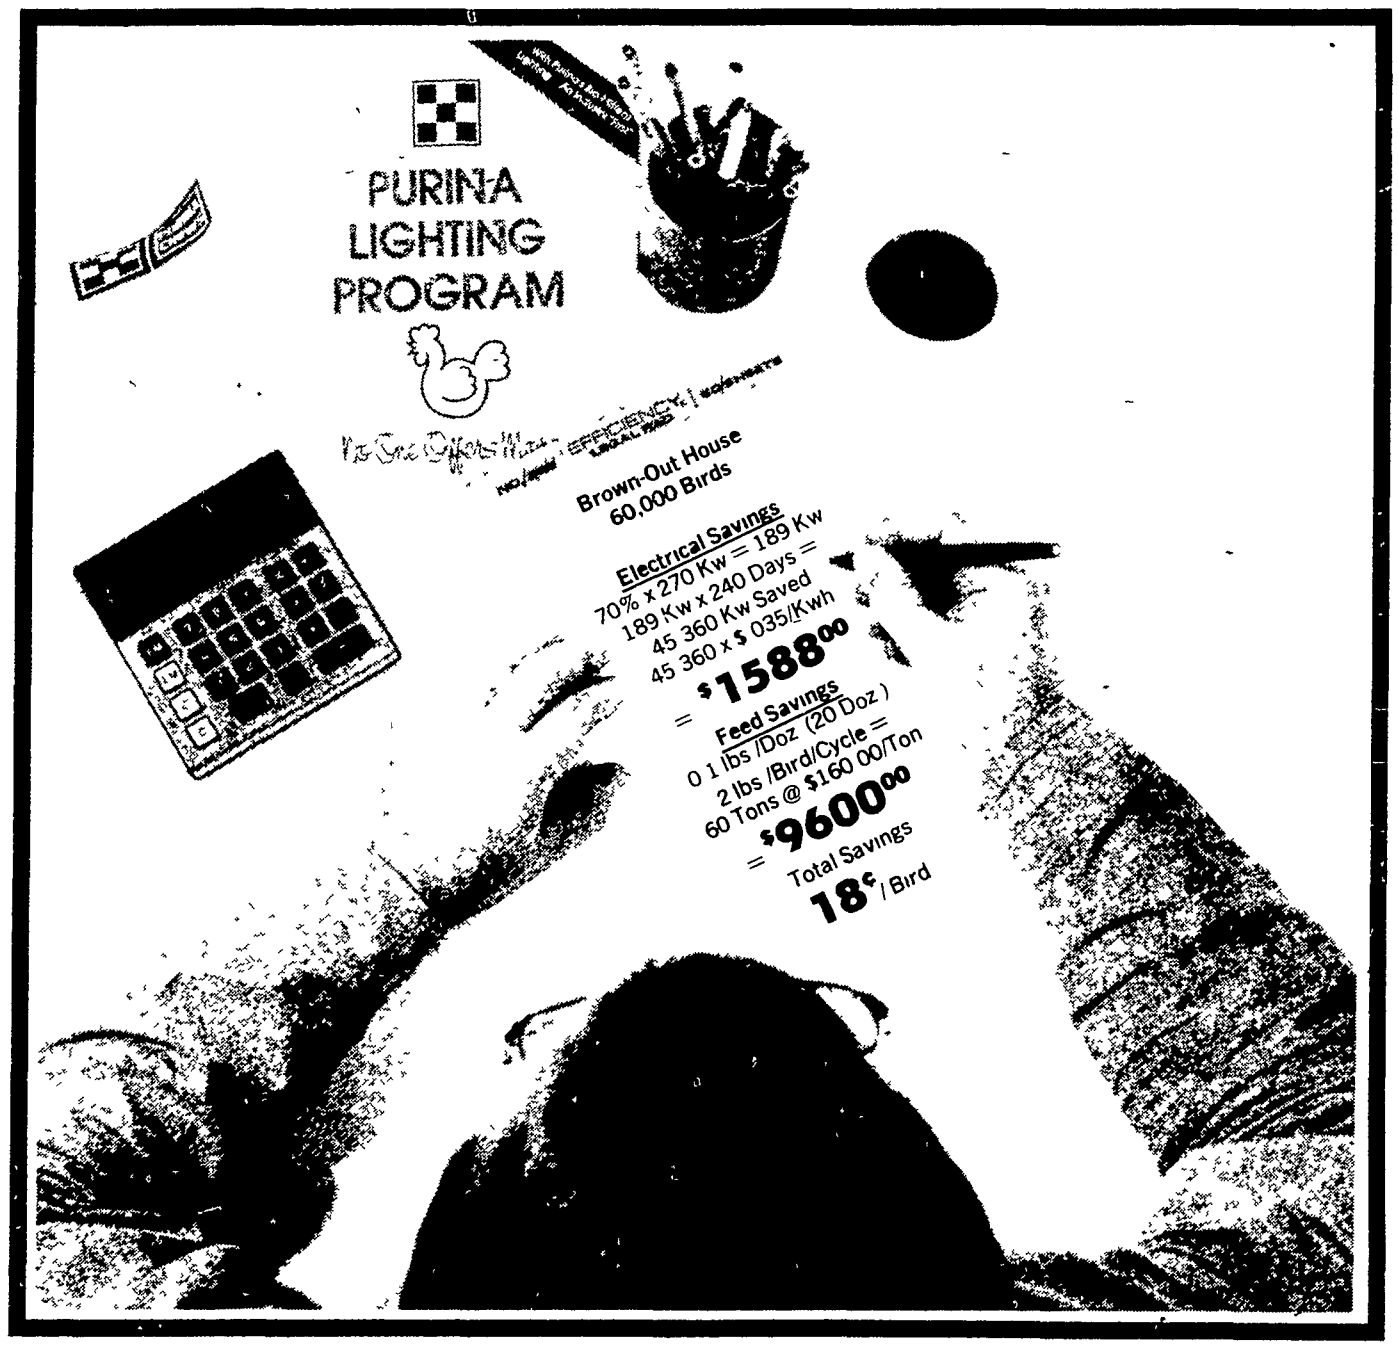
Over One Million Lancaster County Birds Have Proven

Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Makes Cents



Field results of Bio-Mittent lighting programs have confirmed what Purina research results have shown. Here are what three managers have had to say about their results:

"The most significant feature of the intermittent lighting program is a feed savings over birds that previously were on a full-fed program. I feel there is a potential for 40¢/bird increased income from using the intermittent lighting program. Mostly, this income is a feed savings, but some is associated with increases in egg size plus the potential for an extra 3 or 4 eggs per bird year" (Note, hens in some cases in this operation had been mechanically restricted with smaller egg size resulting.)

"Intermittent lighting does not affect production. It does definitely save electricity. We experience less mortaility with the experimental group (Bio-Mittent lighting). We have put four more houses on the program."

"I don't know why producers don't use Bio-Mittent™ Lighting just to save some electricity. We've also seen some improvement in feed conversion even though our house isn't light-tight."

J I Case Needs a Few New Dealers

We are looking for enterprising businessmen who understand agricultural equipment retailing "We" being the J I Case Company Founded in 1842, Case now has over 3,000 dealers world-wide and an unsurpassed reputation for product quality, reliability and current growth

If you think that the farm equipment business requires involvement with many different product lines, you'll find Case an interesting exception As a Case Tractor Specialist, you concentrate on one major product line, agricultural tractors and related tillage tools, because Case builds nothing but tractors for the farm market

Case Dealers sell twelve basic tractors, 43 to 300 horsepower Five models are under 90 horsepower, four are the exciting new 90 series - 108 to 180 horsepower, and our three big four-wheel drive tractors lead the booming 4WD market

High potential marketing areas are available now Profitable Case light construction and outdoor power equipment contracts may also be available As a Case Tractor Specialist, you would benefit from liberal financing policies, attractive consumer terms and time-proven Case Rental Systems

Case product and policy advantages, when combined with your own aggressive sales and management abilities, will afford you the opportunity to realize an excellent return on your investment

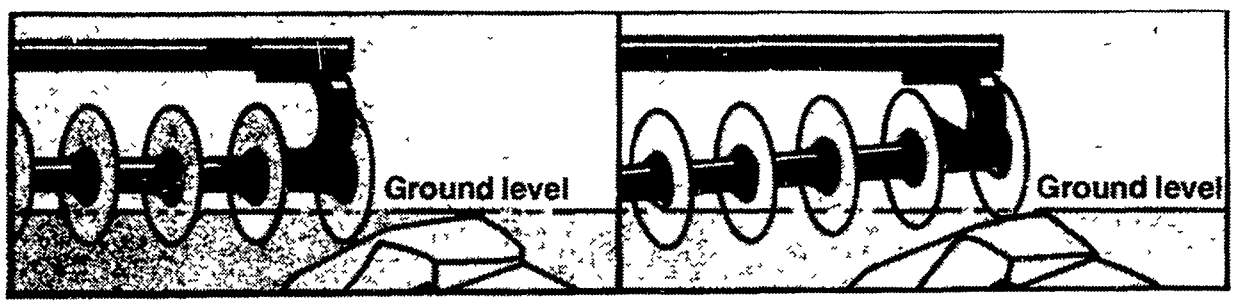
KRAUSE

Rock-Flex™ Disc LOVES ROCKS!

A Krause innovation! The "Rock Flex" bearing arm was invented by Krause in 1965



Normal working depth.

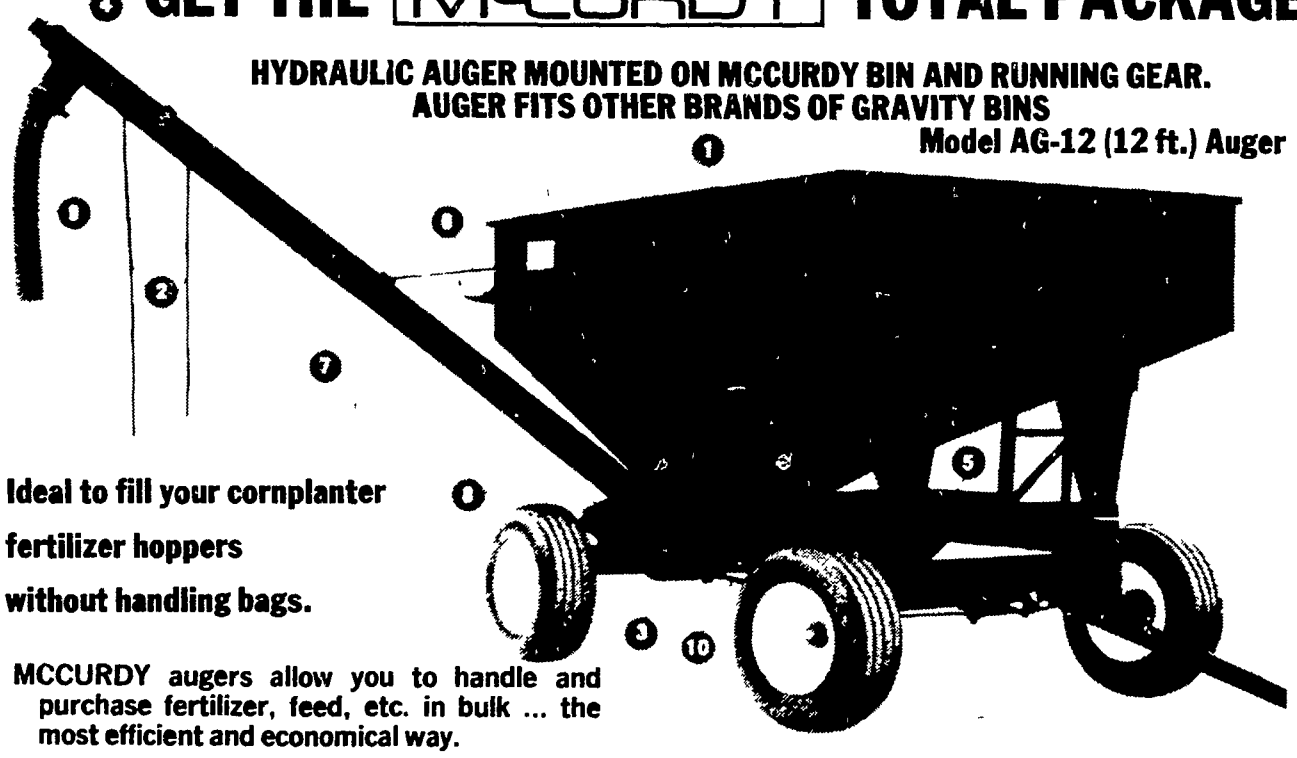
GET THE McCURDY TOTAL PACKAGE

HYDRAULIC AUGER MOUNTED ON MCCURDY BIN AND RUNNING GEAR.
AUGER FITS OTHER BRANDS OF GRAVITY BINS

Model AG-12 (12 ft.) Auger



Ideal to fill your cornplanter fertilizer hoppers without handling bags.

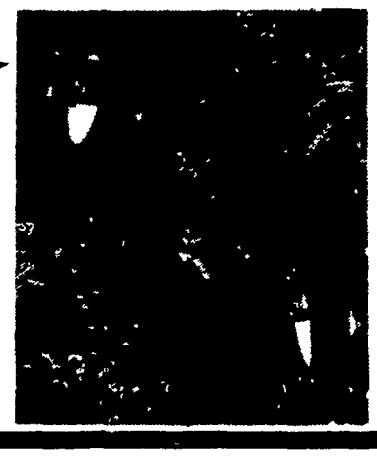
MCCURDY augers allow you to handle and purchase fertilizer, feed, etc. in bulk ... the most efficient and economical way.

CONSTRUCTION AND ADAPTABILITY FEATURES

1. For easy one-man operation, a winch is now included at no extra cost with all augers.
2. Handy durable, color-coded nylon rope pulls provide safe, easy On & Off control of auger.
3. Open hopper design permits flushing of entire tube and hopper with a garden hose.
4. Our hydraulic system will permit a capacity of up to 1,500 pounds of fertilizer per minute. Minimum volume from tractor 8 GPM.
5. Coupling head for hose to tractor.
6. Transport bracket and adjustable safety chain are standard equipment.
7. Auger tube is 16-ga. steel, 6" in diameter by 12' long, and will swing in a 180 degrees arc. Spiral flighting is 12-ga.
8. Auger can be detached by simply removing one nut and hose bracket. Ideal for use in a feed bin or truck.
9. New, durable 36" Neoprene spout is included as standard equipment.
10. 84" long hydraulic hoses with coupling are also included as standard equipment.

PUT THIS GEAR UNDER YOUR McCURDY TOTAL PACKAGE

SPECIAL ON McCURDY 8 & 10 TON WAGON GEARS



Tongue swings a full 180°, eliminating broken or bent tongues while letting you turn sharper, on standard 7 and 10 ton gear.

IT'S THE RIGHT SIZED 4-WD. BUILT FOR PTO WORK.

Protect gear boxes and drive lines with a Case 4-WD tractor. Only Case has solid frame design (no bend-in-the-middle) . . . and solid state 4-way selective steering, allowing for straight line PTO work. You can operate with front wheel steering — just like a 2-WD tractor. Or with the rear wheels slightly angled (crabbed). You can keep PTO drive shafts straight from engine through the implement gear box, eliminating the damaging side thrust so common with articulated tractors. Get the greatest possible return on your 4-WD investment. Get a Case 90 series — 175 to 253 PTO hp* (130-188 kW). No other 4-WD handles PTO work like a Case.

HERE ARE TWO FIRSTS FOR PENNSYLVANIA:

One, the first Satellite Challenge Feeder sold and installed on a Pennsylvania farm, and the first Challenge Feeder we have sold in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

This unique feeder is a compact assembly of two challenge feeders and the concentrate Storage bin - all in one package, which can be located in most feed lots without any further concrete work.

This unique feeder was installed on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoopes Farm at West Grove, Pennsylvania in December, 1979.

Mr. Hoopes states that this feeder is operating exactly as it is designed to do and he is sure that the cows like it very much from the usage it is getting. He can't verify how much more milk he is producing because he just started a new milking parlor in October and his cows need to get adjusted to all the new facilities.

He also is using the new DV 300 parlor model milker control in his parlor and is really sold on their performance.

Why not stop in at Mr. and Mrs. Hoopes farm and look over his new system and talk to them about their challenge feeder. He will be happy to talk about them.

We will be getting two more Satellite Challenge Feeders in stock in April - so if you are interested in this outstanding feeding mechanism that controls the amount of concentrate you want to feed your cows, just give us a call at 301-658-6923, and talk to any of our service personnel about your needs.

YORKSHIRE SERVICE BOARS
12 Boars for April Service $275 & up
(40 Service Boars Available at our April 25th Sale)
Our boars have proven they are high in economic values Our SPARTAN boar received the sire of the year award. Our KICK boar produced the most efficient pen of purebred hogs, spring test (1976) 2.96 lbs. feed per/lb. gain. 1979 our HUSTLE boar sired the highest indexing boar, highest indexing pen of Yorkshire, the highest selling, the leanest, most efficient pen of Yorkshires (2.63 per lb. gain), the soundest pen with an average score of 7.4 and had an average daily gain of 1.92. These pigs were all put on feed as small pigs and were in competition with hogs of all other breeds.

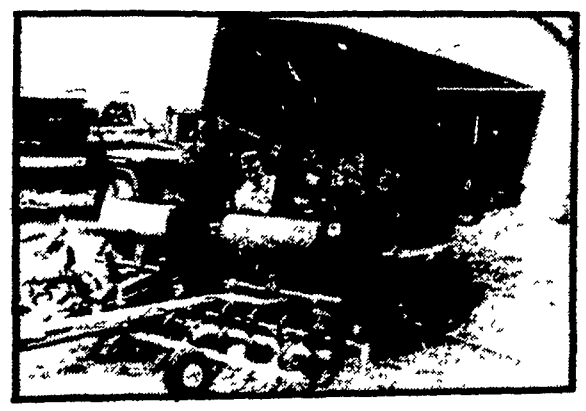
UFT Meharry Division HYDRAULIC DRIVEN AUGERS



Dump Truck Augers

This 13½-foot long, 6-inch diameter auger will unload 800 to 1000 lbs of fertilizer per minute into your planter or spreader, will move shelled corn into your bin or drier, or will unload feed to your feeders

The auger is powered by a hydraulic motor requiring 8 gallons per minute pressure at 1000 psi

The optional control box consists of two valves — one for raising and lowering the bed and one for operating the auger

Hi I'm Bill Markey, poultry operations manager for Keystone Mills. If you had the opportunity to attend the P.E.2. rally on Thursday, you will understand my enthusiasm in your need to take advantage of increased efficiencies as a means of lowering costs. My hats off to Purina research for designing programs for maximum savings to you the poultryman. With the escalating cost of money today we must offer to you these advantages. Bio-Mitter Lighting saves many dollars wasted on electricity, but better yet, the potential for feed savings are much greater. A specific ventillation program and the patented Nutri-Cycle feeding program provide many additional dollars in savings. If you are interested in having a complete savings survey of your poultry operation, return the request coupon to me.

With sincere savings to you, Bill

Bartels celebrate their 35th anniversary flying high over Alaska

Dorothy Bartels points out the vast expanse of territory Alaska covers from the lowest tip near the state of Washington in the lower right corner to the Arctic area in upper left corner of map.

Dorothy displays an Arctic circle certificate stating that husband Albe passed over the Arctic Circle, August 11, 1979 during a flight to Kotzebue, o 250 miles from Russia.

By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Staff Correspondent

Albert and Dorothy Bartels left their six children at home last August, packed their bags and set out on a ten day celebration of their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Their anniversary trip was a group trip to the United States' largest and most unsettled state, Alaska. Looking back some eight months since the trip, Dorothy says she and her husband were very surprised at what they saw and what they learned.

The Chester County couple had spent their years together as dairy farmers. They were unaccustomed to traveling great distances or even thinking about traveling far from home. But they agreed and made plans to take part in the agriculture-sponsored tour to Alaska last Summer anyway. Their six children were by then old enough to handle things at home.

The Bartels have a milking herd of 110 Holsteins with an additional 75 heifers on their farm in Penn Township near West Grove. Two of their four sons, Richard and Edward, are employed fulltime on the family farm and they and the youngest son, David who still lives at home took over the chores. These three took care of home while Dorothy and Albert set off on their adventure.

The excitement and interest in learning about other areas of the World became a lasting souvenier of their trip, Dorothy explained. She kept a detailed scrapbook of the trip including photos, postcards, plane tickets, cruise ship newsletters, certificates stating passing over the artic circle all combined in chronological order according to the daily itinerary of the ten-day excursion. Actually the trip exceeded the ten days for the Bartels. They had to add a few extra days away because they had to fly to Seattle, Washington first and then from there back to Pennsylvania after the scheduled ten-day Alaskan tour.

All the tour group met at Seattle, August 3, 1979, and did some sight-seeing there for the day. From there they rode a bus to Vancouver. On the way into Canada, Dorothy said the customs officials were not particularly thorough in their procedures. The tour guide took care of the customs arrangements. However, later in the tour they were subject to a thorough personal search at Kotzebue which is only 250 miles away from Russia.

To give an idea of the immensity of the territory she and her husband and the rest of the group covered, Dorothy pointed out that Alaska is twice as large as the state of Texas or about one-fifth the size of the contiguous United States. The area is so vast and transportation is so limited that one in sixteen have pilots licenses and one in forty-four of the Alaskan population has his own plane. The tour group flew several times from point to point in Alaska as well as ride a bus and took a 1000 mile cruise up the inland waterway.

Methods of transportation were as varied as the climate, terrain and degree of settlement throughout the vast state.

Dorothy said there was so much to see and experience that all their days and nights were filled with new information.

The first leg of the journey involved a boat cruise of 1000 miles up the inland waterway from Vancouver, through Ketchikan, with a one day stop then on to Juneau, the capital of the state. While at Ketchikan, Dorothy and the rest of the group got to see the native Alaskan Indians and their customs. The typical totem poles abounded in the area. A feature of the Indian lifestyle which amused Dorothy was the custom of leaving the poles and roofs of the winter homes behind and taking the sides along to the summer homes fishing waters. Mother Nature took acre of the house cleaning of the winter home until the family returned the next season.

After seeing the Indians of Ketchikan for a day, the cruise went on to Juneau. There they transferred to a day boat for the ride up to Skagway. The scenery was unbelievable with its Glacier Bay water set against steep glacier of cliffs, sometimes as high as 9000 feet. While feeling totally safe on the cruise boat and the day boat as they made their way through the steep-sided waterways, Dorothy said she was less confident about the bus trip over steep gravel roads from Skagway to Whitehorse, in the Yukon Territory.

The customs getting into the Yukon Territory were also more strict than at Vancouver. Noted for its history of gold mining, the sights of the area included the Golden Nugget and other buildings all built on pilings because the perma frost in the ground will not make stable foundation sites.

Whitehorse was typically settled with log cabins with sod roofs which helped insulate from the cold. At the time this trip was at Whitehorse, it was summer time and gardens abounded with sweet peas, carnations and bachelor buttons with such intensity of color that Dorothy said it is impossible to imagine; one has to be there to see all the color.

The group left Whitehorse at midnight by plane to fly to Fairbanks, Alaska, to tour the University of Alaska grounds. Although it was midnight, there were only five minutes of darkness before the sun's rays emerged again. Fairbanks is situated in a hollow of a deep bowl-shaped terrain, Dorothy explained. Surrounded by mountains on all sides, it is very cold and very dry. While most of the trip brought unexpected warm weather, the stop over in Fairbanks reminded the group of the cold in the northern parts of the state. Instead of seeing parking meters along the streets, Dorothy said there were battery stations where drivers would plug in their car batteries to allow them to start in the extreme cold.

While at Fairbanks, the group also saw a "frozen fog" or as Dorothy explained it, the atmospheric condition when the fog appears to be frozen in suspension. During the stay at Fairbanks, the group also saw the enormous pipeline and the University of Alaska's farm and museum. From Fairbanks they flew to Anchorage.

While at Anchorage, the group visited the Palmer University Farms and saw the huge-sized produce growing there. The heads of cabbage averaged a weight of 86 pounds apiece, Dorothy recalled. Besides the modern farming taking place at Anchorage, the Indian population was living out its existence in the midst of government subsidy and ancient customs. Fishing and hunting for furs, living in sod houses built on poles for support and using dog sleds and snowmobiles, were typical of the Indian lifestyle.

The northernmost part of the journey was to Kotzebue. The flight from Anchorage to Kotzebue brought the travellers within 250 miles of Russia. Just before reaching Kotzebue, the plane flew over the arctic Circle and all passengers were given certificates stating that passage.

Homestead Notes

The Black candle in front of Dorothy is a crude oil candle and the white candle is made from seal oil. The Bartels kept a detailed scrapbook of their trip.

At Kotzebue Dorothy said she could see the tundra and its vegetation. Although blueberry bushes were only eight inches high, they still produced regular-sized fruit.

A typical situation travelers often find when searching for authentic souvenirs was that found at Kotzebue as well. Dorothy explained that the area has jade type deposits, but the Eskimos usually sell the jade to visitors after it has been fashioned into ornaments in Japan. At present, training is taking place so that the natives can fashion their own merchandise.

From Kotzebue the group started back home with a flight to Anchorage on an inlet in the Gulf of Alaska, then back to Seattle. Along with memories of spectacular sites, Dorothy brought back candles made from both crude oil and seal oil. The crude oil candle was black while the seal oil candle was a creamy white color. She also bought a miniature wooden totem pole.

The state was opened to extensive tourism commerce in 1972, Dorothy explained and she "would highly recommend it." She packed clothes for cold weather and found them practically useless most of the time because the areas they were in were warmed by the ocean air. She mentioned that the Grange which served the group a supper had told them that the projected legislation to make much of Alaska a wilderness area would greatly hinder the tourism and their established farming enterprises.

Recipe Swap

In response to our request for diabetic recipes, we have one for Oatmeal Cookies. The entire batch of approximately 4 dozen cookies contains only 381 grams carboydrate, 63 grams protein and 170 grams of fat, according Charlotte Hill, the sender.

In addition, we have more cool and nutritious blender breakfasts to offer today. So whether you're watching your carbohydrates, or watching the clock, we've got what you need.

DIABETIC OATMEAL COOKIES

1½ cups fork-stirred, all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup margarine
1½ cups quick cooking oats
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 egg whites
½ cup skim milk
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped (medium fine) nuts

On waxed paper, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium saucepan over low heat, melt the margarine. Turn off the heat and stir in the oats, sugar and vanilla.

In a small bowl beat the egg whites, only until frothy, stir into the oats mixture. Stir in the flour mixture in 3 additions, alternating with the milk, just until blended.

Drop by level tablespoonfuls a few inches apart, onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375° F. until lightly browned on bottoms or 10-12 minutes. Yields approximately 4 dozen cookies. Entire recipe has 381 grams of carbohydrate, 63 grams of protein and 170 grams of fat.

Charlotte Hill, Blairsville

NATURAL BREAKFAST NOG

1 egg
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon honey, molasses or sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla, nutmeg or cinnamon

APPLE SIDE UP

1 egg
¾ cup apple juice
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon honey
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

SPIZZERINKTUM

1 egg
¾ cup cranberry juice
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice

In each of the 3 above recipes, combine all ingredients in a blender container and turn on frappe for a few seconds. Blend until smooth and frothy.

QUESTION: I'd like a recipe for a good butter baste for barbecued chicken (one which does not use tomatoes).

Kay Gibble, Lititz

because the wilderness action prohibits all motorized vehicles.

Another concern expressed to the group came from the Indian bus dirver who attends a university in Washington during the school year and drives tour buses during the Summer. She explained that the Indian custom holds that the children belong to the mother, that uncles teach their nephews to hunt and fish and that women pass on the history and stories from generation to generation by word of mouth. In addition to the historical perspective of material responsibility being heavy, the institution of welfare for the Indians and Eskimos has worsened the father's and husband's status. The trend as the bus driver experienced it in her coummunity was toward less and less responsibility falling upon the male.

With 94 per cent of the land being owned by the United States Government, private individuals have very little area available to own or build upon Dorothy said. The cost of a house worth $65,000 in the contiguous United States may be as high as $400,000 in Alaska, Dorothy explained. Alaska is a beautiful state Dorothy agreed. Just what government controls will do to its people remains to be seen.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Whenever I see an empty farmhouse, it always arouses unpleasant thoughts in my mind. Why does it have to be so dilapidated? Where are the former occupants now? How can it be returned to a useful purpose?

Back in the 1940's, I remember being impressed by the great number of empty houses in Ohio and Indiana. Up to that point I hadn't noticed many in Lancaster County. Although, I'll have to admit that a large brick one stood empty for 15 years on my parents farm. It was one of those casualties of combining two farms and only needing one house.

For a number of years, renters used the dwelling but it gradually needed more and more repairs. Finally it was used by "summer people", as it stood along the Conestoga and swimming, boating and fishing were conveniently nearby. When it stood unoccupied, the living room was used to strip tobacco and I'm amazed that the boards didn't warp from the dampness.

The reason that I know and care is because this same room is now my living room. I'm told that tramps, who walked the roads all summer, often camped in front of our corner fireplace on cool and rainy nights.

But now there is a great interest in restoring homes that are almost 200 years old. Ours was not in need of restoring! No one had ever changed it very much from its original design during all those years, although we can see where a bake oven was installed in the one wall of our present dining room. Later this was replaced by a large walk-in stone fireplace and bake oven, now part of our kitchen.

When we moved here we only needed to add electricity, heat and water.

Now when I see the remains of a house, set back from the road, with only a few walls remaining, a lilac bush or two and a few trees; I feel sad as I think of what could have been.

Delicious food for bridal showers

Elegant or informal - a shower of good food

Bridal shower season is upon us, and while the experts say the trend is back to more traditional weddings, young couples today are still exercising the right to choose from a wide variety of informal weddings as well. Today's bridal shower recipes reflect this freedom.

The scrumptious recipes we've offered today are great for entertaining anytime. While pretty and elegant enough for the more traditional bride, they are equally suited for use in casual situations such as a bride-groom picnic.

Along with already familiar selections such as Swedish Meat Balls and Baked Alaska Pie, we have recipes for two delicious new snack breads, Carrot Sticks and Parmesan Fingers. Pizza Popcorn would be a hit at an office shower, and Buttery Blue Pecan Treats with the luscious taste of whole pecan halves and butter would appeal to even the most sophisticated guests.

So whether you're planning a shower for that special bride, or planning a party for the boss, why not dazzle them with some of today's recipes.

LEMON CHEESECAKE PIE

1 3½-ounce can flaked coconut
¼ cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 cups cottage cheese
1¾ cups milk
2 3¾-ounce packages lemon flavor instant pudding and pie filling
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
½ cup dairy sour cream
chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 325° F. For crust, combine coconut and nuts in a small bowl. Stir in butter. Press firmly and evenly against bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake 15-20 minutes, or until coconut is light golden brown. Cool. For filling beat cottage cheese until smooth in a small mixing bowl; set aside. Prepare pudding mix according to package directions using 1¾ cups milk. Stir in cottage cheese and lemon peel. Turn into pie shell. Top with sour cream and nuts. Chill 2 to 3 hours. (Pie should be served the same day as made).

TUNA-CHEESE CANAPES

1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 6½-ounce can tuna, drained and flaked
¼ cup sweet pickle relish
¼ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons sliced green onions with tops
1 1-pound loaf of unsliced white sandwich bread butter, softened

Combine cheese, tuna, relish, sour cream and onion. Remove crusts from bread. Slice bread lengthwise into four 3x7 inch strips. Place on foil-lined baking pan. Butter one side of each strip, then spread about ⅓ cup of the cheese mixture on each. Broil 4 inches from the source of heat until cheese melts. Cut into 1½ inch pieces.

COUNTRY GARDEN SALAD MOLD

1 3-ounce package lemon flavor gelatin
1 3-ounce package lime flavor gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 cup cold water
1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup chopped pimento
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 tablespoon prepared vinegar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper

Combine gelatins in a large bowl. Pour boiling water over gelatins. Stir until dissolved, then stir in cold water. Chill until partially set. Whip cottage cheese in a small mixing bowl until fairly smooth. Fold in celery, pimento, vinegar, mustard, onion, salt and pepper. Fold cottage cheese mixture into gelatin. Turn into 5-cup mold. Chill until firm.

CARROT STICKS

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon orange extract
2 eggs
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg¼teaspoon cloves
1 cup finely grated raw carrots
½ cup currants
¼ cup finely chopped mixed candied fruit
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
confectioners sugar

Cream butter and gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Blend in orange extract. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and cloves. Combine carrots, currants, candied fruit and orange peel. Coat fruit mixture with 2 tablespoons flour mixture. Gradually add remaining flour mixture to creamed mixture. Stir in fruit mixture. Turn into buttered 9-inch square baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350° F. oven 25-30 minutes. Cool on wire rack. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and cut into bars. Yields approximately 24 bars.

PARMESAN FINGERS

1 13¾-ounce package hot roll mix
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese melted butter
grated Parmesan cheese

Prepare roll mix according to package directions adding ¼ cup Parmesan cheese along with mix. Let rise as directed. Pinch off pieces of dough and shape into rolls about 3-inches long and ¾-inch wide. Place on buttered baking sheet. Let rise again as directed. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in a preheated 400° F. oven 12-15 minutes.

BUTTERY BLUE PECAN TREATS

½ cup butter
½ cup Blue cheese
4 dozen pecan halves

Combine butter and cheese until well mixed. Spread one tablespoon of mixture between 2 pecan halves. Chill 1 to 2 hours before serving.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

2 pounds ground beef
2 eggs
1 cup dry bread crumbs
1½ cups milk
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
1(10½-ounce) can condensed beef broth
1 teaspoon dill weed

Combine meat, eggs, crumbs, ½ cup milk, onion, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Mix lightly. Shape into approximately 7 dozen 1-inch balls. Brown in butter over medium heat. Place meat balls in 2-quart casserole. Reserve ¼ cup pan drippings. Stir flour into drippings and mix until blended. Add beef broth, 1 cup milk and dill weed. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour over meat balls. Bake in a preheated 325° F. oven, 20 minutes. Makes 10 servings.

This Lemon Cheesecake Pie is an elegant dessert that's simple to prepare. Only the crust requires time in the oven. The crust, a combination of coconut, melted butter and pecans, bakes in just 15 minutes. The filling's even easier, it requires no cooking at all. And the topping is a unique touch of dairy sour cream instead of the usual meringue. Just slip the pie into the refrigerator to chill for a few hours, and impress those bridal shower guests.

PENNSYLVANIA MILK PUNCH

2 cups milk
1 cup vanilla ice cream
1 pint lime sherbet
1 cup lemon-lime soda

Mix above ingredients in blender until frothy. Serves 6.

BAKED ALASKA

1 cup all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons confectioners sugar
½ cup butter
⅓ cup finely chopped nuts
2 pints cherry ice cream, softened
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ cup granulated sugar

For crust, beat together flour, sugar and butter until well blended. Stir in nuts. Press onto bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate building up edge; prick with fork. Bake in preheated 350° F. oven 15-18 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool completely on wire rack.

For filling, spoon 1 pint cherry ice cream into completely cooled crust; pack down with back of spoon Freeze. Repeat with vanilla ice cream and remaining 1 pint cherry ice cream. Cover with plastic wrap and freeze until firm.

Just before serving, prepare meringue. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add cream of tartar; beat until soft peaks form. Remove plastic wrap from pie and spread meringue over ice cream, sealing edges to crust. Place pie on wooden board. Bake in preheated 500° F. oven 1 to 3 minutes or until meringue is lightly browned. Serve immediately. 8 servings.

PIZZA POPCORN

⅓ cup butter
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon crushed oregano
½ teaspoon crushed basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon onion powder
10 cups freshly popped popcorn

Melt butter and add Parmesan cheese and seasonings Pour over popcorn in shallow baking pan. Stir to mix Heat in preheated 300° F. oven, 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Yields about 10 cups.

BLUE CHEESE BALL

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ cup chopped parsley

In a small mixing bowl, beat together cream cheese, Blue cheese and onion until smooth. Chill for ease in handling. Shape into ball and wrap in protective wrapping. Chill. Just before serving, roll in chopped parsley.

BEEF SAUSAGE BALLS

Mix 1 ounce of sausage seasoning into 3 pounds of ground beef or season with sage and a bit of savory. Make into meat balls. Brown in a fry pan and serve hot. Keep these in your freezer. Take out as many as you need and have instant hors d'oeuvres.

OVERSTUFFED MUSHROOMS

2 pounds medium-sized mushrooms
1 package 8-ounce cream cheese, softened
1 can 4½-ounces deviled ham
2 tablespoons finely chopped stuffed olives
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 teaspoons onion powder
¼ teaspoon ground turmeric pinch ground black pepper diced pimento

Rinse mushrooms, and pat dry. Remove stems from mushrooms and set caps aside. In a medium bowl, mix cream cheese, deviled ham, chopped olives, mustard, onion powder, turmeric and black pepper. Spoon or pipe into mushroom caps. Garnish with a pimento. Yields approximately 50 stuffed mushrooms.

HAM BALLS

1 cup cottage cheese, well drained
4 cups ground cooked ham
1 cup ground dill pickles, drained
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Mash cottage cheese with a fork. Add ham, pickles, bread crumbs, mustard and cloves; mix lightly. Shape mixture into balls about 1-inch in diameter. Place on baking sheet. Bake 15-20 minutes or until warmed through. Serve immediately with mustard or a mustard sauce.

SPANISH CREAM

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
6 tablespoons sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix gelatin, 2 tablespoons sugar and salt thoroughly in top of double boiler. Beat egg yolks and milk together, add to gelatin. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Chill to unbeaten egg consistency. Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar. Fold in gelatin mixture. Turn into 4 cup mold or individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate and serve plain or with whipped cream or fruit.

If you prefer mixture to separate into two layers forming a jelly on bottom with custard on top, do not chill mixtures to unbeaten egg white consistency. After removing heat, stir in vanilla, fold in beaten egg whites and turn into mold.

Honey rates up for 1980

LEESPORT — Loan and purchase rates for the 1980 crop of honey will average 50.3 cents per pound, 6.4 cents more than in 1979, according to a spokesman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The 1980 level represents 60 percent of the April 1980 adjusted parity price of 83.9 cents per pound.

Loans and purchases will be offered on 1980-crop honey stored in bulk and other eligible containers, on or off farms. Producers have until March 31, 1981 to request loans that will mature June 30, 1981.

Eligible producers wishing to sell honey to the Commodity Credit Corporation, should contact their ASCS county office before June 30, 1981. Producers must specify the approximate quantity they desire to sell.

The 1980-crop loan and purchase rates for extracted honey in 60-pound or larger containers, by color and class, are as follows.

Table Honey	Cents Per Pound
White or lighter	51.1
Extra light amber	50.1
Light amber	49.1
Other table and non-table honey	47.1

Honey delivered to CCC by beekeepers to satisfy loans will be used for domestic donation programs.

Young farm workers need training exemptions

NORRISTOWN — Farm employers should insist that young employees and summer help have training exemptions before working on a farm, reminds Montgomery County Agent, Joseph H. Way.

The child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act state that youth under 16 cannot be employed in certain hazardous agricultural operations unless they have had special training and received a certificate. The provisions do not apply to youth working on the farms of their parents or guardians, but the training is still essential, says Way.

Among the hazardous jobs not open to youth are operating a tractor over 20-belt horsepower, operating or assisting with the operation of certain pieces of farm machinery, operating or assisting with trenchers, fork lifts, chain saws, or other types of machines, and working inside airtight produce and grain storages or silos.

Other forbidden jobs involve working at high elevations, handling hazardous materials, working pens with breeding stock, handling explosives or anhydrous ammonia, working in heavy timber operations, transporting passengers in buses, tractors, trucks or autos, or riding on a tractor as a passenger or helper.

In certain of these operations, notes Way, 14 and 15 year old farm workers can receive exemptions if they have completed formal training in these areas.

Training programs available for 14 and 15 year olds teach them about normal working hazards involved with tractor and farm machinery. Written and operational examinations test their knowledge of the correct use of machinery.

Exemptions are also available for 4-H youth who have completed specific training requirements, and for students who have completed certain units in the vocational Agriculture Training Program.

CCC fulfills current purchase plans

LEESPORT — The Commodity Credit Corporation accepted all responsive bids from farmers to sell soft red and white wheat and accepted approximately 86 percent of all bids for hard red winter and spring wheat offered under CCC's purchase invitation issued April 3, according to CCC Executive Vice President Ray Fitzgerald.

Wheat purchased includes approximately 51.1 million bushels of hard red winter, 36.3 million bushels of hard red spring, 5.9 million bushels of white and 1.2 million bushels of soft red winter. Offers from farmers for hard wheats were 61.2 million bushels of winter and 42.7 million of spring.

CCC has now purchased approximately 156 million bushels which fulfills the current purchase plans.

There will be no purchases or posting of wheat purchase prices in county ASCS offices until further notice, announced a spokesman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Apple blossom season is busy time for Pa. Apple Queen

BY SHEILA MILLER

ORTANNA — According to the old saying, 'April showers bring May flowers', folks in Pennsylvania are in for a beautiful, colorful time of year.

Adding to the splendor of Spring will be the apple trees stretching their blossoms toward the sunshine. Their fragrance, floating on the air, will bring honey bees from far and wide to drink the sweet nectar.

It's a busy time of year for bees, and it's a busy time of year for Kris Shutt, the Pennsylvania Apple Queen.

Kris will begin the month of May in the traditional way for all apple queens, in festivals set aside for celebrating the apple blossom season.

In an exclusive interview with Lancaster Farming, Kris highlighted her first weekend of the month.

Kris said she will be attending the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester, West Virginia from May 1-3. She explained that representatives from four states, from all segments of the apple industry, will be attending.

And, she said with a note of excitement in her voice, Michael Landon's daughter will be the queen of the festival. Kris added she will be one of 33 princesses in the famous television actor's daughter's court.

"We're each having a special gown made for us," said Kris. "We sent our measurements down to the festival committee and I guess we'll hope the gowns fit when we get there."

After the Shenandoah Festival, Kris said she'll be making a speedy trip back home to Ortanna, Adams County, to get ready for the Apple Blossom Festival, taking place at the South Mountain Fair Grounds on May 3-4.

The local festival, Kris explained, is more like a crafts festival, similar to the one held at apple harvest time. But, she said, the highlight of the festival is when the new Adams County Apple Queen is crowned.

She explained that the queen will be selected on April 26. "But," Kris said, "I won't be turning over my County crown until the festival."

Kris was selected by Adams County fruitgrowers to represent them as their queen last year. In competition this past February, Kris became the Pennsylvania Apple Queen for 1980.

Since she received the state title, Kris said she has made four or five appearances at supermarkets and shopping malls around the state. She added she will be attending the grocer's convention to be held in Hershey on June 1-2.

Smiling, Kris said what she likes best about her new responsibilities is the chance it gives her to talk to consumers about her favorite fruit, the apple.

"I'm not trying to stuff information about apples down their throats. I like to have them ask me questions—getting their responses helps me answer questions I would never have thought of talking about."

Adams County's Kris Shutt is getting ready for one of her busiest times of the year --- apple blossom season.

She recalled the time a man asked her why the Golden Delicious apples from Pennsylvania had funny spots all over them where the same type of apples from Washington didn't. Kris explained that the Pennsylvania apples were perfectly healthy—they were burnished with rust because of the humidity and richer soils.

In the few short months that have passed since her reign began, Kris said she has been busy learning about Pennsylvania—seeing parts of the state she has never seen before. Because of her hectic schedule, Kris said she sometimes has to miss classes at Gettysburg High School.

How did her fellow students react when they found out about the Apple Queen title? Kris said she was amazed that one guy in her class said he expected her to have gotten a "big head" over the whole thing, and expected her to walk around with her nose in the air.

Kris chuckled and popped her knuckles. "I just told him I don't feel any different . . . why should I act different?" Actually, she added, her fellow students are proud of her in a teasing way. "It makes me happy to know I have their support."

A senior at Gettysburg High School, Kris is the editor of the school newspaper. But, after graduation this June, Kris is not planning to continue in the writing field.

She said she would like to pursue an education in social work. Although she had been scheduled to begin her schooling at Bluffton College, Ohio, this Fall, Kris said she has delayed it until January. This will give her more time, she said, to fulfill her responsibilities as Apple Queen.

Why social work? Kris explained that she has gotten her interest in the field after helping at the migrant day care centers during the summer.

She recounted the history of the centers in Adams County, saying the first one was started in 1970 at Bendersville. Kris worked at a more recently organized center located in Fairfield, that is strictly for children between the ages of one and three.

"While the kids are at the center, we're their 'parents'," Kris said. "We give them the affection, care, and comfort they need. I feel a deep compassion for these kids because they don't see their parents all day."

At the center, Kris said she was in charge of 3-4 kids. She said she was their 'mother image'. She pointed out there were a few men who helped at the center, but the staff was made up of mostly women.

While at the center, the migrant children are taught to count, play, and learn coordination games. This is not an easy task when most of the children speak Spanish, said Kris.

"Some of the kids learn to walk at the center," she said. "At the end of the summer, it's hard to leave because I get so attached to them."

Kris recalled a little two-year-old called Slicky. "He was a little sweetheart and flirt—I still miss him. I speak only a little Spanish, so communicating was frustrating. The kids talk so fast and with dialects, and it is terrible when I can't say what I want to because of a language barrier."

But where language becomes a hindrance, the love and affection displayed by the children and staff do not need an interpretor. "There was one migrant child that came back for the second year. Even though he didn't remember me, there was still a bond," Kris recalled.

After she completes her education at Bluffton, Kris stated she hopes to return to Adams County and work with the migrants. "They're a group of people who are used to being shuffled around. They try to take the best of what an area has to offer them while they're there," she said.

The Apple Queen said she'd like to come back to her family's orchard. If a social work job is not available, her years on the orchard would certainly land her a job somewhere in the fruit industry.

"I used to get paid 25 cents a tree to clean up the brush from under them. I picked up drops until my back ached. And I helped with grading apples and cherries on Saturdays and after school," she said.

Kris said she loves the area where she grew up and is afraid that sometimes she takes her lifestyle for granted. "If I want an apple, I just walk across the yard and pick one off a tree. And, I hike around a lot through the orchards.

"Sometimes I take a book along and climb to the top of a tree to read. From the top of the hill, I can look out all around me."

The Apple Queen said she reads for an escape. She added she tried to read the book, War and Peace, but it was too hard. She prefers romantic novels, like Gone With the Wind, by Margaret Mitchell.

Like many other teenagers, Kris also enjoys dating. And her room, she said, is like a jungle—filled with plants.

At school, Kris is a member of the student council. She likes to run short distances, like the 100 yard race and the 220 yard. But, she explained, she didn't go out for track because of the cost of driving to school.

"I probably would have been a cheerleader if I hadn't lived so far from school," Kris mused, "but I wouldn't trade places with some one in town. I feel close to the outdoors—I'm a country girl at heart. When I'm upset, I wander through the orchards and talk with God. It's kept my sanity on more than one occassion."

Kris credits her ease in talking with people and groups to her experience working as a waitress where she always had to act happy and talk to people. She said her crown gives her an unfair advantage now when she talks to new people because they see the crown and get a favorable impression immediately. "I know they will like me and the product I represent."

"Sometimes the crown and the queen idea get old, and my face gets tired of smiling," Kris sighed, "but it's still neat, and I'm getting to know people and places I would never have met or travelled to without being the Pa. Apple Queen."

Thomasville 4-H holds events

THOMASVILLE — The Thomasville 4-H Club held their monthly meeting on March 25 at the 4-H Center at Bair.

Club work for April included the trash cleanup in Paradise Township and the coloring of 75 dozen eggs for the Spring Grove Lions Club. Club members and their leaders and parents participated in both events. The club also prepared food and assisted with the 4-H Auction held March 28 at the 4-H Center.

At the April 22 meeting, Hege Raastad, Dover High School foreign exchange student from Norway, presented slides from her country.

Sheep producer meetings scheduled

UNIVERSITY PARK — People knowledgeable about the sheep and the lamb industry will exchange their ideas with sheep, lamb and wool producers from Pennsylvania and surrounding states at four state locations during the coming week, says Clair Engle, Penn State extension animal scientist.

The conference planning committee urges interested sheep producers and allied industry personnel from the adjoining states to attend the most appropriate program. The scope of these discussions on new lamb grade standards, marketing techniques and wool processing are based on trends of the future for the sheep industry.

Subjects to be discussed by experts include lamb grading and marketing; blueprint for expansion programs and wool marketing and processing. There will be time for all attending to participate in open discussion with program speakers.

Conferences beginning at 7:30 p.m. include: Monday, April 28, Holiday Inn, Washington; Tuesday, April 29, Courthouse, Mercer; Wednesday, April 30, Claverack Electric Building, Wysox; and Thursday, May 1, Berks County Extension Agriculture Center, four miles north of Reading, off Rt. 183.

Progam sponsors include The Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association; Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Auxiliary; American Sheep Producers Council; Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets; allied industries; and Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service.

A $2 registration fee per adult person will help defray the major costs incurred by program participants. Registration fees will be collected at the respective meetings.

Junior Cooking Edition

From Rickety Uncles to a counterfeit version of Kraft Cheese, our junior cooks are showing their versatility in the recipes we've received this week.

In case pie crusts are your problem, we have today a Never-Fail Pie Crust recipe that's sure to help. In addition, we have old and new standbys like Ginger Cookies and Double-deck Knox Blox. So take a few minutes to read today's recipes and then get cooking.

KRAFT CHEESE

5 cups real dry cheese
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup butter
1 cup hot cream
2½ teaspoons salt

Work soda in the cheese that has been made by scalding sour milk and straining it in cheese cloth. Then melt butter in saucepan and have it hot. Add cheese. Stir constantly until the cheese is melted and smooth. Put in the hot cream a little at a time. Add salt last. This is for slicing cheese. If a spreading cheese is preferred, add hot milk and test until it is the right consistency to spread.

Susan N. Zimmerman, Age 7, Ephrata

BLUEBERRY BATTER CAKE

2 cups blueberries juice of ½ lemon
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup milk
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
Topping:
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water

Line a well greased 8x8x2 inch pan with berries sprinkled with lemon juice. Cream sugar and butter together, add milk alternately with flour, baking powder and salt. Pour this batter over berries. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt and sprinkle over the top of the batter. Pour boiling water over all. Bake at 375° F. oven for 1 hour. Serves 6.

Elva Zimmerman, Age 13, Ephrata

DOUBLE-DECK KNOX BLOX

4 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 packs (3 ounces each) flavored gelatin
3 cups boiling water
1 cup heavy cream

In a large bowl, combine unflavored and flavored gelatin. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add cream and stir well. Pour into a shallow 9 x 13 inch pan. Chill until firm. Cut into 1 inch squares.

CHERRY PUDDING

2 cups cherries
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup sugar
½ cup milk
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ cups flour

Combine cherries, butter and flour in a pan and bring to a boil. For fresh cherries, add ½ cup more sugar and 1 cup water. Cream the butter and sugar. Add the other ingredients and beat well. Put the cherry mixture in a greased pan. Pour the batter over them and bake 30 minutes. Serve with sweet milk.

Combine first 4 ingredients. Add the remaining ingredients and form into a ball. Place on a floured board and roll into proper size. Add your favorite filling and bake.

Michelle Horst, Age 10, Stevens

GINGER COOKIES

1 pound butter
3 cups sugar
3 eggs
¾ cup dark molasses
6½ cups flour
1½ tablespoons ginger
3 teaspoons cinnamon
6 teaspoons soda
1½ teaspoons salt

Mix butter, sugar and eggs. Add molasses, seasonings and soda. Add the flour last. Roll into balls, then roll in granulated sugar. Bake at 350° F. 18-20 minutes.

Brenda Oaks, Clear Spring, MD

RICKETY UNCLES

½ cup white sugar
1 cup corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Cook the above together in a saucepan until it just comes to a boil. Remove from the heat and add:
1 cup peanut butter
4 cups corn flakes (approximately)

Drop the mixture onto waxed paper and cool. Makes approximately 4 dozen cookies.

Kathryn Nolt, Age 7, Newville

FROSTED PUMPKIN BARS

4 eggs, beaten
1 cup vegetable oil
2 cups sugar
1 cup cooked pumpkin
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups flour
1 cup nuts or raisins (optional)

Combine all ingredients. Pour into a greased and floured large 10-14 inch cookie sheet. Bake at 350° F. oven for 20-25 minutes.

Frosting:
3 ounces soft cream cheese
6 tablespoons butter
¾ pound powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon milk

Mix ingredients together. Add more milk if needed to reach spreading consistency. Spread on the warm pumpkin bars.

Elaine Horst, Age 14, Lebanon

3 cups flour
1 cup cocoa
2 teaspoons soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
2½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vegetable oil
2¼ cups hot coffee
3 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla

Mix all ingredients and beat for 2 minutes on medium speed. Bake in cupcake pans at 350° F. oven for 20 minutes. Let cool. Slice cupcakes in half and cut center out of each one. Fill with frosting. Replace tops and press down.

Frosting

Boil together and cool:
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Cream together:
½ cup shortening
½ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar

Add milk mixture and beat until fluffy. Use as filling for the cupcakes.

Diane Witmer, Age 8, Myerstown

PEANUT BUTTER CREAMS

¼ cup confectioner's sugar
1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup sweetened condensed milk
1 cup peanut butter

Put sugar in the bowl. Add chocolate chips. Add milk and peanut butter. Stir everything together. Drop pieces of candy onto waxed paper. Chill the candy. Makes about 2½ dozen candies.

Frog and thrush— not a horse's fairy tale

A reader asks:

What is the best method of treating thrush, and how can I prevent its happening again?

Dr. Sheaffer comments:

Thrush is a degenerative condition of a horse's frog of the hoof and it sometimes involves the heel and/or sole.

This condition is caused by one of several organisms, the most common being a bacteria, Fusibacterium. When an animal has no choice but to stand in mud, urine, or wet manure. the condition becomes aggravated.

The bacteria causing thrush are commonly present in most barns and stables. Therefore, unsanitary stalls will readily produce the disease.

The steps in treatment are three. First, clean your stalls and keep them clean and dry. Second, pick and scrub the horse's feet thoroughly, EVERY DAY. Thirdly, apply an astringent or a strong antiseptic around the frog, heel and sole, depending on the areas affected.

Three common medications are copper sulfate pastes, strong iodine solutions, and a commercial preparation called Kopertox. There are other over-the-counter preparations you may find satisfactory.

A word of caution concerning thrush medications — most of them will make the hoof dry and hard. This is a problem especially if you are bedding your horse on wood shavings rather than straw. If that is your situation, you may want to alternate a softening hoof dressing with the thrush medication.

Preventing thrush from reoccurring is similiar to treating the condition. Keep your stalls clean and dry. Pick the horse's hooves daily. And, use medications as soon as any thrush begins to appear.

Be sure not to confuse thrush with scratches, greese heel, or cancher. Thrush has an offensive odor and the hoof and frog usually appear moist.

In the early stages, the horn of the hoof becomes whitish-gray in color and quite crumbly. You may be able to tear parts of the frog away with your fingers.

In the later stages, the frogs may be partially or completely eaten or burned away by the disease, and the odor will tell you beyond a shadow of a doubt that the horse has thrush.

If you have a question you would like answered by the team from Valley Animal Hospital, send it to Ask the VMD, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Questions will be kept anonymous on request.

ABOUT ENRICHMENT AND FORTIFICATION OF FOODS

The terms "enrichment" and fortification" have been part of the food industry for a long time. But these terms still create confusion among many consumers.

The enrichment process replaces nutrients lost during the processing and refining of food. Enrichment of flour, bread, rice, cereal, cornmeal, spaghetti and macaroni products refers to the addition of the B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin and niacin) and the mineral iron. There is no need to enrich whole-grain foods such as whole wheat bread and flour since they contain their original nutrients naturally.

Fortification goes a step beyond enrichment. In this process, a nutrient is added that was not originally present in the food or that was present in a smaller amount, such as vitamin D milk, vitamin A fortified margarine, iodized salt and fruit drinks with vitamin C added. Certain bread and cereal products are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals. Better quality protein sources are obtained by fortifying some products with certain amino acids. In some communities, the drinking water is fortified with fluoride. In short, fortification helps to supply nutrients that would otherwise be hard for some people to get in their regular diets.

Enrichment and fortification have both played an important role in improving nutrition in the United States. However, the federal Food and Drug Administration does limit the amount of nutrients that can be added to foods. Without limits, food companies might compete with each other to see who could come up with the most nutritionally complete super-food. Such all-purpose super-foods are not necessary for people who eat a variety of nutritious foods.

Be in the know. Read the label to determine whether a food is enriched or fortified and what nutrients have been added.

ECONOMICAL HOME SEWING

Sewing your own garments can save you money. Here are some suggestions for cutting costs even more.

Use uncomplicated patterns. These usually require less fabric and fewer extras such as trims and notions. And they require less cutting and sewing time.

Select fabrics in wider widths when possible. Usually it will allow more efficient use of fabric and you'll waste less in cutting. Fabrics without nap or one-way designs are also more economical.

Select fashions and fabrics that do not require lining or underlining. If the fabric does require lining or underlining, select a less expensive fashion fabric which has the same properties regular lining fabrics do. Often you can find a surah or woven polyester or rayon in last season's colors on sale. These will add color to your garment as well as cut cost.

Don't sacrifice interfacings to save money. But if the fabric is not too heavy or too translucent, use it as interfacing. If you can't use it, buy a yard or so of the interfacing you use most frequently. This will cut down on waste and you'll have it on hand for your next project.

Eliminate special trims which add cost. Substitute self-fabric trims cut from leftover fabric or from leftovers from other projects. Bias bands, piping, ruffles, appliques, pleating and inserts all add a fashionable touch to a garment.

Other methods of trimming involve more time, but add a high fashion look. Crochet your own edging for collars, pockets and hemlines or create an original design and embroider it on a yoke, pocket, collar or around the hemline

Young farmers ask Bergland to speak up

DANVILLE — A group of young family farmers publicly petitioned U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to speak up for the American farmer.

Group spokesman C. Herbert Zeager, R2 Watsontown, read their petition to Bergland during his stop at the Chris Wolf farm in Columbia County last week.

Co-signers of the petition included William S. Geise, R1 Northumberland; Richard J. Davies, R3 Danville; A. Dean Heebner, R2 Danville; Richard L. Beachel, R2 Danville; and Franklin Shupp, R3 Danville.

The farmers' statement to the Secretary was as follows:

We are extremely pleased that you are visiting we farmers in central Pennsylvania.

As you are well aware, the farmers in this area are under severe economic stress at this time.

We would like to call your attention to the fact that several policies of the Carter Administration have contributed to this situation.

First and foremost, your energy policy, or lack of one, has forced our costs of production to an all time high. Not ony has the cost of fuel escalated, but the cost of all forms of energy, including electricity, has increased at an alarming rate. This increasing cost has "Speak up for the American farmer," pleaded C. Herbert Zeager, left, spokesman for a group of young family farmers who presented Secretary Bergland with a letter of recommendatins on national farm policy.

TOOL BAR ROTARY HOE

THE YETTER 3400 SERIES ROTARY HOE IS ONE OF THE MOST FLEXIBLE AND VERSATILE ROTARY HOES ON THE MARKET TODAY!
—FEATURING—

■ WHEEL AND BEARING ASSEMBLY -Yetter's Rotary Hoe features 21" diameter wheels. They are riveted for durability and turn on sealed ball bearings. There are 16 rugged teeth per wheel. Each spoon-billed tooth is hardened, drop-forged, and self-sharpening.

■ SPRING-CUSHIONED ARM ASSEMBLY - Independently spring-cushioned arms permit the 3400 to follow the contour of any field insuring rock and obstruction protection. Section mounting brackets are ¾ inch and designed to endure the most abusive field conditions

■ ARM AND WHEEL ASSEMBLY -Yetter engineers designed this hoe so there is only one wheel per arm, rather than two or more The result is greater flexibility and less stress on the arms Each arm is made of high strength ductile iron Wheel spacing is 3½"

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AN EFFICIENT HOE THAT FEATURES QUALITY AND RUGGED DURABILITY, THEN YOU WANT THIS YETTER 3400 SERIES ROTARY HOE affected our use of fertilizers and pesticides as well as the cost of tillage, harvesting, and transporting our products to market.

The latest proposal to tax crude oil will add another 10 cents per gallon to our cost of fuel, and who knows how much to the other costs.

The administration's policy on increased interest rates has nearly destroyed our ability to borrow operating money with any real hope of repaying the loan. In many cases credit is simply not available to farmers through agricultural suppliers.

Credit is just another production tool and you are pricing that tool out of our reach.

In spite of lower farm prices for what we sell, the consumer is still paying top price in the supermaket. For example: In February of 1979 farm price for hogs was 56 cents per pound and pork chops were retailed at $1.89 per pound. On April 7, 1980, hogs were 30½ cents per pound and pork chops were still $1.89 per pound. Why?

Since the Soviet embargo, farm prices for soybeans have plummeted $1.23 per bushel. This indicates that your promise to maintain farm prices at pre-embargo levels was hollow.

Your cheap grain policies also do damage to all segments of our livestock economy. Cheaper grain means cheaper feed which stimulates overproduction of pork, beef, milk, poultry and eggs, which can further depress farm income.

Even though things do not look good at this point, we feel that you can take some actions to help the situation.

First, we want you, and the entire USDA, to adequately represent the famers interest in the future development of government energy policies. This is especially true in the area of petroleum products. In other words, speak up for the American farmer.

Second, we want you to investigate and publicize the farm to consumer price spread. We feel that it is unfair for farmers to be blamed when food prices increase, and then use inflation as an excuse not to lower prices to the consumer when farm prices go down.

In conjunction with this, we believe that the commodity marketing system should be investigated. We question whether the system is being regulated properly.

Third, we feel that the FmHA policies on emergency loans need to be changed. They should enable the family farmer to have a viable opportunity to weather these crises, cased by government policies.

We are proud to be part of the most productive segment of the American economy.

All we ask is that government policies give us the opportunity to exercise our abilities to feed the nation, and make a living for our families while we do it, the farmers told Bergland.

LANCASTER — Melvin Stoltzfus, Lancaster; B. Wilmer Martin, East Earl; Roy Fasnacht Jr., Bowmansville; J. Robert Engle, Oxford; and Edward Hart, Lancaster, have attended a 3-day Milker Systems Seminar at Albert Lea, Minnesota, at the factory of Universal Milking Machine Division of Universal Cooperatives, Inc.

They received training in the practical installation and servicing of pipeline milking systems, bulk coolers, automatic pipeline cleaning equipment, and the evaluation of detergents and cleaners.

The week-long course covered basic fundamentals, planning of pipeline systems, installation problems and their solutions. He was also trained in advanced practices of modern milking and good sanitation procedures.

On days when time is a problem or when a patrolman returns from work after dark, the mounted patrol uses it's own van. Here Red goes up the ramp.

Lancaster's new horse patrol

From stablework to paperwork — these officers are riding high

Here John Boots, farrier for the patrol, resets Red's shoe. The horses have not needed anything more complicated than borium on the shoes to deal with the pavements they patrol.

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

LANCASTER — The three Lancaster City policemen who comprise the new mounted patrol signed up for a lot more than a pleasant ride.

Officers Kuhn, Deibert and Rios who as the new mounted patrol are attached to the traffic division, have been issued equipment which requires constant attention. The equipment of course, is the other half of the mounted patrol — the horses.

Every morning before their shift, the officers are required to groom and feed their horses and clean the stalls. The stalls are located in the rear of the petting zoo barn at Long's Park.

And there in the zoo barn are located 4 spacious wooden stalls built with the combined efforts of city carpenters and a local vo-tech. There are 4 stalls because there are 4 horses assigned to the 3 officers. In addition to Kuhn's horse, Senator Red; Deibert's horse, Riley and Rios' horse Assignment Danger, a spare horse, Blended Fiber which has also been schooled in police work is stabled.

To keep Fiber in shape and reinforce his schooling, each officer rides him for patrol once each week.

While the officers work 4 10-hr shifts each week, they also put in some of their own time working with the horses on their time off.

To facilitate feeding, in the evening a note is tacked to the stable door of each horse. On the note the amount of grain to be fed the following morning has been given. Then the proper amount of hay to be fed to the horse is placed on the clean cement floor outside the stall door. In the morning, someone from the division stops in at 5:30 a.m. and feeds the horses.

The patrol which has only been in active service for two weeks, initiated as a request from the police department for donations to cover the expected cost. In response to that request, sufficient horses were donated to the patrol. In some cases, Deibert noted, the horses were judged to be unsatisfactory for police work.

Deibert stated that a horse had to have some age to it, that youth in a horse tends to give it more vim and vigor than is desirable for day-to-day patrol work. He noted that 2 of the mounts are over 15 years of age and the other two are both over 10 years of age.

Selection of the 4 horses to be schooled was made with the help of the Wilmington, Delaware mounted patrolmen.

People were anxious to donate their horses to the force for two basic reasons. The first was a desire to see a horse that had become a friend go to someone who would use and care for it properly. The second was the tax deduction. Kuhns noted that they also were careful to avoid any chance

Officer Deibert is shown in front of one of the saddle horses in the tack room at the park. The tack room keeps the equipment neat and clean between shifts.

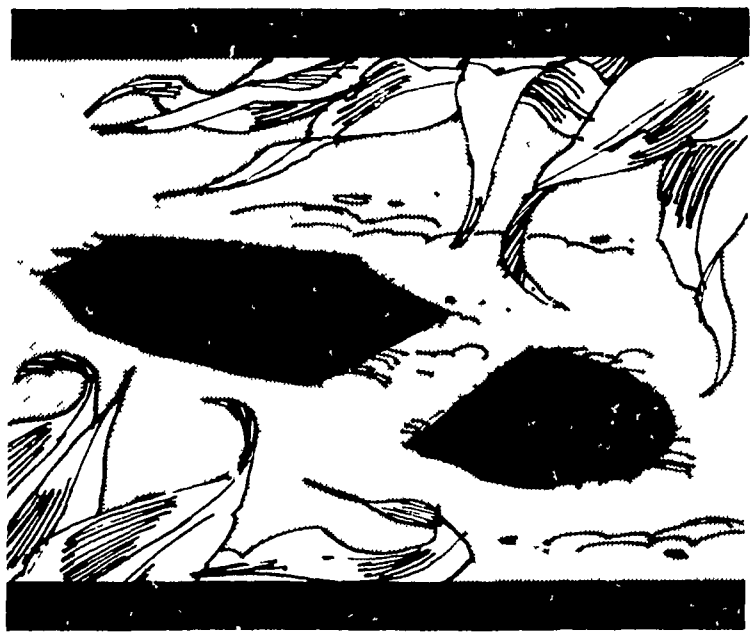
Banvel®+Lasso®*



a giant first step toward total weed control in field corn

Successful on millions of acres where corn is the major crop, the Banvel + Lasso herbicide combination can give you "near perfect" (90-100 percent) control of a wide spectrum of grassy and broadleaf weeds, when used according to label directions.

Banvel + Lasso herbicide is compatible with most fluid fertilizers. It needs no incorporation. There is no carryover.

Take a giant step toward total weed control. Call about the Banvel + Lasso combination. Remember, the "near perfect" herbicide is the one you build...starting with Banvel herbicide...from Velsicol.

*The combination is effective on all major soil types except light sandy soils Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company

Fiber and Danger were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Crouse, Dr. C. Deans Crystle donated Red, and Symbol Acres Farm donated Riley.

In addition to donations for the horses, Pennfield has donated feed for the animals, and the housings used on the horses were made and donated by Dombach Awnings.

When the department priced the saddlebags the officers needed, they received prices upward of $40. With a little ingenuity, the officers purchased the skins, tools and needles necessary to do the job and made their own saddle bags for a net cost of approximately half that amount.

The blue vinyl coated nylon bridles were purchased out of money donated for the mounted patrol. The nylon was chosen, Deibert explained, because it withstood the constant use with less care, and because it is extremely difficult to cut or tear.

The saddles the officers use were donated by a service club, and are semi-military English saddles.

And the hay for the horses is purchased from donated funds.

In addition, the local board of veterinary practice has donated a supply of medication to the unit that it anticipates will be needed during the year.

The horses, 1 chestnut and 3 bays will each receive routine parasite medications as well as a yearly Coggins test, shots for encephalitis and possibly even a rabies shot.

The officers noted that one of the things that they could still use is fencing for the lot in back of the stables. If this area were fenced, the officers would be able to turn the horses out for some additional exercise in the summer.

The equipment for the patrol is housed in a converted garage adjacent to the petting zoo. There with leftover and recycled materials, the department has created a tidy area where the tack is hung over wooden saddle horses cleanly and neatly.

After the initial grooming and stable chores, the officers change into their uniforms and either tack up their horses and ride into town — a 45 minute trek — or load their mounts and trailer the horses to headquarters.

The ride in is along the busy Harrisburg Pike, and while most places the side berms are wide enough to accomplish this without undue risk, two areas are particularly troublesome to the officers. The first is the small bridge not too far from the park, and the second is the underpass a little farther in the road. The underpass, Deibert said, he tries to take when the road is free of oncoming traffic. He noted that Riley prefers to walk down the middle of the road going under the pass, and that while he could always ride to the middle of the road and stop traffic, he prefers to wait until there are no cars in sight.

The officers carry in their saddle bags all the gear they need to fulfill the normal duties of either a foot beat or a car patrol. Each is equipped with a radio to receive messages, and in addition, they can issue traffic tickets, write citations, and make up traffic reports. The bags are also equipped with flashlights for night riding.

At night, the yellow band on the housing surrounding the saddle on the horses shows up well in car headlights. The horses also wear fluorescent orange leg bands at night to attract the attention of drivers. Nevertheless, the officers try to avoid riding back to the quarters in the park after dark.

When necessary, the patrol is equiped with a van and horse trailer bearing the Mounted Patrol identification. When time or darkness are factors, they transport their mounts to headquarters and unload and tack them up there.

The three officers are seldom on duty at the same time. On market days, two officers are on duty, while other days usually one works. Sunday is only worked on special occasions.

The officers presently on the team met stiff competition for their jobs. Over 20 men applied for the posts. Both Deibert and Kuhns agreed that they made the right decision.

Training for the patrol was conducted at the Wilmington Police Academy. The Wilmington department donated the training to the new patrol.

There during a ten week course of both written and mounted instruction, the officers learned the fundamentals of horse care. In addition, the officers were started in their riding instruction working the animals bareback. Deibert explained that the purpose here was to give the riders the confidence they needed to stick with their horses and to avoid reliance on stirrups as crutches.

Kuhns pointed out that tradition has it that when a patrolman falls, gets bitten or is stepped on he treats. He noted that he picked up the tab a number of times.

The patrolmen were drilled on bareback for the first three weeks of training. During the first 5 weeks of the course, they switched horses with each other. In the last half of the course, each chose the mount he wanted to work with and received training on that horse and on the spare, Fiber.

Training during those weeks in Wilmington progressed to riding around the park, then gradually worked up to beat work in the city.

The officers were cautioned by their instructor to pay particular attention to their mounts. He cautioned them that their horses once they could read them well would tell them about hazards they themselves could not see.

The patrol was drilled in individual work as well as work in formation with side passes and some elementary dressage work. Deibert noted that the Wilmington patrol has reached the second level in dressage work.

Both officers agreed that each day is a training day for them. They pointed out that a patrol horse takes from 6 months to 1 year to become fully trained in its job. And that they were taught during their training to look for something out of the ordinary to ask their mount to do each day. This technique they explained is used to counteract boredom and to keep the horse in alert and responsive.

The training for the horses included standing quietly while patrol cars circled with sirens blaring. It also meant enduring the loud noises of firecrackers which were thrown to simulate shots. Balloons and flags were used to make the horses safe for pedestrians and their riders. when exposed to strange noises on the street.

HEIFERS BULLS

The impulsive moves of children have been anticipated in the training as well. Each patrolman was required to train the horse to stand quietly while he crawled under its stomach. In this way the animal becomes accustomed to the small child's unpredictable moves.

Lunch stops at the same place every day are avoided so that the horses do not learn a routine and follow it automatically.

A few problems presented themselves to the new patrolmen. The horses did not like walking over the white lines which designate street crossings. In addition, they are reluctant to step over manhole covers and construction guards. The officers when possible try to avoid asking the horses to step on these hazards as a precaution against leg injuries.

The horses have become a popular addition in downtown Lancaster, according to the patrolmen. And there are numerous businesses which have volunteered to provide watering spots for the animals. Each officer gives his animal a rest by hourly dismounting and briefly loosening the girth. Parking meters, they noted, make perfect tie-up spots.

One question often asked is that of waste disposal. They noted that when a sidewalk is soiled, they simply call the city cleanup crew. They chuckled that those little trees downtown are going to be very large next year.

The horses are generally ridden at a walk, and are only rarely required to trot or canter.

The officers when questioned expressed enthusiasm for the chance to participate in exhibition drills with other city police departments. But they noted that Lancaster has only three mounted patrolmen, and that most teams require 5 participants.

Public acceptance and the work that these three officers do will largely determine the size and fate of the police patrol in the future. One thing is certain. In an era when many police departments are battling negative public image, and downtown Lancaster is up to its ears in revitalization, the new mounted patrol may be for both the police department and the city of Lancaster the best public relations move yet.

Berks ASC deadline Wednesday

LEESPORT — Wednesday, April 30, is the deadline for Berks County farmers to appeal yield allotments to the ASC Committee.

Farmers have only 15 days after mailing of the ASCS 476, "Notice of Yields and Normal Crop Acreage," to appeal, according to Mark S. Balthaser, chairman of the Berks County ASC Committee.

Some farmers may feel established yields are low for their farm so they are welcome to provide facts and figures to prove a higher yield, according to Balthaser.

Although the 1980 Wheat and Feed Grain Program provides no set-aside requirement (and no additional voluntary diversion will be accepted) yields are very important for any farmer wanting to report their acreage and make themselves eligible for the 1980 program.

In the event of disaster, yields would be needed to figure losses. In the event of low prices, target prices could earn farmers deficiency payments. The acreage yields determine the number of bushels for possible earnings, Balthaser said.

After requesting the Berks County ASC Committee to allow the farmer to prove his yields, the farmer then has 30 days to furnish the production data. Beginning with the 1980 proven yields, if any yield in the base period (the three years immediately preceeding the current year) is adversely affected by a natural disaster or conditions beyond the producer's control, the Berks County ASC Committee may adjust the yield for the particular year up to 80 percent of the current year's established yield, Mr. Balthaser said.

Use Ridomil® 2E fungicide for control of blue mold

What is Ridomil
Ridomil is a new type of soil-applied systemic fungicide that effectively controls two major tobacco diseases black shank and blue mold
Ridomil is taken up by the roots and provides systemic action, destroying the disease causing fungi both in the plant and in the soil
Ridomil is registered for the control of black shank on flue cured tobacco and blue mold on all types of tobacco

How Ridomil works
Ridomil is absorbed through the plant's roots and moves with the plant sap throughout the plant
Translocation from the soil through the roots to all parts of the plant is more rapid than by leaf absorption It is for this reason that soil treatment is recommended

4-H club holds polo clinic, horse show

LANCASTER — Members, family and friends of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Horse and Pony Club spent a fun Sunday afternoon on April 20 learning how to play polo.

Norman Tayler, a polo player for 35 years; Wendell Jones, who played polo at Valley Forge Military Academy, and Jeff Morris, who played polo while at Cornell University, instructed the 4-H'ers in basic techniques, such as the proper way to hold and swing the mallet, rules of the game, various maneuvers to help the horse and rider, and how to teach a horse to stop and turn quickly.

The members were told that polo is a game for all ages, that usually a playing field is around 100 by 300 feet, that the 7-minute periods are called chukkers, and that a game has six chukkers. The 4-H'ers picked up teams and played several spirited matches.

The club would like to start their own polo team and future clinics are planned. The clinics are open to the public and any interested person who would like to join in the fun is invited. Sessions are held at the Fellenbaum Farm on Fruitville Pile. For more information, contact Rose Fellenbaum at 569-3068.

The 4-H Club finalized plans for their Open Horse Show at their last meeting on Friday, April 11. The show is being held today at the Lower Hopewell Horse Center, 390 Speedwell Forge Road, Lititz. The Grooming and Showmanship classes will start at 9 a.m. Other events include halter, English, Western, and gymkana classes. A food stand and a used tack and clothing sale is being run by the 4-H members.

Sandy Hamilton, a senior member, explained the Club's Good Showmanship Award at the April meeting. Members will be divided into three age groups and will accumulate points during the year. Some ways to earn points are by attendance at meetings, various projects and helpfulness to others. At the end of the year, the top scorer in each age group will receive a trophy.

Leader Dick Harcherode talked about the 4-H project books and tests given throughout the year. He also noted that the Boots and Saddles Club has grown to almost 50 members.

Junior member Kelly Nachbar gave an informative demonstration on identifying a horse by the white markings on its head and legs. Using drawings of a horse's head and legs, she showed where marks are located, their appearances, and the names given to particular marks.

The main entertainment for the April meeting was a movie on Hunter Seat Equatation put out by the American Horse Show Association. Afterwards, Sue McCoy, a local horse show judge, talked about the film and answered questions.

The next Boots and Saddles 4-H meeting will be held on May 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Valerie and Vivian High in Landisville.

Richards joins Delaware County extension staff

MEDIA — Bruce A. Richards has been appointed as an assistant Extension agent and assigned to Delaware County.

Thomas B. King, Penn State, points out that Richards is conducting educational 4-H youth programs. His position is partially funded by an appropriation from the Delaware County Board of Commissioners.

A native of Wilmington, Delaware, he received a bachelor of science degree in agriculture from the University of Delaware in 1978. He is completing requirements for a master of science degree at Penn State. Prior to his appointment to the Delaware County Extension staff, he was a vocational agriculture teacher in the Lampeter-Strasburg High School. Richards is a member of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, National Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association, and Pennsylvania Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association.

In Delaware County, he is associated with County Extension Director James J. McKeehen and C.R. Bryan, County 4-H Agent, with offices in the Toal Building, Media.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It's often crossed my mind that there are lots of jobs that would make a neat way to spend part of a lifetime: photo-journalist roving around the world (at someone else's expense, naturally); plant specialist, somewhere like my beloved Longwood Gardens; or food critic, sampling the cuisine of the nation and the world (except that the seams on my jeans wouldn't stand the strain).

Note that some of these vocational pipe-dreams involve traveling. Much as I cherish the security and peace of our dairy farm, occasionally traveler's itch gets to bugging my feet and I wonder what's beyond the York County horizon.

But following agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland around part of the state recently during his pre-primary visits, opened my eyes to one travel job that is definitely not up my alley: political campaigning.

No leisurely sight-seeing for those involved in campaigning! A schedule is set, with timed visits to make, sometimes a hundred or more miles apart. No time to stop the car and pause by a whispering brook, investigate a field of blooming, colorful wild flowers or picnic in a grassy meadow.

And regardless of what any candidate says in his speeches, it's not going to please everyone - and possibly not anyone. Every answer is a right and wrong one, thus many speeches end up not really promising anything. Sure, there's some glory and sometimes a great deal of power, that goes with high official positions. Too often it has to be paid with loss of personal privacy, the right to express personal opinions and a case of the hard-won ulcer.

Having seen just a mere taste of this firsthand, I give a standing ovation to those with the courage to seek and serve in public office. After all, that's the bottom line of democracy.

So in spite of the periodic itch of wanderlust, that brief day gave me a nudge of deeper appreciation for the personal freedom to walk, unencumbered by crowds and schedules, among the waving grass, dotted with dainty violets bursting new leaves, and to watch the cows resting beyond in the meadows.

It renewed again my John Denver philosophy about our life: Thank God I'm a country boy - er, girl - and enjoy the freedom and peace to do just that.

Reagan auctions donkey

NEW HOLLAND — The young minature donkey that shared the spotlight with GOP candidate Ronald Reagan on Monday at the New Holland Sales Stables is something of a local celebrity in his new home in Eldred, McKean County.

In a whirlwind, last-minute visit to New Holland on the day before the primary election, Reagan shared auctioneering of the small donkey with Abe Diffenbach.

Reagan managed to get the bid up to $10 before Diffenbach took over and quickly moved the price up to the winning bid of $130.

Winning bidder was Arthur White, horse dealer from Eldred, Pa.

"I was trying to spice up the bidding a little bit and we'll have a little fun with him," White said.

"Besides, I wanted to show Reagan that we Democrats aren't cheapskates."

Before Reagan started the bidding, he said that he'd pretend "it's an elephant with a short trunk."

Hesitating halfway in his brief stint at the auctioneer's microphone, he commented:

"I'm afraid I'm going to cheat somebody at five dollars."

But the choicest comment of the day concerning the donkey came after Reagan returned outside to address the crowd.

"I was just inside helping to auction off a donkey," he said.

"But that's what I thought I had been doing for the past two years, trying to get rid of a jackass."

A liberal expression of moans mixed with some laughter from the crowd following his comment.

Reagan quickly qualified his statement, explaining that he didn't mean anything personal by it and was just referring to the symbol of the other party.—DA

O'Connell sees quick security fund approval

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

MONROETON — "There are no serious disagreements over the Milk Security Fund Bill," Senator Frank O'Connell told the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association at their Spring Banquet held recently at the Monroeton Fire Hall.

"It should pass quickly and be ready for the governor to sign by June Dairy Month", he anticipated.

O'Connell was also optimistic that any amendments added to the bill when it gets to the House will not be substantial or severe, but he would not be specific about what the amendments might be.

Reviewing the contents of the bill briefly, the senator said the intent was to expedite the payment procedures reducing the time from 50 days to a shorter range. Among many other provisions, it will increase the auditing strength of the Milk Marketing Board.

O'Connell told the 100 farmers present that he is actively working to increase the weight limit for trucks to 80,000 pounds. Farm Land Dairy is threatening to stop pulling milk out of the state for this reason, he said. He was not optimistic that the weight limit would be changed because of the attitude from Pa. Dept of Transportation that the crumbling state of the roads is due to heavy loads. He advised the farmers to put "some heat and pressure" on legislators to get the weight increased.

"There is a possibility that Schrader Creek will be made a "scenic river", O'Connell said.

The resource inventory has been made and is ready to publish. It states that the 22-mile stream, all in Bradford County, includes about 60 properties. They will not be changed in any way or any hardship imposed upon them.

"But before the proposal becomes definite," he promised, "a public hearing will take place in the county."

Hazardous waste dumping is a problem all over the state, O'Connell told the farmers. He directed his remarks particularly to those from the Ridgebury area who are concerned about a proposed toxic waste dump in that area.

"From what I read, the particular site (Ridgebury) is not a proper place for a dump," he said.

He explained that was he in favor of each county having the right to veto or accept hazardous waste but he doubted in his own mind if the county could take care of this problem.

"We can't have 67 counties in the Commonwealth providing a hodge-podge kind of waste disposal," he stated.

"I challenge you for your help and understanding in dealing with this very difficult problem," he concluded.

When asked if there is any way to restrict the DER, O'Connell said he was in favor of "legislative overview" when the regulations could be reviewed for 30 days in the house and senate before they are published. But no one else wants an overview, not even the governor, he lamented.

Kevin Ferris, president of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association chaired the meeting and introduced the 30 new members present. He also recognized Assemblyman Roger Madigan, and his wife, Peggy; and Fred Tiffany, state director for PFA.

The next meeting for the members of the farm group will be the annual meeting, October 6.

Fenton Murphy, left, treasurer of the Northeast Dairy Cooperative (NEDCO) urges Senator Frank O'Connell to get the weight limit for trucks increased to 80,000 pounds.

Sen. Frank O'Connell reassures Arthur Wolf of Ridgebury that the problem of the hazardous waste dump in his area is well-known. O' Connell was the main speaker at the Spring Banquet of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association held recently in Monroeton.

Two states approved for stallion import from CEM-affected countries

NEW YORK — South Carolina and Virginia will be allowed to import stallions from countries affected with contagious equine metritis, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

These two states now have laws and regulations requiring further inspection, treatment, and testing of imported stallions to insure that they are free of CEM, according to Pierre A. Chaloux, deputy administrator for the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Prior to this action, Kentucky was the only state that was eligible to receive horses from CEM-affected countries.

Contagious equine metritis is a highly transmissible veneral disease in horses. Stallions are mechanical carriers and can be freed of the bacteria through cleaning and scrubbing of the genitals, followed by treatment with an antibiotic, stated Chaloux. If the organism infects mares, it usually results in the mare's failure to conceive or early abortion.

To prevent CEM introduction, the department published regulations for importing stallions into the U.S. The January 4, 1980, regulations allow stallions to be imported from CEM countries if cleaned and treated in the country of origin. The horses must pass federal quarantine and then must be moved directly to an approved premises in a designated state for followup treatment and testing.

Countries presently considered to be affected by this disease include: Australia, Belgium, Federal Republic of Germany, France, Ireland, United Kingdom, and Italy.

The addition of South Carolina and Virginia as approved states to receive stallions from CEM-affected countries was published in the Federal Register on April 11. This action facilitates the importation of stallions during the forthcoming breeding season.

Ephrata man appointed alternate to American Egg Board

NEW YORK — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has appointed nine members and their alternates to the American Egg Board.

The eighteen-member board administers the producer-sponsored national research and promotion program for eggs. Newly appointed members and alternates will fill vacancies left by board members whose terms are expiring.

New appointments include:

North Atlantic states:
W. Robert Park, Valencia, Pa., member, and Donald E. Horn, Ephrata, Pa., alternate.

South Atlantic states:
Roland Coles, Bent Mountain, Va., and Ed Houston, Lumber City, Ga., members; Norman Sanders, Columbia, S.C., and George P. McCranie, Jr., Tifton, Ga., alternates.

East North Central states:
John D. Weaver, Versailles, Ohio, member, and Ernest E. Brown, Forrest, Ill., alternate.

West North Central states:
Franklin J. Rich, Kalona, Iowa, member, and Gilbert Eckhoff, Umaha, Neb., alternate.

South Central states:
Jack M. Dubose, Gonzales, Texas, and R.K. Looper, Jackson, Miss., members, John K. Ashby, Clarksville, Tenn., and Gerald Holmes, Stonewall, La., alternates.

Western states:
Donald J. Long, Burbank, Calif., and Ernie T. Gemperle, Turlock, Calif., members; N.A. McAnnally, Yucaipa, Calif., and Michael F. Bromley, American Fork, Utah, alternates.

The egg research and promotion program is financed through producer assessments authorized by the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act of 1974.

Apple scab and X-disease Adams fruit meeting topics

BIGLERVILLE — Plant pathology research, the apple marketing referendum, pest control and pesticide safety were topics discussed when Adams County Fruitgrowers Association met last Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Penn State Fruit Research Laboratory, Biglerville.

Association President George M. Peters, R2 Gardners, presided and introduced participants.

A pre-meeting tour of plant pathology research projects was directed by scientist-in-charge Kenneth Hickey and associates Richard Stouffer, Paul Mowery, graduate assistant Lorraine Berkett and Marek Wojtowicz, visiting fruit scientist from Poland.

The growers learned of a detailed powdery mildew study, saw a computerized weather station capable of recording data in great details and reviewed the testing procedures for identifying soil-borne nematodes.

With the first mature apple scab spore in this area identified on April 15, growers were cautioned by Donald Petersen, extension plant pathologist, to have "both sides of apple trees protected with fungicide before the next rain."

Weather conditions in 1979 were favorable to this disease.

"There is an excellent supply of spores on old leaves", he added.

"Conditions have been perfect the last two weeks for aphid hatching" said Larry Hull, entomologist at the laboratory.

Noting that a large Rosy Apple Aphid population is expected, Hull announced supplemental labeling for special need in Pennsylvania was granted Supracide 2E on April 16. For San Jose scale and rosy apple aphid, the material must be applied during the dormant or delayed dormant period and before any blossoms open.

"Green aphids present on trees now are the 'apple green aphid' which will leave the trees for another host plant at blossom to petal fall time" concluded Hull.

"How to handle chemical spills" was the topic for Win Hock, extension pesticides coordinator. He reviewed the approved procedures for transporting and mixing pesticides then listed agencies to be notified and emergency measures to take in event of a spill.

Hock called for all pesticides to be held in a locked storage that is well ventilated, dry and well marked including the statement "Pesticides - warning - fire will cause caustic fumes."

Visiting researchers from the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture in Harrisburg, David Benjamin and Al Wheeler outlined plans for a three-county survey of peach orchards this July and August to search for trees showing symptoms of X-Disease.

Discovered at four isolated locations in Adams County in 1979, the disease poses a threat to the local peach/nectarine orchards.

Studies will include the vector leafhopper and the incidence of host choke cherry plants near peach orchards.

Plans have been finalized for the Apple Blossom Festival to be held on Sunday, May 4, 1980, from the South Mountain fairgrounds headquarters according to an announcement by David Garretson.

He urged growers and the public to support the Apple Blossom Queen Contest scheduled for the Bendersville Elementary School at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, April 26, 1980. Nine contestants will participate.

President George Peters announced that John Baugher, Jr. and the newly selected Queen will appear on WGAL-TV, Lancaster on Thursday, May 1, 1980.

The summer fruit tour sponsored by the State Horticultural Society will visit Bedford, Blair and Centre counties on June 24 and 25, according to an announcement by County Agent, Thomas E. Piper.

Piper reported that a group of fruitgrowers from France will tour in Adams County on June 2 and 3.

"Only those ballots received in the Department of Agriculture building, Harrisburg, by 4 p.m., Thursday, April 24, 1980, could be counted," said Guy Donaldson, President of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board and fruitgrower in the Fairfield area.

He reported how funds raised by the apple marketing order have been invested in research and promotion, reminding growers that "promotion is the key to success in the industry; this is the payoff".

Growers with 500 trees or more were eligible to vote in the referendum.

York 4-H first at Penn State Livestock Judging Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK — York County 4-H livestock judging team was the high scoring team at this year's Penn State Livestock Judging Contest.

The contest, held April 12 at the University's Beef and Sheep Center, was sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club.

Forty-five teams and over 200 contestants competed in the judging which was divided into two categories: juniors, which combined 4-H and FFA teams; and collegiate.

In the junior division, the teams were classified as beginners or advanced. The beginner teams were not required to give oral reasons for their placings, whereas the advanced teams had to give oral reasons.

In the junior beginner category, Tom Herr, of Solanco FFA, was the high individual in cattle judging. Herr was the third high individual over-all.

Chad Cash, a Centre County 4-H'er, was the high scoring junior beginner in the contest. He was also the high individual in judging sheep.

Robin Bekassy, of Shawnee Lakers 4-H, Bedford County was the top individual for placing swine.

Barbara Herr, of the Eastern Lancaster FFA, swept the advanced junior competition, winning three of the five individual awards. She was the high scoring individual over-all, and was first in judging sheep and in presenting oral reasons.

Diane Krause, Lehigh County 4-H, followed Barbara in individual placings. She was the second high individual in the advanced junior division, and was the top scoring contestant in judging cattle. The Lehigh County 4-H team was the high scoring team in the advanced junior competition.

First place in judging swine in the advanced junior division was Missy McIlwain, Armstrong County.

In the collegiate competition, Linda Ebaugh, from York County, achieved the recognition of high scoring individual in the advanced division. She was first in presenting oral reasons for her placing classes of cattle, sheep, and swine.

Ken Brubaker, from Lancaster County, was the first place winner in the cattle judging class.

Mark Wagman, a student from West Virginia captured the first place honors in both the sheep and swine classes.

In the amateur collegiate division, Bernice White, from Delaware County, came in first. The amateur contestants were not required to present oral reasons.

The following are the judging contest results:

Delaware to try pest management on apples

NEWARK, Del. — The Delaware extension service is tackling one more crop this summer in its campaign to help farmers cut down on the use of costly pesticides through a technique known as integrated pest management. This time, the target is mites and other insects which feed on apple trees.

Apples are a small crop in Delaware, but according to extension pest management specialist Mark Graustein, growers here are very interested in trying some of the successful programs now in use in other states.

Integrated pest management is a system of pest control which makes use of a wide range of methods to hold populations of crop-damaging insects below levels that cause economic loss. These methods include the use of beneficial insects that prey on these pests, as well as the judicious application of insecticides, based on field surveys.

This often leads to reduced use of chemicals. Besides saving money, the system reduces the likelihood that harmful insects will become resistant to pesticides. It also cuts down on the amount of toxic materials released into the environment.

The pilot pest management program being initiated on apples this summer will be aimed primarily at the control of two kinds of mite that affect this crop. Mites appear to be becoming resistant to a number of miticides–a good reason to look at other controls.

Initially, says Graustein, the program used in Delaware will be based on a system developed by Penn State University. This uses a lady beetle predator called Stethorus punctum. This predator occurs naturally in Delaware. It differs from other naturally occurring mite predators in that it's fairly tolerant of many of the insecticides used on apples.

Management procedures are designed to preserve the predator population by using chemicals least likely to affect it and, where possible, by reducing rates and frequency of their application. If the program works in Delaware, it could mean a welcome reduction in production costs for growers.

The big question right now is whether large enough populations of Stethorus can become established for the beetle to be effective in reducing mite populations in orchards.

If the Pennsylvania program doesn't work in Delaware, Graustein has another one up his sleeve–an apple pest management program developed in New Jersey.

This one uses a mite called Amblyseius fallacis which feeds on other mites.

"We know this predator also occurs in Delaware," says the specialist. "If it looks as though it might work out better here than Stethorus we may switch over to this other system."

Besides focusing on mite control, Graustein says his pest management team will be looking at ways to control other apple pests, including the codling moth, red and oblique banded leafrollers, and the tufted apple bud moth.

Detection and monitoring of these pests will be done with pheromone traps. "We'll be using thresholds developed in New York to determine when to treat for codling moths," he says. A scout to do the monitoring is being hired with federal funds allocated specifically for use in such pilot pest management programs.

The extension service will be working with two cooperating apple growers this first year, while the program is being tested.

A number of other Delaware crops already benefit from some kind of pest management program. Besides apple, these include sweet corn, soybeans, small grain, alfalfa, field corn, and vegetables in general.

George Hartzell of Slippery Rock was the first place winner in the amateur collegiate division. Second and third places were won by Robert McCarthy, Aaronsburg, and Tom Telliho, Saegertown, respectively.

The contest was sponsored by the Penn State Dairy Science Club.

Farm alcohol course offered by Maryland college

NORTH EAST, Md. — The Community Services and Continuing Education Division of Cecil Community College, announced Monday that, in cooperation with the Science Department at the college, it will be offering a concentrated four-day course on Alcohol Fuel Production for Farmers.

The course will be offered in multiple sections, May 19 to 22, May 27 to 30, and June 3 to 6. There will be additional offerings in August, November and December.

According to Dale Ziegler, Director of Community Services and Continuing Education, each concentrated course will be four days in length. The first three days will be held day and evenings from 9 a.m. - 10 p.m. Lunch and dinner will be provided for the first three days and lunch only on the fourth day. Class will end at 4:30 p.m. the final day.

William Charlton, Project Director for the Alcohol Fuels Project, said, "The workshop will explore the various aspects of alcohol fuels from the farmer's point of view."

The course content will include: the decision to produce fuel-grade ethanol, plant design, energy factors, process controls, marketing the by-product, Federal and State licensing requirements, the chemistry and microbiology of mash preparation and fermentation, and the chemistry involved in distillation.

He added the participants will also perform laboratory exercises in mash preparation and distillation in producing fuel grade alcohol.

The bulk of the teaching will be performed by Charlton, assistant professor of chemistry, and Bradley Walker, assistant professor of biology at Cecil Community Collete. In addition, there will also be guest speakers from the Alcohol Tax and Tobacco Department and others.

Cecil Community College is one of approximately 40 training centers to receive a Federal grant from the Department of Energy, Office of Consumer Affairs, through funds provided by the Office of Small Scale Technology, for providing alcohol production training.

It serves the Maryland region. The college is located in North East, Maryland, near the Pennsylvania and Delaware borders.

Tuition for the course is $250. The registration for each section will be limited to 20 participants.

For additional information, contact Bill Charlton or Dale Ziegler at 301/287-6060, 658-4836, or 398-8818. Registrations now are being accepted.

Milk's the big winner at Orioles dairy day

BALTIMORE, Md. — The infield at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium faintly resembled a cow pasture last Saturday evening as three Orioles players challenged a trio of WFBR radio disc jockeys in a good natured milking contest.

Over 25,000 fans watched the Championship Pennant Nite dairy event held just prior to the evening's game between the Orioles and the Chicago White Sox. Organizer for the milk promotional competition was David Baker, Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Federal Order 4 Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Area.

Each contestant had a minute of milking time; and when the teams were finished, the Birds had captured the milk-bucket playoffs title.

Winning teammates who exchanged their baseball bats for milking stools were Ray Miller, Rick Dempsey, and the player introduced as the Birds "secret weapon," Sandy Stewart.

Standing calmly throughout the milking contest were two deep-bodied, cud-chewing Holsteins, 19,000-pounder "Ginger;" and "Ola," with 18,300-pound milk records. The cows were from the University of Maryland's agronomy and forage research center, and had been trucked to the stadium by David Patrick, director of Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers.

First alternate dairy princess Debra Smith gave pointers to the WFBR team, while Maryland Dairy Princess Karen Markline coached the winning Birds players.

Karen, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Markline, also threw out the first ball opening the game and presented the award plaques to the winners. She's a senior at North Harford High School, vice-president of the Maryland Future Farmers of America, and plans to study ag journalism at a community college next year.

The Marklines milk 30 head of Holsteins on their farm at 4116 Harford Creamery Road, White Hall.

princess; and Mary Lou Parry, Area 7, also took part in the dairy event as the leadsmen for the two cows. Virginia, 19, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, Union Bridge; and Mary Lou is 18 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parry, Centerville.

As part of the dairy promotion, the Order 4 Agency handed out thousands of cartons of white and chocolate milk, and Orioles pennants, emblazoned with the "Milk's The One" theme.

Although the 7:30 p.m. game got off to a slow start, action picked up by the fourth inning with the Orioles ahead. It was tied up by the ninth and finally stretched on into the twelfth inning before the White Sox batted in a final run, whipping the Orioles milk-off champs by a score of 5-4.

Dave Baker of the Order 4 Advertising and Promotion Agency made the final weigh-in and it was official....the Birds had won!

Fed's farm credit action applauded

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Federal Revenue Board's decision to extend additional credit to farmers in a positive step towards reducing the current financial crunch in the farm community, says American Soybean Association President Allen Aves.

"I'm glad to see someone in Washington respond to the needs of farmers," says Aves, who, along with other farm leaders, met last week with Fed Chairman Paul A. Volcker. "We certainly agree with the need to reduce inflation. At the same time, we're happy that the Federal Reserve Board has recognized that agriculture is the most productive segment of the U.S. economy."

The Federal Reserve announced Thursday that it was making $1-3 billion available to about 6,000 banks for loans exclusively to small business and agriculture. Aves said the loans, with interest ranging from 15 to 17 percent, would help provide funds so farmers could plant crops this spring.

Since SOIL CONDITIONER improves soil texture and water penetration, root development also improves. Root growth goes deeper into the subsoil for stored moisture and minerals. Roots produce more fine roots and root hairs, which allows roots more places to take up nutrients in the soil.

The now available nutrients in the soil are due in part to increased soil life. Because SOIL CONDITIONER has helped to cause an increase in soil life, there are now more available nutrients in the soil. Let SOIL CONDITIONER LEND "a helping hand" in your soil and water management.

Carter's inflation fighter slams beef

ST JOSEPH, Mo. — An off-the-cuff remark on national television by Alfred Kahn, the Carter administration's official inflation fighter, advising people to eat less beef as a means of fighting inflation, has created a storm of protest from beef producers across the nation.

Telephone calls and telegrams flooded Kahn's office Later a Kahn aide over the telephone reported that the Kahn statement was a mistake and that some retraction or official statement would be forthcoming.

Kahn made the remark on the April 11 broadcast of the NBC Today show when asked if there is anything specific that he would have the American public do to help slow inflation. He answered, "I want people to follow their own interests. Which means if there is a state of turning in their cars—get a small fuel efficient car, drive less, walk more, ride a bicycle, cut out beef and go to chicken, poultry and pork."

Cattlemen decided not to take that slam sitting down.

"Your comments, on the TODAY Show, that people should cut beef out of their diet and switch to poultry and pork were unfortunate. Dr. C.K. Allen, Executive Vice-President of the American Angus Association, told Kahn in a telegram Friday.

"Agriculture producers even more than other consumers are devastated by inflation," Allen responded, "but the decreased beef consumption that you recommend will not decrease inflation. Beef prices are lower than last year and, therefore are helping to reduce the inflation rate. Per capita consumption of beef is at the lowest point in years. And because of increased costs, beef producers are losing money.

"As you must know, the real cause of rampant inflation is in Washington, D.C. Deficit spending and unrealistic social programs are the long term causes. Increased taxation, increased interest and increased fuel cost are the cause of the recent acceleration in the inflation rate and these decisions were made in D.C.

"I think you owe beef cattle producers a retraction. They are one of the few groups in this country that respond to supply and demand and they are decreasing inflation rates, not increasing them," Allen concluded.

Spencer resigns from NCA

DENVER, Colo. — George S. Spencer, executive vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association, has announced his resignation from NCA.

Spencer will continue in his position as NCA's chief operating officer until a successor is named, said Merlyn Carlson, NCA president. The NCA executive committee met on April 23 to begin the process of selecting a successor for Spencer, as the chief staff officer in charge of all NCA operations.

Spencer told the executive committee at its meeting on April 18 that he wished to resign, and the committee reluctantly accepted the resignation, Carlson said. Spencer has been with NCA and the former American National Cattlemen's Assn. for 10 years, and he indicated he wished to resign now in order to pursue other interests. However, he agreed to remain with NCA until a new chief operating officer is appointed.

"George Spencer has made a tremendous contribution to NCA and to the beef cattle industry," Carlson said. "He has given of himself unselfishly through many difficult times during the past decade, and all of us are deeply appreciative.

"George has the respect of cattlemen and of agricultural organizations and leaders throughout the country. Under his staff leadership, NCA has become a stronger, more unified voice on behalf of the beef cattle industry. He will be greatly missed.

"The association is now operating more effectively than ever, and we regret George's leaving, but we understand his wish to devote more time now to other interests and to his family."

Spencer was reared on a livestock farm near Payson, Utah, and he is a graduate of Utah State University. After teaching agriculture in Utah, he joined Swift & Co., where he served in agricultural relations and plant management positions. He joined the former American National Cattlemen's Assn. as chief staff officer in 1970.

He played a key role in the consolidation of ANCA and the National Livestock Feeders Association into the new NCA two and one-half years ago, and he was named executive vice president of the new organization.

Spencer and his wife, Janice, have three sons, and they live in Littleton, Colorado. Spencer has not yet announced any future plans, but he and his family plan to remain in the Denver area.

By teaching youngsters safe working habits from the start, they're more likely to make safety a habit. Before assigning chores, consider the child's abilities. Ask yourself, "Can he or she perform this task safely?"

Wet conditions slow early fieldwork

HARRISBURG — For the fourth year in a row, wet conditions are preventing an early start on fieldwork, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

There were three days suitable for farm fieldwork during the week ending April 14. High soil moisture limited field activities to: hauling manure, spreading lime and fertilizer, fence repair, equipment preparation, orchard pruning and spraying, plowing, discing and planting of small amounts of oats and vegetables.

Soil moisture is rated mostly surplus by farmers across the Commonwealth.

Only nine percent of spring plowing has been completed, compared to 16 percent last year. The north reports eight percent spring plowing complete, central counties are ten percent plowed, and nine percent of spring plowing has been completed in the south.

Oats, at six percent sown, are down one percent from the 1979 figure. Less than five percent of the oats have been sown in the northern and central counties, with the south reporting 12 percent sown.

Planting of potatoes has just started, behind last year's figure of five percent planted. Northern and central counties report no planting at this time, and planting of potatoes has just begun in the south.

Barley and wheat are reported in the pre-boot stage. Winter kill appears about average, or slightly below average. Color is good and barley growth has begun.

A pig can soak up amino acids like a sponge...and waste them.

Only Farmix proportions amino acids for maximum availability.

Only new Farmix® is formulated to provide the 10 essential amino acids in the available form at levels and proportions the pig needs for fast, efficient daily gains. This is far different from other concentrates which merely supply crude protein levels or a limited number of amino acid levels. Come in. Ask us how you can adapt Farmix to pigs of all ages and sizes with these Master Mix products:

Farmix Starter Pac for pigs from 18 to 25 lbs. contains essential vitamins and minerals for rapid gains, plus milk and sugar products for added palatability.

Swine Breeder Pac fortifies Farmix rations with vitamins and minerals in the correct ratios and amount important to fast gains in sows, gilts, boars.

CCC interest rates set

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland Tuesday announced the interest rate on all 1980 crop loans made by the Commodity Credit Corporation will be 13

Bergland also announced the 13 percent rate would apply to any new 1979-crop loans and new farm storage facility loans made after today.

Bergland said the new rates are based on the cost of borrowing money from the U.S. Treasury. Continuing interest rates at the earlier level, he said, would result in losses to CCC.

Farmers who already have CCC commodity or facility loans would not be affected by the new interest rate, Bergland said.

The interest rate for 1979-crop commodity loans had been 9 percent until today. The interest rate for farm storage facility loans had been 10.5 percent since March 22, 1979.

PROFIT... and how to make your fair share in today's market

1. Complete line of specially formulated pullet feeds. Backed by many years of research and field testing and our nationally known nutritionist, we have produced feeds with unequalled results

2. Complete line of amino acid balanced layer feeds With the help of our nutritionist, we have developed layer feeds that can help lower the cost per dozen eggs

3. Contract pullet production We have contract farms that grow the pullets under our supervision, guaranteeing the quality of your layers

4. Contract egg (white and brown) production Right now we have the openings for 300,000 contract layers New facilities invited

5. Complete egg marketing program We will guarantee to buy your eggs, stamp them USDA Inspected and market them within our seven state area

If you'd like to squeeze a little more profit out of your present business, call us at 717/665 5927, or after 5 call Jay Habecker, 717/393 1520 or Martin Zukovich, 717/687 6020 and we'll discuss how we can do it for you

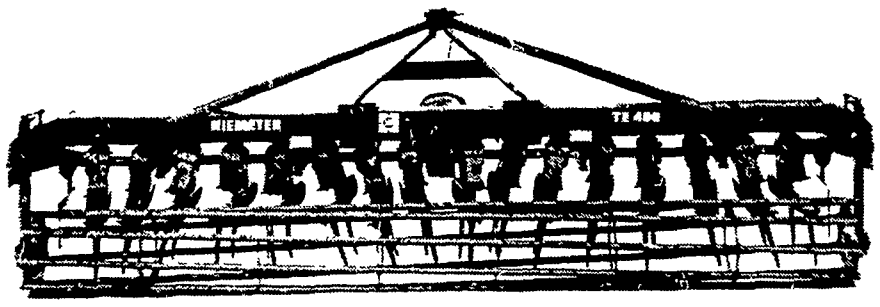
NIEMEYER



Power Harrows
FIRST IN THE FIELD

The Niemeyer line of quality Power Harrows outperforms the rest for one-trip ready, perfect seedbed preparation. Single operation tillage reduces soil compaction, retains moisture in the seed zone. . . you harvest the savings in time and fuel. The Power Harrow can also be used for chemical incorporation, clod busting, weed control and leveling. Five models available for flexibility in dealing with adverse soil conditions.

OFFICIAL SWEEPSTAKES ENTRY

Please hand print. Then take this completed form to your participating Massey-Ferguson dealer.
Deadline for entry is May 2, 1980.
Mr. Dealer: Here's my entry in Massey-Ferguson's "SPRING TRY-OUT" SWEEPSTAKES.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

TOWN _____ STATE _____ ZIP CODE _____

TELEPHONE _____

OFFICIAL RULES

No purchase required, here's all you do:

1 On an official entry form, hand print your name, address, zip code and telephone number. Then deposit your entry in the box provided at your participating Massey-Ferguson dealer. Entries must be deposited by May 2, 1980 and received at sweepstakes headquarters by May 16, 1980. Mechanically reproduced forms will not be accepted.

2 Sweepstakes open to residents of the U.S. 18 years of age and older. Void in Howard County, Maryland and where prohibited by law. Residents of Ohio and Utah may mail their entry to their participating Massey-Ferguson dealer.

3 Winners will be selected in random drawings conducted by MacDonald Creative Marketing, whose decisions are final. One prize to a family and no substitutions. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Winners will be notified by mail and winner's name and likeness may be used for publicity purposes. Odds of winning are determined by the total number of entries received. All prizes are guaranteed to be awarded. Delivery of all prizes to be made at the dealership of entry.

4 Employees and their families of Massey-Ferguson, their participating Massey-Ferguson dealers and their agencies (advertising, sweepstakes, publishers and printers) are not eligible. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply.

A list of winners may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

WAXY-CORN
CONTRACTS!

We still have plenty of waxy-seed available for the grain farmers and also Waxy Hybrids are great for cattle and hog feeders. In this area they should plant WAXY—MAIZ Hybrid seed-corn. College feeding trials show 10% better gains on 7% less corn with WAXY fed to cattle. We have several WAXY-MAIZ Hybrids for this area. They yield the same as yellow dent corn, but have higher energy starch. Hogs gain better and get to market faster on WAXY-MAIZ. We can show you how to boost cattle and hog feeding profits.

HERE'S PROOF:

Lincoln, Nebraska: 1979 official test results show that the entire Case 90 Series two wheel drive and four wheel drive tractors recorded a cab sound level test standard of 78 dB(A) decibels or less . . .

Case was the first manufacturer to reach this desirable sound level on their entire line of agriculture tractors over 100 h.p.

Bipartisan group asks USDA to increase soybean support

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sixteen members of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, including Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, Wednesday called on Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to increase the price support loan rate for soybeans from $4.50 to $5.02 per bushel.

The bi-partisan group also asked the secretary to waive a requirement that producers must have planted within the normal crop acreage of their respective farms last year in order to be eligible for price support on their 1979 soybeans.

The Secretary has authority under existing law to take both of the requested actions. The senators' request has been endorsed by the American Soybean Association.

The proposed $5.02 loan rate is equivalent to 65 percent of the national average cost of producing a bushel of soybeans.

The Senate Agriculture commitee members urged Bergland to take the recommended actions because of the sharp drop in soybean prices and the prospects of another bumper crop this year.

"Since many farmers are faced with a severe shortage of cash and the outlook for higher soybean prices is pessimistic, it only makes good sense to increase the soybean loan rate and allow all of the 1979 crop of soybeans to be eligible for the soybean loan program — disregarding the normal crop acreage requirement," the senators said in a joint letter to Bergland.

Noting that many soybean producers have held their 1979 crop in hopes of higher prices, the senators' letter said:

"In the absence of action by you, many farmers will have no choice other than to sell their soybeans at a significant financial loss. This would weaken our soybean industry — an industry that last year contributed nearly $7 billion to the U.S. balance of payments and ranked only second to aircraft in total export value."

In addition to Talmadge, signers of the letter include: David L. Boren (D-Ok); Rudy Boschwitz (R-Minn.); Thad Cochran (R-Miss.); Bob Dole (R-Kan.); Walter D. Huddleston (D-Ky.); Robert W. Jepsen (R-Iowa); Patrick J. Leahy (D-Vt.); Richard G. Lugar (R-Ind.); George McGovern (D-S. Dak.); John Melcher (D-Mont.); David H. Pryor (D-Ark.); Donald W. Stewart (D-Ala.); Richard B. Ephrata Twp. considering farmland preservation

EPHRATA — Assistance in forming the first agricultural preservation districts in Lancaster County formally was extended to Ephrata Township officials Monday by the newly organized Agricultural Preservation Board.

The offer of help was made at a meeting of the Ephrata Township Planning Commission by Amos H. Funk, chairman of the county board.

The commission said it would "take the matter under consideration and work with it."

General support for the agricultural preservation concept was expressed at the session by members of the township's board of supervisors and several attending farmers whose land would be located in the proposed district.

"It's important that we get started in Ephrata Township with farmland preservation as a demonstration project," Funk said.

"Other farmers can then look to Ephrata Township. I believe that a lot of fears of people won't materialize.

"I hope and pray that Ephrata Township will give us a chance to try it."

Funk further explained that the role of the county board would be to make suggestions and share information, but the planning commission and supervisors would have the final word.

He suggested that the next step for the township might be the scheduling of a public hearing on agricultural preservation.

The county would be willing to bear the cost of holding such a hearing and the sending of certified letters to property owners in the proposed preservation district, according to Funk.

Of particular concern, Funk said, is the future of farming in "fringe areas," located near residential developments.

"There are 29 miles of fringe areas in Ephrata Township," he said.

"The question is how these farm owners can be protected from the complaints of neighbors."

Funk explained that the agricultural preservation program would provide that the county make payment to property owners who agree to 25-year deed restrictions to keep their land in farming.

The payment would either be a percentage of the agricultural valuation of the land or a flat amount per acre.

The example he cited was five percent of a 100-acre farm valued at $400,000, or a payment of $20,000.

After the 25-year agreement, the deed restriction would be reopened for possible change.

Such a program would require that the township's zoning ordinance be strengthened to preserve farmland and protect farming.

The township's present zoning ordinance permits single-family house development on lots of 60,000 square feet in agricultural zones.

Under the county preservation program, development would be restricted to a quarter-acre lot for every 25 acres of farmland. Thus, four lots could be developed on 100 acres. Such development could be limited to members of the farm family or employees.

Among farmers expressing approval for farmland preservation were Lloyd Sensenig and Ivan Martin.

"If you'd contact farmers in Ephrata Township, more than what you'd expect would be in favor of it," Sensenig said.

"It goes against the grain to sell for development," Martin said.

"This is top-notch land and should be kept for farming."

Approval was also given by township supervisors Earl Hagy, chairman, and Aaron Z. Stauffer, who serves as both vice chairman of the township board and the county preservation board.—DA

Montgomery sheepman's clinic

SOUDERTON — The Montgomery County Extension Service invites all new and potential sheep producers to participate in a sheep mini-clinic to be held on Saturday, May 10, 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Souderton area.

The clinic is aimed at those persons relatively new to the sheep industry.

Six basic management skills will be taught, including taking temperature of the sheep, handling, proper use of dose syringe in worming, determining age of the animals, intramuscular injections and making an instant halter for emergency handling. These management skills will be taught to enable shepherds to be competent in performing approved sheep management practices. Each skill will be explained, followed by a laboratory session allowing each participant to practice the skill.

An evaluator from Penn State University will be on hand to score each person and enable them to receive a certificate dependent on their newly-learned skills.

Enrollment will be limited and advance registration is required. Contact County Agent Nancy M. Kadwill at 215/277-0574 or write to 400 Markley Street, Norristown, 19401 and leave your name, address, phone number and a brief background or plans of your involvement with sheep.

Those persons enrolled will receive details on location and equipment to bring.

YOU'VE HEARD THE TALK.

There's a better way to dry grain. It's called CHILLCURING™ because it means CURING without heat. Here's what the talk is all about.

THE GRAIN

Every kernel of grain is alive when it comes out of the field It is a seed, able to grow because it has the ability to take on moisture. Likewise, it can be kept in a state of preservation by removing the moisture already in it

But by heating the grain to dry it, the seed life is destroyed

By removing heat and moisture from the grain, it becomes dormant, and stays alive Then it can ripen to full weight, losing only water while keeping valuable protein, starches and sugar.

THE SYSTEM

It's simple. Grain goes from the field right to the bin With the unique AIRFRAME™ and AIRFLOOR™ the grain rests on a solid bed that allows maximum ventilation.

Clean dry air is the best curing medium for the grain. GRAINLAMPS™ provide electric sunshine, cleaning and drying the air beneath the floor, before it passes through the grain.

Fans force air under the floor Rising through the grain, this dry outside air carries away moisture and heat.

At the peak of the bin a jumbo 40" turbine, the WHIRLCOOLER™, puts nature to work for you. Wind and rising air keeps it turning, venting the system naturally.

A special HARVESTAT™ Control System monitors the curing process. A simple setting controls the GRAINLAMPS™ to make use of free, natural air.

THE FACTS

1. You can't beat Nature. HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING™ uses the same elements that ripen and preserve grain if left to itself: free flowing air and infra red rays (sunshine).
2. CHILLCURING™ has been tried and proven in 17 states on over 3000 farms. The research is in: CHILLCURING™ WORKS!
3. The CHILLCURING™ system uses only the electricity to power fans and lights, using about 1½ KW hrs. per bushel. Compare that cost to other systems that use increasingly expensive fuels to get disappointing results.
4. The grain goes from the field to the bin and stays there till you need it. Save time and money at harvest with the one step HARVESTALL CHILLCURING™ and storage system.
5. If you're in the market for grain storage, you owe it to yourself to look further into HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING™.

Spring Bottom Farm goes from wild to winning

BY SHEILA MILLER

FAIRFIELD — This year's top selling Polled Hereford at the Maryland Association's Black-Eyed Susan Sale was consigned by one of Pennsylvania's top breeders, Spring Bottom Farm.

Spring Bottom Farm began its quest for the top about ten years ago, according to Frank Darcey, Jr. the owner of the operation. And, like every other success story, there were some rough times and growing pains in this one, too.

Not always in the cattle business, Darcey worked in commercial construction before coming to Adams County.

"I used to come to Adams County to go hunting," he said, "and I always liked the area. My wife, Becky, and I decided to look around for a farm and when we found this one, we made our decision to buy it the day that we saw it.

"We used to come up on week ends from Rockville, Md. and we leased out the land to a local farmer. He would turn his cows out on the farm in Spring and pick them up in Fall.

"Well, one weekend, when it was about time to head back to Maryland, Becky said, 'I wish we didn't have to go back', and I had the same feeling. That's when we made the decision to move up to the farm permanently.

"We got into farming by coming in the back door, really. When we moved up here for good, we found the farmer that had been renting the land had abandoned four Hereford calves. They were running loose over the farm, too wild to catch.

"I asked the farmer if he wanted to sell the calves, and I gave him $50 a piece. Then came the task of trying to tame them."

Darcey recalled that a local livestock dealer told him to take a piece of plywood and tie a rope to it. Then, each day, he said, Darcey was to put feed on the plywood and keep moving it closer to the barn each time.

Within four days, Darcey said, he had the calves to the barn. But, when he and Becky tried to shut them in the barnyard, they broke through the fence.

"After they had broken through the gate for the second time, we put up brand new fence and a good strong gate. But, by this time, whenever they'd see Becky and me outside, they wouldn't come in the barnyard to eat.

"So, we had to out smart them. We decided that Becky would walk back into the house, and I would hide by the barn. Banking on the fact that the calves couldn't count, I waited until they sneaked into the barnyard and slammed the gate behind them. We had them finally."

Since his original purchase of the four wild Herefords, Darcey has kept on buying cows. Next Spring, Darcey noted, he will have 52 cows that will be calving. He said he has had as high as 80 head of cows, but since he has been culling his herd, his cow numbers have gone down. He added the original four Herefords are no longer on the farm.

"After I started culling, in three years my herd average has risen over 150 pounds in weaning weights," Darcey said. "My bulls average 595 pounds and my heifers average around 476 pounds."

Darcey is a firm believer in performance testing. He pulled out a thick volume of computer print outs of the Polled Hereford Association's Guidelines Program.

"I cull the cows in my herd with less than a 100 ratio," he said. "I've gotten my herd ratio up so high, that to keep improving it, I've got to have ratios over 100."

He added that each herd record is a reflection of only that one herd. It can't be used to compare two herds from two different farms. "In a herd with a very high herd ratio, a cow that is ranked with a ratio of 99 may in fact be better than a cow in another herd with a ratio of 110.

Darcey said his philosophy is that you have to take a hard look at your own herd in order to compete with yourself. Points he uses when determining which cows to keep and which to cull focus on whether the cow has had a calf every year.

Darcey said he also looks at the cow's milking ability, her mothering ability, and her ease in calving rather than her size when deciding on his culls.

Ease in calving is an area where Darcey puts a lot of emphasis. He noted that you don't want to have to help the cows and heifers calve if you don't have to. But, he said, he has an agreement with his local veterinarian that a heifer gets help if she hasn't

Becky's Shropshire sheep are following in the hoof-steps of the farm's Polled Herefords, winning ribbons and trophies at local fairs.

Pa. Polled Hereford is top selling cow at Md. sale

FREDERICK, Md. — The highest grading and highest selling Polled Hereford consigned at the Maryland Polled Hereford Association's Spring Sale came from Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, Pennsylvania.

The cow,calf pair sold to Pleasant Knoll Farms, Libertytown, Maryland for $1600. This high selling female is a Citation daughter, and recently dropped a calf bred by Royal Leige, the 1978 Farm Show champion bull.

The average price for the 51 lots sold at Saturday's sale, held at the Frederick Fair Grounds, was $706. According to Thelma Mills, secretary of the Maryland Polled Hereford Association, this sale was down in prices paid for cattle from last year.

"The bulls were a big disappointment," she said. "We just don't have a bull market in Maryland, and the buyers weren't there."

The top bull at the sale was a Gilead 24A son consigned by Huckleberry Hall Farms, Smithsburg, Md. He sold to Valley Brook Farm, Stevenson, Md. for $1275.

Mills pointed out the top selling animals went better than the top cattle sold at last year's sale. But the few junior calves that brought less than $400 brought the sale average below the previous year's figure.

A Pennsylvania farm bought the top senior heifer. JDH Polled Herefords, Dover, brought a Huckleberry Hall heifer back across the Mason-Dixon line for $1375.

The top junior heifer went to the volume buyer at Saturday's sale, Pleasant Knoll Farms. Mills said this Maryland farm has finished up its herd building, stopping at around 100 cows. The farm, which has been in operation for about one year, couldn't pass up the tremendous buys at this year's sale, she added. They purchased the Walnut Hill Farm heifer for $1500.

The cattle were judged by Connie Grove, general manager of Devreau-Soleil Farm, Downingtown.

This Spring Bottom Farm cow and calf brought the highest bid at Saturday's Maryland Polled Hereford Sale.

produced the calf one hour after the water bag has broken—with cows, it's 30 minutes.

"Brood cows are the secret to the business," said Darcey. And in his breeding program, Darcey keeps in mind what he is ultimately selecting for.

"I use 40 percent AI, rather than bull service," he said. "For milking ability and good udders, I use Klondike Anx 31X. I never sell these calves—they're all replacements."

Another bull he uses for its inherited milking ability is SR Victor 2. And on his first calf heifers, Darcey said he uses BBL Victor semen. He said the 1973 national champion bull tends to breed smaller calves which helps to reduce calving complications.

Other bulls in his AI breeding program include top names in the Polled Hereford breed, like Victorious, Vindicator, Hurrah, Enforcer, and Transformer.

Royal Leige, the 1978 Farm Show Champion Bull, is a herd sire that Darcey said is still trotting around the fields at Spring Bottom these days.

The progeny dropped at Spring Bottom Farms is proof that Darcey is doing something right. His trophy room in his farm office is lined with ribbons and plaques of wins and over 100 championships at shows and fairs like the Maryland State Fair, Eastern National, Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Farm Show, Delaware State Fair, and the Virginia State Fair.

Darcey also said he shows at local fairs, like the ones in York and Shippensburg. "You can sell a lot of cattle at these small fairs. Showing is the cheapest way to sell cattle—you can spend a lot of money in a hurry advertizing in periodicals and magazines, and you might not get a single call," he said.

At last year's Keystone International Livestock Exposition, held in Harrisburg, Darcey's late junior yearling heifer went on to be tagged the grand champion female of the show. VH Westy Hilger 07 was also the reserve junior champion of the show.

Spring Bottom's champion held her title at this year's Farm Show. She was named the champion senior heifer and went on to be tagged the grand champion. Spring Bottom Farm was recognized as the show's premiere exhibitor.

At the National Show, held in Louisville, Kentucky,

Darcey proudly stated that their 'Westy' stood 17th in her class. "She was in the class that the grand champion female came out of," he added.

Darcey said, "Winning doesn't mean as much to me now as it used to—I guess it's because I'm getting used to it. My big thrill now is winning a BIG show, but I realize I need to keep on showing at the local fairs and smaller shows."

Showing cattle is one of Darcey's interests and management tools, and so he likes to stay on top of any new ideas and changes. One of the new rules coming out of the American Polled Hereford Association has caused Darcey to sit back and smile. APHA is recommending at all state fairs that the senior heifers at Standard of Performance shows must be exhibited with a calf at their side.

"The grand champion cow chosen at those shows will be a cow that has proven to the judge that she can milk," Darcey said. "This new rule will help stop the changing of calf dates, too."

Darcey is currently serving his second term as president of the Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Association. He comments on the association and its members:

"There are about 900 people in Pennsylvania that own Polled Hereford cattle. Our association's mailing list has about 550 names. As far as paid members go, there are 110, out of which about 15 are active in the breed association's activities."

He pointed out that the association's Spring sale had to be cancelled because of lack of interest. The few who had planned to consign cattle at the Pennsylvania sale took their cattle to the Maryland Association's sale, instead.

Along with his PPHA duties, Darcey is an active member of the Adams County Cattlemen's Association. He also gets involved in trying to improve conditions at Farm Show and Expo by making telephone calls to the Secretary of Agriculture and writing to the Farm Show Director.

Frank and Becky Darcey relax at the Adams County Cattlemen's Association Bull Ball.

In his 'spare' time, Darcey and his son operate their 300 acre farm, located close to the Mason-Dixon line southwest of the historic battlefields of Gettysburg.

The farm is managed mostly as pasture land, although a small amount of corn for the silo is raised on the farm.

Darcey said his brood cows are fed the silage, along with some hay. He added he has his silage analyzed so that he knows the protein content of his feed. If his protein levels are not high enough, he said, he supplements the cows with a protein lick tank.

The feeding program for his replacement heifers is carefully planned, too. Darcey said he mixes three parts of oats to one part of corn, plus a protein supplement of 13-14 percent. He noted he buys his oats from 'upstate' because they have more protein and are better quality oats than if he grew them in Adams County.

Cattle aren't the only animals on Spring Bottom Farm. There are about 25 Shropshire ewes dotting the pastures, too, with new born lambs at their sides.

"The sheep are Becky's," Darcey said, "and she's trying to do the same thing with them as we did with the cattle." He remarked that in her five years as a shepherdess Becky has achieved 150 to 175 percent live lamb crop, with emphasis on the word 'live'.

Becky took some of her sheep to the Farm Show for the first time this year. She said she didn't do well because she was unable to be there to show the sheep herself. However, in competition at the local fairs, Becky has won enough ribbons and trophies to start decorating her own wall of the farm office.

"When I got into the cattle business, I gave myself ten years to be on top or get out. Whatever a person does in their life, they ought to do it well or not at all. And, you've got to like what you're doing, or you'll be unhappy and it will reflect in your work," Darcey commented.

In his tenth year, after a shaky start with four wild Herefords and growing to be one of the top Polled Hereford breeders in the state, it seems like Darcey has met his persona deadline.

Gobbler season to open today

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's thirteenth spring gobbler hunting season will get underway throughout the state one half hour before sunrise on Saturday, April 26. The season ends on May 17.

In recent years, normal nesting activities during spring months have been delayed by cold, wet weather, generally resulting in a slow start during the scheduled spring gobbler hunt.

Although there have been losses of birds during severe weather in recent winters, there were no reports of dead birds having been found during the 1979-80 winter months. Preliminary reports indicate that there should be a sufficient number of gobblers available to provide exciting hunting opportunities throughout most of the primary range.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission has designed the spring gobbler season to make maximum use of renewable resource. After breeding has occurred, gobblers have fulfilled their primary purpose and they then become "excess baggage" and expendable in the overall turkey picture.

By late April and early May, gobblers can be removed without adversely affecting the future supply of birds. In most states which have only one turkey season, hunting is usually done in the spring, rather than in the fall.

Game Commission personnel urge hunters to be more conscious of safety requirements during the spring gobbler season. A bird, to be legal, must have a beard. If the hunter positively identifies the beard, there can be no possibility of anyone being shot in mistake for a turkey during the spring gobbler season.

To make the spring season even more sporting, hunters might choose to pass up bearded hens, although these birds are legal. A hen has a dull slate grey or greyish-blue head, while gobblers usually have colorful red, white and blue heads.

Successful gobbler hunters are reminded that many tom turkeys have a soft breast sponge at this time of year. This is simply a mass of gelatinous material located under the skin on the breast of the turkey. It can be removed before cooking the bird. The presence of the breast sponge has no detrimental effect on the quality of flavor of the bird's meat.

Hunters are required to call in and properly identify a turkey. They should not shoot at birds which are flying or running and haven't been carefully identified.

Hunters are reminded of the following special regulations in effect for the spring gobbler season:

Only bearded turkeys will be legal game. Hunting hours are from one half hour before sunrise until 11 a.m. Hunters should be out of the woods by 12 o'clock noon.

A hunter may enter the woods prior to one half hour before sunrise providing no attempt is made to call, hunt for, or kill a turkey prior to the legal shooting hour.

Hunting shall be by calling only (manually operated hand and/or mouth calls).

The only firearm that may be used is a shotgun with shot no larger than No. 2. A combination over-under rifle-shotgun is permissible providing the hunter does not have single ball ammunition for the rifle in his or her possession. Bows and arrows can also be used, if the arrows are of a cutting-edge broadhead design.

A successful hunter who harvests a bearded turkey is required to detach the spring turkey tag supplied with the hunting license and attach the tag to the leg of the bird within one hour, and before transporting or removing the turkey in any manner from where it was killed.

If the bird is lawfully taken by a person not required to obtain a license (such as a farmer hunting on his own or adjacent land), the hunter must make and attach a homemade tag within the time specified after such killing. The tag must bear the name and address of the hunter and the date, time and county where the bird was taken.

Successful gobbler hunters are required to submit a turkey kill report to the Game Commission within five days after the harvesting of the bird. Report cards are available from Game Commission field division offices, game protectors, etc.

Proposal made to extend Mid-Atlantic milk area

LANCASTER — Proposals have been received to extend the Middle Atlantic Order No. 4 marketing area.

Additionally, a proposal was received to extend the New York-New Jersey Order No. 2 marketing area. Therefore, interested parties are being provided the opportunity to submit additional proposals.

On the basis of a request for a hearing to change the transportation allowances under the New York-New Jersey Federal milk order, USDA invited additional proposals from the industry for consideration at a possible hearing for that market.

In response, the Department received several proposals to expand the New York-New Jersey marketing area.

The proposals would add the following 20 counties in northeastern Pennsylvania: Bradford, Carbon, Clinton, Columbia, Lackawanna, Luzerne, and Lycoming. Also, Monroe, Montour, Northumberland, Pike, and Potter.

Also Schuylkill, Snyder, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Union, Wayne and Wyoming.

A proposal also was received to expand the Middle Atlantic Federal order marketing area to include 11 of the above counties plus three others.

The 14 Pennsylvania counties that would be added are: Berks, Carbon, Columbia, Lackawanna, Lehigh, Luzerne and Monroe.

Plus Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union and Wyoming.

The proposals have not yet been approved for inclusion in a notice of hearing.

Before deciding whether these proposals should be considered at a public hearing, which may need to be a joint hearing for the two orders, interested parties are invited to submit additional proposals for consideration at a possible hearing. Particular attention should be given to order modifications, such as the applicable Class I prices for any newly regulated area, that may need to be made in each order if the marketing areas are expanded as proposed.

Proposals should be stated in specific terms so that the hearing issues would be clearly set forth.

Four copies of the proposals should be mailed to: Deputy Administrator, Marketing Program Operations, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, by May 2, 1980.

Each proposal should be accompanied by a brief but comprehensive statement on the need for the proposal. The statement will be used in deciding whether the proposal should be considered at a hearing.

A hearing would be limited to the proposals included in a hearing notice. However, appropriate modifications of proposals included in the notice also may be considered at the hearing if the modifications would not enlarge the marketing area or regulate persons not now subject to the order.

Any proposals that would extend regulation should be accompanied by the names and addresses of persons who proponents believe would be affected by the proposed extension and an estimate of the number of additional dairy farmers involved.

In addition, proposals that would enlarge the marketing area should be accompanied by the following data and views with respect to each territory proposed to be added:

The approximate quantity of fluid milk products sold by proponent in each territory (county, town, city or other locality) proposed to be added in the marketing area;

The approximate percentage that the sales in Item 1 are of the proponent's total fluid milk product sales;

The names and addresses of all handlers (including own) selling fluid milk products in each territory proposed to be added to the marketing area, with an estimate of the proportion that each handler's sales are of the total sales in each proposed area;

The approximate number of dairy farmers associated with each area proposed to be added who would become producers if the marketing area were enlarged;

The name and address of each cooperative association having members associated with the territory proposed to be added in the marketing area; and

A brief but comprehensive statement in support of the proposal to enlarge the marketing area.

If the Department concludes that a hearing should be held, all known interested parties will be mailed a copy of the hearing notice. Anyone who desires to present evidence on proposals set forth in the hearing notice will have an opportunity to do so at the hearing.

Once a hearing notice is issued and until the issuance of a final decision Department employees involved in the decisional process may not discuss the merits of a proceeding on an ex parte basis with any person having an interest in the proceeding.

For this purpose, the market administrator and his staff are considered to be involved in the decisional process.

KAUFFMAN STATION — Nearly 250 area farmers attended the 16th Annual Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Banquet, sponsored by the Franklin County ASC Committee and held at the Kauffman Station Community Center.

Guest speaker for the dinner affair was Richard A. Pennay, state program specialist from Harrisburg.

Pennay noted the decrease in the number of farmers. "In 1950 there were 5.6 million farmers - now there are 2 million. The total U.S. population has changed from 25 percent being farmers in 1925 to a current 4 percent being farmers.

Four Franklin County ASCS committeemen recently received service awards. They are from left: Clarence C. Allison, Chambersburg, 10 years; J. Harold Kershner, Greencastle, 20 years; Walter W. Grove, Shippensburg, 10 years; and Lyle Umbrell, Doylesburg, 10 years.

Richard A. Pennay.

"This 4 percent population of farmers has a tremendous responsibility in looking after the other 96 percent of our total population. Therefore we must manage and preserve our land for our future generations," urged Pennay.

"Every generation must face responsibilities and keep on going so we have a good base to start from for the next generation," he stated.

He said "our city cousins must also realize the problems that we the farmer face and they must help. every one of us has that responsibility to support rural America.

"We are faced with problems that we didn't even discuss 20 years ago" he said.

These large problems facing the farmer today when trying to successfully manage land for now and in

Trickle irrigation shows promise for field corn

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Trickle irrigation is a rapidly developing technology with high potential for water and energy conservation. But because trickle tubes are usually placed on the surface and thus interfere with cultivation, the system is now used primarily on high-value crops.

Results of a six-year study at the University of Delaware's Agricultural Experiment Station suggest that deeply placed trickle tubes can effectively deliver water and anhydrous ammonia to the root zone of field corn without interfering with tillage practices.

What's more, feeding plants this way increased nitrogen efficiency by as much as 100 percent compared to broadcast ammonium nitrate, which is a standard nitrogen treatment.

Delaware extension agronomist and researcher William H. Mitchell undertook the project because he feels that in the years ahead farmers will need a more efficient way to feed and water their field crops as water and the energy used to deliver it and to produce nitrogen become increasingly scarce and costly.

He reports that besides doubling nitrogen efficiency, the system also increases organic matter levels in the soil at the 14-inch depth surrounding the trickle tubes.

Corn roots concentrate close to these lines and in time, he says, considerable organic matter could accumulate from this source.

Eventually the roots form an organic envelope which serves to stabilize the channel in which the irrigation tubing lies and thereby improves its flow characteristics.

It's also conceivable that plant nutrients may be released from this organic matter as it decomposes or is broken down by microorganisms.

Another big advantage of trickle irrigation, on or below the ground, is that you have greater control of your water supply. There's no interference from the wind, and surface runoff is avoided. The water "stays put."

Mitchell has found that trickle lines are best placed in alternate rows for field corn. Assuming 30-inch rows, this means lateral lines are five feet apart. The porous tubing provides uniform wetting as long as lines are no more than 300 to 400 feet long.

Flow rates can be controlled to some extent by adjusting water pressure. A pressure of five psi has been found to give a more uniform distribution of water than higher pressures. A 30 percent nitrogen solution, being water soluble, can easily be applied through the system.

Subsurface tubing can be laid during a subsoiling operation, using a four-inch, hollow subsoiling chisel. Care should be taken not to drive equipment across installed lines before they have been filled with water.

The feasibility of subsurface irrigation for production of an extensive crop like field corn depends on a long functional life for trickle lines. Tubing removed from the soil after five years of use had a flow rate similar to the stabilized rates for new tubing.

the future are: land use planning; acid rain; and waging biological warfare on insects rather than relying on pesticides.

Pennay also told the group that more produce is coming from less land therefore increasing the value of that land.

D. Merle Baughman, county executive director of ASCS, presented the annual report. In his report, Baughman stated that "the programs assigned to the ASCS are farm programs that are passed by Congress and administered locally by our three-man elected county ASC Committee and 27 community committeemen.

"In ASCS we deal directly with farmers and indirectly with consumers. An increased farm income means a better economy for our manufacturers, businessmen and laborers throughout the county, state and nation" he said.

Dorlin W. Hay, district director, presented ASCS service awards to four committeemen.

Receiving service certificates were: J. Harold Kershner, Greencastle, 20 years; Clarence C. Allison, Chambersburg, 10 years; Walter W. Grove, Shippensburg, 10 years; and Lyle Umbrell, Doylesburg, 10 years.

Franklin County Dairy Princess Carolyn Meyers, Honey Queen Sharon Barr and Apple Queen Sherri Carlin also addressed the group.

Entertainment was provided by the "Harmony Legends," an area barbershop quartet.

Franklin County ASC committe members are: Kenneth S. Doyle, chairman; J. Wilbur Burkholder, and Walter W. Grove.

Will 1980's be era of the egg and microwave?

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — What's the connection between a microwave oven in the kitchen of a suburban or urban home and the long, low poultry houses that dot the area's rural countryside?

Not much at present.

But, according to William Patterson, General Manager, Weaver's Quality Eggs, Inc., Lancaster, there will be a growing relationship between the two as the dawning new decade progresses.

"The 1980's will be the age of the microwave," Patterson explained.

"We're now on the threshhold of a new horizon for prepared foods and eggs will be right in the center of the development of new products that can be popped into a microwave oven by busy, working families."

Skyrocketing sales figures for microwave ovens support his prediction about how changing life styles may affect the future of the incredible, edible egg.

Although the first microwave oven was introduced some 20 years ago, sales only started to take hold within the past five years.

Purchases of a million microwaves in 1975 increased to 1.6 million in 1976. In 1977, microwave sales reached 2.2 million and continued to climb to near 3 million in 1978. Last year, more than 4 million of the quick cooking ovens were sold.

"We're just now entering an era to find whole new ideas for the use of the egg in prepared convenience foods to take advantage of this boom in the use of microwave ovens," Patterson said.

"The egg is just setting there waiting for people to do something with it and change it into a different form as a prepared food."

Presently, the more than 7 million eggs that are processed weekly through the Weaver plant leave the modern, three-year-old facility essentially as they arrive.

The eggs come in and leave as a raw product, either in the original shell form or as a fresh or frozen liquid.

But the day may not be too far off when the egg will leave such a plant as an already prepared omelet, serving of French toast or a quiche that is individually wrapped and ready for heating in a microwave oven to provide a fast, tasty, protein-rich breakfast for a husband and wife before they rush off to work.

The Northeast appears to be ripe for the microwave boom, too.

Across the country, about 15 percent of households now have microwave ovens. Ownership ranges from about a quarter of all households in Florida and California to only about three percent in the Northeast.

Thus, the market exists in the populous Northeast for microwave sales to mushroom in coming years.

The recent area poultry house expansions are situated right in the center of this large potential market for prepared convenience foods suitable for microwave ovens.

"We have the environmental housing here and the close proximity to markets will save transportation energy costs," Patterson explained.

"Other plus factors in our area are the diversification of the farming operations and more local young people wanting to stay on the farm.

"We've had producers who have specifically expanded because of sons or daughters who want to remain on the farm."

Weaver's Quality Eggs, a subsidiary of Victor F. Weaver, Inc., New Holland, is the largest processor in Pennsylvania that combines both shell and liquid operations.

Nearly 5½ million eggs are processed weekly through the shell operation for sale under Weaver brand names or under contract to many markets and supermarket chains.

Additionally, nearly two million eggs are handled weekly in the liquid operation. Packaged in four or eight-pound cartons and 30 or 45-pound containers, the frozen liquid eggs are utilized by restaurants, schools or hospitals. Tank truck loads also are used by large bakeries.

"We've found the liquid operation to be very compatible with the shell eggs," Patterson said.

"For example, if a grower develops problems with something like rough shells, the eggs can still be processed for liquid and full use of the birds is achieved."

Weaver's receives eggs from approximately 55 producers within a 60-mile radius of Lancaster. Eggs from about 1,300,000 birds are processed.

"Our facilities are all on one floor and have been built for future expansion," Patterson said.

Already the company has achieved quite a record for prepared food innovations in their chicken products.

These began with fried chicken in the early-1940's and continued with other products, such as chicken hot dogs, croquettes and turnovers.

The age-old question of what came first, the chicken or the egg, definitely has been decided up to now in favor of the bird in so far as prepared foods have been concerned.

But now, it appears that the era of the egg may be arriving in the 1980's.

Blazes herbicide registered

PHILADELPHIA — Blazer herbicide has received EPA registration for postemergence weed control in soybeans, according to the manufacturer, Rohm and Haas Company.

The registration of Blazer herbicide has been anticipated in the soybean belt because of the advantages the product offers to growers.

According to market manager Tom MacIver, "Blazer herbicide has the broadest weed spectrum of any postemergence broadleaf herbicide on the market. But even more importantly, it controls many of the weeds that soybean growers have the most problems with, such as annual morningglory, cocklebur, jimsonweed, pigweed, smartweed and hemp sesbania."

Morningglory control is generally considered the hallmark of the newly registered herbicide. "When application and rate guidelines are followed, Blazer herbicide will control all ma[illegible] species of annual morn[illegible]lory found in the s[illegible] belt," MacIver s-

DHIA supervisors discuss milking systems, test lab

MIFFLINTOWN — Milking systems, herd identification and expansion of the Central Milk Testing Laboratory were topics for discussion when the Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors met for their spring workshop last Friday, at Mifflintown.

Donald Messinger, Adams County DHIA Supervisor, Chairman of the Regional Supervisors organization, presided at the meeting. Messinger was accompanied to the meeting by Supervisor Jean Barnhill and County Agent Thomas E. Piper.

Alternate AM/PM production records are accepted as official if a time recording device is connected to the milk pump, explained Stephen Spencer, Extension Dairy Specialist from Penn State, opening speaker at the workshop. He demonstrated a digital unit available for this purpose.

"Air flow at the receiving jar should be 90 percent of pump capacity" said Spencer as he reviewed the necessary qualities of a milking system for proper milking. He recommended a sensitive vacuum regulator to maintain proper vacuum level.

Turning to somatic cell counts, Spencer stated that dairymen should strive to maintain a count of 300,000 or less.

"When the count exceeds 700,000, a program of routine dry cow treatment and teat-dipping should be followed". In response to questions, Spencer said that iodine-based dips are satisfactory for use.

Ray Pruss, DHIA Executive, outlined improvements in medical insurance coverage and rates on coverage provided to Supervisors.

Pruss also reported that rising costs of processing records will necessitate a rate increase to DHIA members. This is expected about Jan. 1, 1981.

Dexter Putnam, extension dairy specialist from Penn State, explained the factors which are now applied to production records to adjust these for greater accuracy. He also described steps for improving animal identification.

"Success of the production testing program in Pennsylvania has caused an overcrowding of space at the Central Testing Laboratory", said Herbert Gilmore, extension dairy specialist in charge of the DHIA program.

"A committee of the state board is exploring the cost of a two-story 40 by 40 foot addition to the laboratory" he added.

Earl Baum, DHIA Fieldman, announced that a Short Course for the training of Supervisors will be held on the main campus of the Penn State University during the period of May 19 to 23, 1980. Application blanks are available at local county extension offices.

Noon meal for the supervisors was sponsored by Sire Power, Inc. The meeting adjourned at 3:15 p.m. after members slected Friday, October 10, 1980 for the fall workshop.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued some classic yearbooks down through the years, but the just released 1979 edition probably won't be among them. It's not that the latest issue is a bad book, it's just not a classic. In fact, some of its detractors feel it shouldn't even have been written. More on that later.

Traditionally, the yearbooks of agriculture have been rather scholarly works dealing with important agricultural problems, like soil management, weed control, livestock care, and so on.

Many people, farmers and others, have collected these books as reference works. They grace some of the best bookshelves in the best places of learning all across the country. And over the years, I'm told that other missent copies of the yearbook of agriculture have been relegated to the lowly positions of paperweights and doorstops.

I happen to have on my bookshelf a very early forerunner to the current yearbook. It's an 1890 copy of the report of the Secretary of Agriculture, issued by the Honorable J. M. Rusk, Secretary. It's more than 600 pages, splendidly printed and containing foldouts and full color illustrations, contain a wealth of valuable agricultural information.

It's truly amazing to me how good the quality of printing was in a book that's 90 years old. Illustrations of plant material would rival anything that's done today, and while the style of writing is somewhat different it is certainly easier to understand than a lot of government reports I see.

Modern yearbooks have strayed considerably from the earlier reports of agricultural progress, many of them serving as collections of the best thinking and research on single subject area. But the Department of Agriculture has had a considerable change in philosophy in the last five years or so and has used its yearbooks of agriculture in a totally different way.

The 1976 issue, for example, titled "The Faces of Rural America" was a picture book. A beautiful collection from throughout the country of agriculture and its people in the bicentennial year. Then there were yearbooks about part-time farming, nutrition, and some other less memorable topics.

The most recent book has really put some Department of Agriculture critics into a fit. The title, "What's to Eat? . . . And Other Questions Kids Ask about Food" suggests its contents. It's all about food from the consumer's point of view and it's aimed at very young readers.

The Department explains its audience emphasis by saying that it was produced as one of the department's commitments honoring the International Year of the Child.

But that's not good enough for some lawmakers and other critics who have been saying for years that the Department of Agriculture should stick more closely to its agricultural clientele, and leave consumer concerns to some other agency.

Representative Berkley Bedell, for example, a Democrat from Iowa, has written to some of his constituents who have requested copies of the yearbook, stating that he finds it unacceptable and plans to return to the Department of Agriculture all 400 copies provided him by law.

Representative Dawson Mathis, a Democrat from Georgia, is distributing his copies "with reluctance." And other members of Congress have gone so far as to insert statements into the Congressional Record expressing their dismay and displeasure about the book.

Some farm groups are saying that the '79 yearbook substantiates what they've felt for years — that the department has strayed too far away from its traditionally agricultural roots.

Representative James Abdnor, a Republican from South Dakota, in a column distributed in his home state said, "Unfortunately, USDA has opted for a bigger audience of consumers, forgetting that farmers are consumers too."

Senator George McGovern, Democrat from South Dakota, said, "Traditional farmers will find little to be enthusiastic about" in the '79 yearbook.

So after all that, the publication may become a collector's item or it may be a dud. If so, it will be an expensive one.

Even though it's paperback and sells for only $4.50 it costs the government almost $600,000 to print about a quarter of a million copies for Congressional distribution and for sale through the Government Printing Office.

With the kind of enthusiasm farm state legislators are showing, local congressmen probably will have little trouble finding copies to fill constituent requests.

USDA seeks bids to buy $30 million of potato products

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture last Friday offered to buy an estimated $30 million worth of potato products to donate to charitable institutions and domestic feeding programs, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said.

"This is the largest amount of potato products USDA has ever offered to buy at one time," Bergland said. "We're making this offer to reduce the price-depressing impact of a nationwide oversupply of potatoes, which is seriously affecting producers across the country."

Charitable non-profit institutions, which do not routinely receive USDA-donated foods, will get about $5.2 million worth of potato products, representing over 20 million pounds of potatoes, Bergland said. School lunch and other domestic feeding programs will receive the balance — about $24.4 million representing over 91 million pounds.

USDA is seeking to buy about 18 million pounds of dehydrated potatoes; 49 million pounds of frozen french fried potatoes; and 45 million pounds of frozen potato rounds.

USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service is initiating the program under provisions of Section 32, Public Law 74-320.

Specifications for the purchase and additional information are available from: D. A. Theibault, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250; telephone: 202/447-4517.

Postmortem exams, slaughter inspections urged

LANCASTER — Routine postmortem examinations and slaughter inspections were highly recommended by a visting veterinarian from the University of Florida at a meeting for swine breeders and feeders in Lancaster on April 16.

"The money spent on having a dead animal examined may be among the best money ever spent on your herd," Dr. Neil Becker said.

"Slaughter inspections are like quality control and tell you how good a job you're doing in such things as deworming."

There's no perfect dewormer, according to Dr. Becker, and the best thing is to keep pigs from getting worms in the first place.

Posting an unthrifty feeder pig before the audience, Dr. Becker stressed that "no pig is born to be a runt; there's always a reason."

Concerning iodine treatment for navals, Dr. Becker did not express enthusiasm for the practice.

"Most of naval infections occur before the little pigs hit the floor," he said.

He recommended incorporating long-acting penicillin with iron shots to reduce such infections.

Also discussed was atrophic rhinitis, which prevents the turbinates in the pig's nose from reaching normal size.

This affects the pig's air filitration system, according to Dr. Becker, and increases the chances for pneumonia.

Dr. Becker's diagnosis for the feeder posted at the meeting involved a constriction of the esophagus, which was likely due to a birth defect. He found the opening into the stomach quite constricted with bile buildup and little food in the stomach or intestinal tract.

The visting veterinariam also discussed African swine fever, which he located as close as 90 miles away in Cuba.

"It resembles hog cholera," he said.

"It's not a matter of if we get it but when. We don't have a vaccine for it and little hope for one."

He explained that domestic producers in Posting of feeder pig is begun by Dr. Neil Becker at Lancaster swine meeting.

confinement shouldn't have too much to worry about though. And there's even less to worry about in colder climates since it is carried by a particular soft tick, which could come into places like Florida.—DA

Livestock marketers oppose Ag Bargaining Act

SACRAMENTO, CAL. — The proposed National Agricultural Bargaining Act is "nothing more or less than a massive collective bargaining act involving every agricultural commodity sold in this country," which would socialize agricultural marketing, a spokesman for Livestock Marketing Association testified here April 18.

Richard L. Nock, a member of LMA's Board of Directors, appeared before the House Agriculture subcommittee on domestic marketing, consumer relations and nutrition. He said the Kansas City-based trade group "was in complete opposition to the Act."

"Before your Subcommittee embarks on a grand reordering of the entire agricultural industry, it should consider the philosophical, economic and social effects" of the proposed bill, H.R. 3535, he testified.

Nock pointed out that the legislation would "mandate that the Secretary of Agriculture become a partner in marketing transactions throughout the entire agricultural economy. It would give the U.S. government unchecked power to mediate and arbitrate collective bargaining procedures in relation to all agricultural products, including the merchandising of livestock."

Turning to the Act's effects on the livestock industry, Nock said LMA believes the bill "would alter and reshape the livestock marketing sector so drastically that the traditional relationship of buyer and seller, which has worked so well in maintaining our free economy, would become unrecognizable."

He pointed out for the Subcommittee that the total value of livestock marketing transactions in the U.S. in 1979 reached $56.3 billion, posted on a volume of 229.4 million head. Nock cited figures from an annual study of marketing transactions done for LMA.

An awareness of the size of the livestock marketing sector alone "may be helpful" before considering a bill that would socialize all agricultural marketing, Nock said.

He also cited the "startling concept" under the Act that "nearly any buyer of livestock would be a 'handler' for purposes of the Act . . .including a feeder and probably a buyer."

The power that would be given to the Secretary of Agriculture and to the federal government to impose criminal and social sanctions under the Act "is mind-boggling in its devastating impact on the system as we now recognize it.

"One can only wonder how long it would take the Secretary of Agriculture to determine if a lot of livestock had been negotiated in good faith," said Nock, a marketing businessman from Templeton, Cal.

Today's system of livestock marketing "may be too simple to be appreciated. But it has served as the foundation of an industry which today effectively merchandises livestock in a manner unparalleled in the world," he said.

LMA also rejects the idea to simply exempt livestock from provisions of the Act, Nock said. The marketing of all agricultural commodities "is so interrelated that . . .it would be absolutely impossible to provide mandatory collective bargaining in one segment of the industry and permit free market activities in another. This leverages one segment of the industry against another."

Farm Bureau pleased with $3 billion

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Farm Bureau is very pleased that the Federal Reserve Board has taken action to help relieve the credit crunch in rural areas," according to American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert B. Delano.

His reaction came from Friday's announcement by the Federal Reserve Board that it is making available to member banks up to $3 billion to be used exclusively for loans to farmers and small businessmen.

The Fed's action said this will result in loans to farmers in the range of 15 to 18 percent, which is at least two points below the present federal discount rate.

Federal Reserve Board Vice-Chairman, Frederick H. Schultz, announced the plan before a House Small Subcommittee. Schultz said the Fed had determined that farmers and small businessmen were particularly hard-hit by high interest rates.

To qualify for the newly-available funds, banks must have a total assets of less than $100-million and show a loan-to-deposit ratio of at least 68 percent.

PURINA DAIRY SPECIAL (COARSE)

"The Complete Milking Ration That Outperforms Its Tag"

Purina Dairy Special (Coarse) was designed by Purina Dairy Research to fit the special needs of dairymen. It's a complete ration available in 16% & 18% protein levels. And because it's a coarse ration it will flow readily in your bulk bins.

It is made from high quality ingredients and has the precise balance of nutrients you expect from Purina. It is a medium energy ration that equals or exceeds many grind and mix rations used in this area.
